The troupe of trained broncho horses, Rocky Mountain Goats, and canines, now at the Aquarium, shows what can be effected by kindness, patience, and good treatment. The course adopted in the education of these animals has been entirely different from that formerly practiced by the various professional trainers, and the result has been astonishing. No whip, bridle, bit or implement, of any kind, is used either to coerce or to assist them in performing, and they do some of the most marvelous feats possible for any animal. They are simply told to do a thing, whereupon they trot off and do it. No word of encouragement is uttered, no reward given after a successful performance, and they have been taught to expect none.

Among the many professional people about to visit Europe this Summer are Harry D. Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Raymond, Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Abbey, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Crane, Miss Cole, Mr. Richard Marston, and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Florence.

Kate Randolph Rogers Boucicault goes to California.

FIFTH AV. THEATER.—The "Modjeska success" of Mr. John S. Clark, as "Major Wellington de Boots" and "Timothy Toodles," is of such enormous proportions that it will necessitate their continuation until further notice. "The Heir-at-Law" and "Paul Pry" are in rehearsal.

WALLACK'S THEATER.—A very interesting programme was offered at Wallack's the past week, three standard comedy revivals were presented on alternate nights as follows: Monday, Thursday and Saturday, "London Assurance;" Tuesday and Friday, "School;" Wednesday, "Money," and on Saturday afternoon, "London Assurance." This is as varied and interesting a bill as the most exacting could desire, and when we take into account the fact that each of these splendid comedies is presented with a cast of phenomenal strength and with a stage attire of extraordinary beauty, we may feel thankful that, notwithstanding all we hear of the decline of the legitimate drama, there is at least one house where the plays that pleased our fathers are presented with a success that justifies the belief that the oft-repeated story of the wane of old comedy is purely mythical, and merely a weak invention of the croakers. The cast of each of these plays were represented by Messrs. Lester Wallack, Harry J. Montague, John Gilbert, Harry Beckett, Miss Rose Coghlan, sister of Mr. Chas. F. Coghlan, of the Union Square Company, Miss Meta Bartlett, Miss Bonifacio and Mr. Holland.

Bobby Newcomb, an excellent negro comedian, is among the latest additions to the company of the San Francisco Minstrels.

PAIK THEATER—"Our Bachelors" continues a great success and the excellent acting of Messrs. Crane and Robson constitutes the theme of universal approbation. A more thoroughly enjoyable piece has not been presented in a long time, and it is to be regretted that, owing to previous engagements, it must soon be withdrawn. "Our Bachelors" enlists the services of a first-class company, and the smoothness and evenness of the representation would command attention if the piece were even of a less attractive character; but the comedy is so pregnant with the elements of mirth and fun as to have really nothing to be desired. Those who have omitted seeing "Our Bachelors" have missed a real treat, and we would advise such to avail themselves of the opportunity when Messrs. Crane and Robson visit Frisco.

SAN FRANCISCO MINSTRELS.—Another feast of mirth and music was provided for the past week for the patrons of the clever San Franciscans. In addition to other novelties, the mirth-provoking farce, entitled "School," in which the entire company participates, concludes the performance; it is, of course, a laughable and rollicking burlesque of Robertson's comedy, lately reproduced with great success at Wallack's. Wambold's charming tenor and the "great Ricardo's" sweet soprano voices continue to embellish the programme, while Birch and Backus, with their clever and often extemporaneous jokes, prove as powerful magnets as ever. The celebrated grotesque song and dance artists, Johnson and Powers, continue their eccentric gyrations to the satisfaction of all; and in short, the variety, freshness, and hilarity always found in the San Francisco Opera House—making by all odds the best minstrel performance ever given in the city—is certainly a healthy and pleasant excitement, and the secret of its wonderful success.

Mr. James Lewis and the entire company of the Park Theater will appear in the new comedy "Our Aldermen," to be produced upon the conclusion of "Our Bachelors."

Mr. Geo. F. Rowe's new drama, "The Exiles," is attracting immense audiences nightly to the Broadway Theater.

"A Celebrated Case" is still announced for nightly repetition at the Union Square Theater to good business.

Harrigan and Hart's burlesque of "A Celebrated Hard Case" elicits loud laughter. Harrigan plays the soldier, and Tony Hart, the baby, and these characters, in the hands of the talented comedians already named, monopolize the fun of the piece. "A Celebrated Case" is as popular at the Comique as at the Union Square Theater.

At Tony Pastor's, the bill has gained strength if that were possible. The manager has made a hit in his latest song, the "Two Jolly Jeremiahs," and the refrain promises to become popular. The company comprise the best in the variety business.

THE FOOTLIGHT office removed to No. 320 Sansome Street, Halleck Block, Room 33, next door to Wells, Fargo & Co.

ET CETERA

AND now Mr. Mapleson, Jr., "from London, you know," or some other fellow, is using an expensive puffing machine seven days and nights a week, about the outgoings, shortcomings, inexperience and second-hand devices of the manipulators of operatic artists generally, to promote the vocal and financial interests of Madame Roze. This, however, is presumption as well as flummery, and will not work at Boston, with such able, independent reviewers as Henry Chapp, of the Advertiser, and Benj. Woolf, of the Gazette. Doesn't merit count Mr. Engineer?

M. PREVIL, of The Paris Figaro, has drawn an interesting comparison between the result of the first thirty nights and of the three most famous operas-bouffes. "La Grande Duchesse" brought, it seems, 132,604 francs, and "La Fille de Madame Angot" 119,456 francs, while "Le Petit Duc" has attracted no less than 162,192 francs. The comparison is a fairer one than it at first sight appears, for each of the establishments at which these celebrated operas-bouffes was produced held about 1,200 persons. On March 5th (Mardi-gras), two performances of "Le Petit Duc" were given at the Renaissance, and the receipts were £452 6s. 6d., the largest sum ever taken there.

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

A very extensive selection of all kinds of BROOMS, BRUSHES and FEATHER DUSTERS may be found at 310 Sutter Street. The brothers LEVENSON have opened a place of business there, and offer their merchandise at the most reasonable rates.

The "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Dandeeff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

The leading establishment on the Pacific Coast for ALL STYLES OF ENGRAVING, will be found at 120 POST ST. The proprietors, Messrs. Geo. M. Wood & Co., are prepared to execute orders for dies, monograms, visiting cards, etc., at the most reasonable rates. A large assortment of fine stationery always on hand.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Riche's FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Decker Brothers' PIANOS

PHILADELPHIA, June 27th, 1876

The DECKER BROTHERS' Grand Piano used by the Musical Congress at their Grand Operatic Concerts and Musical Festivals, recently given at the American Academy of Music, were remarkable for their superior quality of tone and extraordinary power. Finer instruments in every respect we have never heard.

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co., Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DISTRIBUTION OF CHARACTERS

Evangeline, our heroine, a creature of impulse and an impetuous pet, pursued through love's impatient prompting, by Gabriel, and, with a view to edacious contingencies—by a whale. Miss Florence Ellis Catherine, the very mildest type of ante-nuptial mother-in-law—but wait. Mr. Harry Josephs
Rights. Miss Lizzie McCall
Queen Boorioboola Gha, the King's much better adviser and super-vicer of his whole conduct. Miss Viola Barnes
Mary Ann, Evangeline's waiting-maid. Miss Hattie Richardson
Gabriel, our hero, a fascinating and perambulating young lover—in point of fact a 'roaming' Romeo. Miss Lizzie Webster
Le Blanc, a lawyer of the 'shyest' 'shyster' stamp, with a 'will' and a 'way' equally dark. Mr. Sol Smith Russell
Capt. Dietrich, a Dutch mercenary in the British ranks, who shows no mercy, being a mercy-hating cuss. Mr. George S. Knight
The Lone Fisherman, a patient and singularly taciturn toiler of the sea, with a natural tendency to 'hook' whatever comes within his reach. Mr. Harry Hunter
Bazil, Evangeline's aide, whose vacillating mind is divided between the 'rental' of her prospective husband and his own 'parental' affection. Mr. E. S. Tarr
King Boorioboola Gha, royal proprietor of the mid-African diamond fields, who, not being able to hear anything 'near,' occupies an 'ear' trumpet. Mr. Edwin S. Tarr
portions. Mr. Chas. Rosine
The Jailor, never without his key, vocal or instrumental, consequently always on the 'qui' vive. Mr. Horace Frail
Grab a couple of the King's 'cop' Mr. H. Voss, Jr.
Runemin per-colored 'Copps' Mr. Wm. Bullock
Ringbolt a brace of conscientious deserters who G. Everett
The Policeman, called by some a peeler, possibly because he was never known to heed any 'appeal' a prisoner might make, 'Lucas a non,' and all that sort of thing. Mr. H. E. Dixey
Lo, the poor Indian, the 'loest' and 'lonest' savage of them all
Mr. D. R. Steele
The Headsman, not a mimic of stupid people, but very clever at taking off 'blockheads'. Mr. S. M. Crane
The Conductor, though given to much punching, better acquainted with the P. & R. than the P. R. Miss Annie Lee
The Heifer, specially imported from 'Cowes'. Sammy Snugg
Fishermen, Sailors, Soldiers, Acadian Peasants, Africans, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

In the "Heir at Law," Mr. Owens appears to better advantage as "Dr. Pangloss" than in any character he has yet given us. We hoped to have seen him as "Solon Shingle"—as in that character he stands without a rival—previous to the close of his present engagement, but will have to defer that pleasure, as his last appearance is announced to be on Saturday evening, as "John Unit," in the four-act comedy entitled "Self," which will also be played on Friday evening and Saturday matinee.

Grand Opera House

The Evangeline Company seem to have struck the popular key-note, as crowded houses nightly testify, and although the play is without any plot, the very absence of it, perhaps, and the large quantity of fun distributed throughout, make it one of the most enjoyable performances in the city. "Evangeline" to-night and every night this week.

Bush Street Theater

The matinee yesterday afternoon drew a big house—in fact now that this play is drawing to a close the audiences seem to increase—showing that its fame has spread abroad. The scenery and the manifold tricks are superior to any ever presented at this theater, and some of the business far superior to its first edition. Taken all in all people that wish to enjoy a pleasant evening should go and see "Humpty-Dumpty."

Emerson's Opera House

As we predicted in our first notice of the comedy "Joshua Whitecomb," it has proved an unqualified success. This has been accomplished entirely owing to the intrinsic merit of the character of "Uncle Josh," and considering the great attractions that have been before the public at the other places of amusement, the long run the comedy has enjoyed, is so much the more to be added to the estimate our theatergoers have placed upon its worth. As usual the dress circle is well filled every evening. Matinee on Saturday.

Baldwin's Theater

"One Hundred Years Old" will be withdrawn after the present week. "Saratoga," the great society comedy will be produced on Monday with the full strength of the Union Square Company. Business Manager Goodwin is in the East arranging for the importation of new talent.

Herold Matinee

We are almost tempted to pronounce the Herold concert of yesterday afternoon the finest of the series, but in truth they have all been so far above mediocrity that every last performance has seemed the best. The most beautiful selection was the symphony in C major, by Schubert. It was yesterday played for the first time in public in San Francisco; certainly nothing finer has ever been heard here. In regard to the rendition, sufficient to say it was music. The quartette for French Horns proved a pleasing variation in the programme, and the artists merited the applause which greeted them; their selections were good and were performed with delicate nicety. In consequence of next week being Holy Week, the fifth concert of the series is postponed until Wednesday, April 24th.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

At Platt's Hall, this evening, Miss Catherine Lewis' benefit will take place.

Kennedy's Uncle Tom's Cabin Company will play in Stockton on Friday evening.

"THE NAUGHTY BLONDEN" in Red Stockings held the boards of Piper's Opera House, Virginia City last night.

They are forming "Humpty-Dumpty" excursion parties in Oakland and the adjoining villages, now that the weather has settled.

Mr. JOHN E. OWENS will play "John Unit" in the comedy of "Self" to-morrow night, which is said to be a leaf from his own eventful life.

It would be an additional improvement to have Sol Smith Russell, in "Evangeline," give us his version of "The Missing Link." Do it, Sol, we want to hear it again.

A new use has been found for umbrellas in Philadelphia; occupants of orchestra seats shield themselves with them from the missiles fired at Count Johannes and company.

Mr. CURTIS, now playing with the Union Square Theater Company, has been offered an engagement in the Evangeline Company. Mr. Curtis would prove a valuable addition, his humor being spontaneous.

On Saturday, April 20th, Mr. Barton Hill has been tendered a benefit at the California Theater. "Rosedale" has been underlined for the occasion, in which the beneficiary will assume the character of "Elliott Gray."

A GOTHAM critic thus describes Roze: "She delighted me because she was unlike Kellogg. She has French finasse and Italian ardor, with a flavor of English vitality. Roze is an artist who warms you. Now observe the nice distinction. Kellogg enlightens like the Aurora Borealis, but there is no heat in effulgence."

Modjeska

Something is wrong in the "American Athens." There is a "spoke" loose in the "hub." Some fellow of "culchaw" is not to be captured by the shouts of the vulgar crowd. He is dramatic editor of the Boston Saturday Evening Gazette, and he declares that Modjeska, the Countess Bozenta, who won praise from San Francisco, New York and Philadelphia critics in spite of themselves, by sheer force of her great merits, is not a great actress. Of course this settles the matter, and our Western friends may as well make up their minds to stay at home and not fool away time and money when Madame comes this way. Perhaps managers who have contracted to pay her a certainty would do well to cancel engagements. It seems a little curious though that Boston's "culchaw" should have persisted in flitting the theater every night during the lady's engagement, notwithstanding the adverse criticisms that filled the amusement columns of many of the most reliable sheets published in that city that "greenhorns" regard as the seat of wisdom in literary and art matters. Chicago Hotel World.

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

Chicago, April 31, 1878.

Ed. FOOTLIGHT:—"The Trip to the Moon" was brought out at Haverly's Theater on Monday last, and was a fair success. The house was full, as the town had been well worked up, but the piece went very badly, and what with wishes and waits the curtain did not go down on the last scene until 12 o'clock. The audience began to thin out after 11 o'clock, and not over half a house witnessed the closing scenes. As you have so recently had the piece in Frisco, with the same people and scenery, nothing need be said on that score. The California people were well received and have shown themselves worthy of the high praise that had preceded them. Miss Harrison and Mr. Keene made a devoted hit, and established themselves as favorites at once. Last night another good house witnessed the play, which went much more smoothly, and the management may count on a couple of weeks of good business; but as to running that and other similar pieces for six weeks, I don't think it can be done. The day of long runs seems to be over with us, and no company or play, however good, can count on more than two or three weeks of profitable business.

At Hooley's, Jos. K. Emmet is playing in "Fritz" to fair, but not large business. His support is not remarkably strong.

At McVicker's, "A Celebrated Case," with the Union Square Co. in the cast, is still running to good business. This is the last week, however, as Manager McVicker brings out "The Exiles" on next Monday evening. He has secured the Boston version of the play and intends producing it in fine style, and has had the scene painters hard at work for some time getting up the scenery.

Manager Hooley will bring out Rowe's version of the play on the same evening, with the company that has been playing it in New York, and a lively time is expected between the two theaters.

The Coliseum is packed every night to witness a good variety performance.

PLUNDER

A COUNTRY girl describing her first kiss, told her female friend that she never knew how it happened, but the last thing she remembered was a sensation of fighting for her breath in a hot-house full of violets, with the ventilation checked by blinches and tu-lips.

THE London Sunday Times says crowds of people went to see the departure of Madame Etelka Gerster from Moscow, and the students illuminated the station with Bengal lights. Such a scene has never before been witnessed. She made her re-appearance in St. Petersburg on the 19th of February, in the part of "Ophelia," in "Hamlet," when the receipts were 8,200 roubles. This the largest nightly receipt that has ever been taken in St. Petersburg since the establishment there of Italian opera.

The Prince of Wales visited the office of Le Figaro at Paris and was shown through the editorial and press-rooms. Besides his personal staff only five persons were admitted, Victorien Sardou and Gondinet, two authors the Prince admires; the painters Detaille and DeNerville, and our irrepressible compatriot, Dr. Evans. They struck off a special paper for him on vellum, with a border sketched by the artists, and gave him a little concert and dramatic performance whereat Sardou was manager, and Judic and Theo. Coquelin and other stars assisted.

An English writer expresses the following opinion concerning the Tennyson-Locker marriage in Westminster Abbey: "If I were a young man or a blushing maiden about to commit matrimony, I should feel that a far greater romance was cast over the gravest event of my private life, if I were quietly joined to the youth or the girl who loved me in some quiet rural church, with the speaking stillness of the country around us, and only a wondering rustic or two to gaze at us, than if my wedding were turned into a raree-show in a sensation-loving metropolis, myself exalted into a momentary theatrical puppet, and one of the most sacred moments of my existence converted into an incident for the idle gossip of frivolous fashion."

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouse opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

If your WATCH needs repairing, take it to I. TOEPLITZ, 225 Dupont Street, second door from Sutter. Work first-class, and prices reasonable.

The attention of our lady friends and the fair sex of San Francisco is directed to an event of much importance to them, namely: The Spring Opening of the MILLINERY of MME. CONSTANT, at No. 314 Sutter Street. A new style of French Pattern Bonnets has just been received, which require to be seen and tried on to be appreciated, and no description could do them justice.

Parisian Gossip

The great event of the theatrical season in Paris, is the production of a new piece, by Victorien Sardou. All the notabilities are sure to be present; the boxes, orchestra stalls, etc., are full of them, and even the inferior places. At the first representation of his last, and by many pronounced his greatest work, "Les Bourgeois de Pont-Arcy," many well-known personages might have been seen in the second gallery. This enthusiasm extends to the actors as well, and all are anxious to have something to do in the piece, artists of high standing often accepting very inferior parts, forming a combination of artistic talent seldom, if ever, seen in the works of any other author. Of course the mise en scene, toilettes, etc., are as near perfection as possible. Apropos of the care given to minutest details in the mounting of his pieces, the following story is told of an incident which took place at the rehearsal of "Les Bourgeois de Pont-Arcy." In the third act, Bertou gives to Mlle. Pierson a package containing thirty-four bank bills of one thousand francs each ($6,800). It is said that Sardou, who is always anxious that everything shall be as realistic as possible, would not allow fictitious bank-notes or stage-money to be used. He told Bertou that it was absolutely necessary that he should give Madame Pierson real thousand franc notes. It seems the Vandeville bankers among its members several capitalists, for the next morning they all came to rehearsal bringing with them 34,000 francs in bona fide notes. Authors, managers, artists, all were anxious to furnish this trifling accessory, and freely offered their money. At last Sardou himself insisted on furnishing the money, which would bring in an interest of $340 a year, and which would be unproductive during the entire run of the piece.

In answer to a recent application to the India office, made with much pertinacity and audacity by a gallant Major, who received the Victoria Cross for his daring ride in Ashantee, Lord Salisbury recorded the following trenchant memo: "If there is a Victoria Cross for impudence, this man should have it."

FROM THE GERMAN OF F. FRIEDRICH

Oh! I love while love is left to thee.
The hour will come when latterly
Thou wilt mourn by silent graves alone
And let thy breast with kindness glow,
And gentle thought within thee move,
While yet a heart, through woe or woe,
Beats to thine own in faithful love.

And who to thee his heart hath lent,
Take heed thou fondly cherish him
And gladden thou his every hour,
And guard thy lips, and keep them still;
Thou shalt mourn by silent graves alone,
Oh, God! I did not mean it ill!
But yet he sorrowed as he heard

Oh! I love while love is left to thee.
The hour will come when latterly
Thou wilt mourn by silent graves alone,
I heart, unheeded then, as I
Kneeling, thou wilt hide thy streaming eyes
Amid the long, damp earth and grass,
Where, cold and damp, thy loved one lies.

CONCERNING the recent debut of Charles Fechter's daughter, as "Marguerite," in "Faust," about which the papers have had so much to say, it now appears that the lady made her debut in opera, years ago, and quit it on account of a feeble voice, caused by poor health. Her re-appearance has been more successful.

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

A very extensive selection of all kinds of BROOMS, BRUSHES and FEATHER DUSTERS may be found at 316 Sutter Street. The brothers LEVENSON have opened a place of business there, and offer their merchandise at the most reasonable rates.

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

BUFFALO, March 31, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—For the first time, we have had the opportunity of judging of the merits and demerits of the drama of "Struck Oil," in which Miss Maggie Moore and Mr. J. C. Williamson took the leading parts, opening last Monday evening. They continued to play during the week to fair houses, considering the Lenten season, which is observed to quite an extent in this Queen City of the Lakes. Of the play itself, there is not much to praise; the plot is rather weak and has not much originality about it, but is well calculated to bring the Williamsons to the front, and display their really artistic acting. In the afterpiece, "The Chinese Question," by Clay M. Greene, enabled them to show their versatility and keep the audience in a happy vein, which frequently broke out in hearty laughter.

Next week, "Baby" comes for two nights, under the care of Abbey & Schoeffel.

"Champagne and Oysters" one night, which perhaps is often enough in one week.

Bryant's Minstrels are also billed for three nights.

April 8th, the Cleveland Opera House Company produce "Aladdin, or the Wonderful Lamp."

April 18th, Madame Janauschek for three nights only, and for Easter week "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Stetson's Minstrel Combination gave one performance at St. James Hall to a good house.

Ennis, the Chicago pedestrian, began on Monday evening last the undertaking of walking 400 miles in 128 hours, at the Skating Rink here. His feet failed him after the 300th mile, and he had to give up; he blames the bad track. The first 100 hundred miles were walked in less than 24 hours.

We think it very appropriate that armory floors should be waxed, and that the soldiers should learn to dance. In time of war, they will be expected to 'wax' the enemy, and make him 'dance,' and finally 'floor' him.

ADVERTISERS

known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olivea, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Riche's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBICK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.,
Gentlemen: The artists of the Kellogg Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

EVANGELINE

DISTRIBUTION OF CHARACTERS

Evangeline, our heroine, a creature of impulse and an impetuous pet, pursued through love's impatient prompting, by Gabriel, and, with a view to edacious contingencies—by a whale. Miss Florence Ellis Catherine, the very mildest type of ante-nuptial mother-in-law—but wait. Mr. Harry Josephs Eulalie, Evangeline's confident, confidently hoping Woman's Rights. Miss Lizzie McCall Queen Booriboolah Gha, the King's much better adviser and super-vicer of his whole conduct. Miss Viola Barnes Mary Ann, Evangeline's waiting-maid. Miss Hattie Richardson Gabriel, our hero, a fascinating and perambulating young lover—in point of fact a 'roaming' Romeo. Miss Lizzie Webster Le Blanc, a lawyer of the 'shyest' 'slyster' stamp, with a 'will' and a 'way' equally dark. Mr. Sol Smith Russell Capt. Dietrich, a Dutch mercenary in the British ranks, who shows no mercy, being a mercy-nary cuss. Mr. George S. Knight The Lone Fisherman, a patient and singularly tactful toiler of the sea, with a natural tendency to 'hook' whatever comes within his reach. Mr. Harry Hunter Bazil, Evangeline's sire, whose vacillating mind is divided between the 'rental' of her prospective husband and his own 'parental' affection. Mr. E. S. Tarr King Booriboolah Gha, royal proprietor of the mid-African diamond fields, who, not being able to hear anything 'near', occupies 'an ear' trumpet. Mr. Edwin S. Tarr Hans Wagner, a spiritual 'corporal' with undue 'corporeal' proportions. Mr. Chas. Rosine The Jailor, never without his key, vocal or instrumental, consequently always on the 'qui vive'. Mr. Horace Frail Grab a couple of the King's 'cops'. Mr. H. Voss, Jr. Runemin. per colored 'Oopps' Mr. Wm. Bullock Ringbolt. a brace of conscientious deserters who left their ship simply because they couldn't take it with them. S. R. Morse The Policeman, called by some a peeler, possibly because he was never known to heed any 'appeal' a prisoner might make. 'Lucas a non' and all that sort of thing. Mr. H. E. Dixey Lo, the poor Indian, the 'loest' and 'lonest' savage of them s. l. Mr. D. R. Steele The Headsman, not a mimic of stupid people, but very clever at taking off 'blockheads'. Mr. S. M. Crane The Conductor, though given to much punching, better acquainted with the P. R. R. than the P. R. Miss Annie Lee The Heifer, specially imported from 'Coves' Fishermen, Sailors, Soldiers, Acadian Peasants, Africans, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

John E. Owens will appear this evening in his original character of 'John Unit,' in Mrs. Bateman's comedy, 'Self.' His engagement will terminate to-morrow evening, when he will assume the same character. On Monday, 'Rosedale' will be presented, with new scenery and a strong cast.

Grand Opera House

The 'Evangeline Extravaganza' is attracting its full share of public patronage. Ramon whispers that Miss Alice Harrison will soon join the company. 'Evangeline' every evening and Saturday matinee till further notice.

Bush Street Theater

The pantomime of 'Humpty-Dumpty' continues to gain in public favor. Some of the tricks are very neatly performed, the 'Trip to the Moon' transformation act of Harlequin being one of the best ever introduced in any performance. Next week will be the last of the Nick Roberts engagement. The Haverly Minstrels open on the 22d.

Emerson's Opera House

Millionaires by the dozen can be seen in the dress-circle of this theater every evening. There probably never was a more complete revolution made in so short a time in the character of a place of amusement than the performance of 'Uncle Josh' has accomplished here. Next week will be the last that our theater-goers will have the fun of seeing 'Joshua' fire 'Bill Johnson' through the sky-light of the photograph gallery. We have often wondered what the photographer thought of the unceremonious entry of his celestial visitor, and how much damage 'Uncle Josh' had to pay for the transaction.

On Monday, April 22d, a new play will be brought on by the present company, in which Denman Thompson will appear in a completely different character from that of 'Joshua Whitcomb,' further announcement of which will be given in season. 'Uncle Josh' matinee to-morrow afternoon.

Baldwin's Theater

The last performance of 'One Hundred Years Old' will be given on Sunday evening. 'Saratoga' will be played on the stage on Monday. When Augustin Daly was out here, three years ago, he played it for a few nights, with Miss Davenport as the star, but made a failure of it, on account of the cast being weak, which complaint cannot be laid at the doors of this company.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

Mr. CHAS. POPE will play 'Richelieu' this evening in Carson City.

THE orchestral rehearsals for the grand May Festival are progressing favorably.

FOREPAUGH'S Circus is announced as the 'most tremendous show the world has ever seen.'

THE 'Trip to the Moon' harlequin trick, at the Bush Street Theater, is very cleverly performed.

It is not true that Emperor Norton bathes every morning at the swimming baths at North Beach.

THE weekly salary of the hind legs of the 'Heifer' has been raised during the season of 'Evangeline.'

'ROSEDALE' will be the next attraction at the California Theater, to be followed by Miss Augusta Dargon.

THE Red Stocking Minstrels are not troubled with much baggage—one trunk is enough for the whole company.

THE Salisbury Troubadours, to arrive by next Australian steamer, will play a week's engagement at Baldwin's Academy, commencing April 29th.

ANOTHER female institution, 'Madame D'Edos' Blue Garter Minstrels,' intend visiting California shortly. What have we done, to be thus initiated?

THE benefit concert last night, at Platt's Hall, to Miss Catherine Lewis, was not so well attended as the popularity of that lady would have led us to expect.

'HAMLET' will be played to-night in Oakland, for Miss Caro True's benefit, with John T. Malone, Esq., as the star. Look out for your laurels Edwin Booth.

MAGUIRE don't say much lately, but strokes his moustache and acts vigorously. His last engagement is Mr. McKee Rankin, who will appear in the great play, 'The Danites,' May 6th.

'PUNCH, Brothers, Punch!' and other sketches by Mark Twain: Slope, Wodman & Co., N. Y., a neat pocket companion for railroad travel or fireside amusement, has just been issued. For sale by A. Rouman & Co.

THE Virginia Chronicle says that the first part of the Red Stocking performance is the oldest and staidest clap-trap imaginable, and that the bulk of it is offensive to the code of ordinary decency. In our gossip we published a rumor that they were under engagement to succeed the present company at Emerson's Opera House, which rumor, we are informed by the business manager of that theater, to be entirely without foundation, so far as present knowledge of the matter extends.

Haverly's Minstrels will open on Monday, April 15th, at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, for a season of one week, preceding their engagement at the Bush Street Theater of this city, where they appear on the 22d. Eastern exchanges report this as the best minstrel company in the United States, the following are the names of the principal members: George Thatcher, Wm. H. Rice, H. G. Richmond, Frank Cushman, Billy Carter, Chas. Diamond, Welch and Kemble, also Ernest Linden, who will join the company in San Francisco.

Did you ever hear the story of the Presbyterian clergyman at sea? It was told to me by a missionary, so it must be proper. Among a large number of passengers on board a steamer which was caught in a terrible storm, was a Presbyterian minister. Most of the passengers were very much frightened, but the minister grew so livid with despair that one of the crew was prompted to remark to his mate, 'I say, Bill, d'ye see what a funk the parson's in? Why, dash my lee scuppers, he's more afraid o' goin' to 'even than we are o' goin' to 'ell.'

Model Management

A CORRESPONDENT of the Phila. Evening Bulletin, writing from London about theatrical management, thus speaks of the Prince of Wales Theater:

'In this house everything, down to the smallest detail, is attended to with intelligence and carried out with taste and enterprise. If anything might be said against the management, it is that attention to detail is sometimes overdone, and little knick-knackeries of furniture and upholstery are introduced in excess into the scenery and stage decorations. This, however, is a fault on the right side. This house is owned, I believe, as well as managed, by Mrs. Bancroft, who, as Miss Marie Wilton, has long been a favorite, and deservedly so, of the theater-going public. No one can call Mrs. Bancroft a great comedian; but for an English woman of our degenerate-theatrically degenerate days, she has talent, and, if she unminges the theater by her own unaided exertions, she has high administrative faculties. For some time this house has been esteemed the best in London. It earned its reputation by its successful performances of modern English comedy as exhibited by the late Mr. Robertson, whose plays—'Caste,' 'School,' 'Ours,' and 'Play'—commonplace though they are when put alongside of the higher efforts of the last century, hold a fair place among the dramatic results of late years. The company of the Prince of Wales' has absorbed whatever talent there is on the London boards, and the management has seemed what does not exist in any other house in England—namely, that every part, even the most subordinate, shall be well rendered. And it is here, and in the careful arrangement and furnishing of the stage, that this house excels. A dialogue between a housemaid and a boy in buttons is as well given as an emotional scene between the hero and heroine, and the arrangement of the chippendale chairs and the old china of a modern English room is as minutely cared for as the marshaling of a great tableau at the Grand Opera in Paris. Mrs. Bancroft herself not infrequently takes the most important parts, and her husband, who ranks high among such comic hands as we have, made a successful hit in a recent play given in this house by his rendering of the subordinate character of an English butler on the Continent—a small part for a man of his position in the theatrical world, but well worth doing, even as an example of the care in which the management is conducted.'

Cold Comfort

Away down in Maine, a good stone-mason's wife found that a widower, whose visits were looking a little suspicious, had actually popped to her maiden sister of fifty-five, and feeling some ripples as to allowing him so to risk his happiness, thus relates her attempt at 'faithful duty' in warning him:

'Now,' says I, 'Mr. Waterhouse,' says I, 'you know '41 minds is set—they're real set.'
'Why, for they?' says he, solemn as the grave, and looking at me.
'Yes,' says I, 'they air. They always want their own way.'
'Why, for they?' says he.
'Yes,' says I, 'they dew. And Hannah she'll want her own way.'
'Why, for she?' says he.
'Yes,' says I, 'she will.'
'Well,' says he, slower than ever, and looking at me, 'she can live her way' And she does live it, and they dew live complete.'

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known as the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place of excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the literary and culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from mint employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

The attention of our lady friends and the fair sex of San Francisco is directed to an event of much importance to them, namely: The Spring Opening of the MILLINERY of MME. CONSTANT, at No. 314 Sutter Street. A new style of French Pattern Bonnets has just been received, which require to be seen and tried on to be appreciated, and no description could do them justice.

Kean and Forrest

A writer in the St. Louis Herald has lately published some interesting reminiscences of the late Edwin Forrest. Here is what Mr. Forrest replied to an inquiry made by the writer as to what kind of an actor the elder Kean was: 'The greatest I ever saw. I met him at Albany, where I was his support; I was cast for 'Iago.' Kean did not come to rehearsal in the morning, and I went to his hotel. I sent up my card, and was shown into his room, where I saw a little pale-faced man, with a fine head of curly hair, and with an eye—he had a perfect mirror of an eye. I said: 'Mr. Kean, I am to play 'Iago' with you to-night. You did not come to rehearsal, and I thought you might have some particular business for me to do, so I called to know.' 'Oh,' said Kean, 'you come on the stage at night and look at me, and it will be all right. Come, sir, sit down. Do you drink?' I declined. 'Well, I will,' and he called for a gin punch, which came up; and from marks on the table, I judged he had made the same order before. Kean then sat at the piano, and sang 'Believe me if all those endearing young charms.' He was the finest singer I ever heard in my life, and I have heard them all. Night came, and with it 'Othello.' In the third act I had to say, 'Look to your wife, watch her well with Cassio, wear your eyes thus—not jealous nor secure, looking him in the eyes, and placing my face close to his—I meant 'don't be too sure of her.' At the end of the act Kean came to me and said: 'Young man, where did you get that idea of looking me so intently in the eyes and thrusting your face into mine?' 'I got it, sir, when I said 'wear your eyes thus, where you got your great style of acting from—Nature!' Kean took me by the hand and said: 'You will make your mark.' He afterwards made a speech at a dinner in Philadelphia, and pronounced it the coming man of the American stage. I would give $10,000 for a report of that speech to-night.'

SEYMOUR ADAMS, who during the recent wedding rejoicings at Madrid, Spain, successfully conducted a second opera, an experiment never before tried there, has received the honors of Charles III. from King Alfonso. There are rumors that he will become conductor of the Royal Opera at Madrid.

Patience

Waiting may endure the night,
Jill will come with morn'ning light
Patience says that mortals know
In their lives will here below
Spend time suffering hours of pain,
Tearing an eternal gain

Shine, only, cannot bring Into life in early spring
Tiny plant or leafless flower,
Darkened clouds and rainy shower.
Too, are needed to produce
Things for beauty and for use

God Himself, that rules o'er all,
Ever late to human call;
Yet his wisdom may decree
What will seem most grievously
Checking hope, and life, and aim,
Proving thence the motives same.

Be the trial what I may,
Certain little has its way,
All sufficient for the need
Is the grace of God, indeed,
None are ever made to wear
Heavier cross than they can bear
O, the night is not too long,
Nor its trying, vigil wrong.
When our Saviour's helping hand
Beckons to the "Better Land"
Jill will the morning be Waking in the "Land"

Metaphysics

The new canon of Westminster calls the words "heli," "damnation," and "everlasting" simply "mistranslations," and says: "They most unquestionably will not stand in the revised edition of the Bible, if the revisers have understood their duty."

Max Muller says: "During the last fifty years the authentic documents of the most important religions in the world have been recovered in a most unexpected and almost miraculous manner. We have now before us the canonical books of Buddhism; the Zend-Avesta of Zoroaster is no longer a sealed book; and the hymns of the Rig-Veda have revealed a state of religions anterior to the first beginning of that mythology which in Homer and Hesiod stands before us as a mouldering ruin."

The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher says: "I do not believe in the doctrine of eternal punishment. I was a long time in getting to that point where I could feel free to say so, but I have reached it. I believe that men will carry out of this life essentially the dispositions in which they die, and will pass into another era where, after suffering ceases to improve them, they will depart and be annihilated, one part; but such of them as will by further discipline be improved, will be brought back. I hold as a certainty that this life does not terminate responsibility of conduct; that good goes on after death, and evil goes on with penalty after death. I do not think this life is the only term of probation. I think there is a probation beyond."

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Out-sides," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed on well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. For list of papers and further information call on or address

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

—FOR—

No Housekeeper Should be Without It!

The best thing known for washing Flannel; superior to anything for cleaning Silk and Velvet; the most cleansing for the body; for healing eruptions of the skin; when used as a shampoo, will cleanse the scalp and prevent the hair from falling out; when mixed with starch it is used for glazing shirts and other linens. By washing shelves or cupboards with this solution, ants and cockroaches and other insects will be driven away. Borax is the best thing known for curing Rheumatism.

Gentlemen—The artists of this Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DISTRIBUTION OF CHARACTERS

Evangeline, our heroine, a creature of impulse and an impetuous pet, pursued through love's impatient prompting, by Gabriel, and with view to edacious contingencies—by a whale.....Miss Florence Ellis
Catherine, the very mildest type of ante-nuptial mother-in-law—but wait.....Mr. Harry Josephs
Eulalie, Evangeline's 'confidante', contentedly hoping Woman's for Rights.....Miss Lizzie McCall
Queen Boorioboola Gha, the King's much better adviser and super-vicer of his whole conduct.....Miss Viola Barnes
Mary Ann, Evangeline's waiting-maid.....Miss Hattie Richardson
Gabriel, our hero, a fascinating and perambulating young lover—in point of fact a 'roaming' Romeo.....Miss Lizzie Webster
Le Blanc, a lawyer of the 'shyest' 'slyster' stamp, with a 'will' and a 'way' equally dark.....Mr. Sol Smith Russell
Capt. Dietrich, a Dutch mercenary in the British ranks, who shows no mercy, being a mercy-nary cuss.....Mr. George S. Knight
The Lone Fisherman, a patient and singularly taciturn toiler of the sea, with a natural tendency to 'hook' whatever comes within his reach.....Mr. Harry Hunter
Bazil, Evangeline's sire, whose vacillating mind is divided between the 'rental' of her prospective husband and his own 'parental' affection.....Mr. E. S. Tarr
King Boorioboola Gha, royal proprietor of the mid-African diamond fields, who, not being able to hear anything 'near', occupies 'an ear' trumpet.....Mr. Edwin S. Tarr
Hans Wagner, a spiritual 'corporal' with undue 'corporeal' proportions.....Mr. Chas. Rosine
The Jailor, never without his key, vocal or instrumental, consequently always on the 'qui vive'.....Mr. Horace Frail
Grab.....a couple of the King's 'cop'.....Mr. H. Voss, Jr.
Runemin.....per' colored 'Coppa'.....Mr. Wm. Bullock
The Policeman, called by some a peeler, possibly because he was never known to heed any 'appeal' a prisoner might make, 'Lucas a non,' and all that sort of thing.....Mr. H. E. Dixey
Lo, the poor Indian, the 'loest' and 'lonest' savage of them all.....Mr. D. E. Steele

The Headman, not a mimic of stupid people, but very clever at taking off 'blockheads'.....Mr. S. M. Crane
The Conductor, though given to much punching, better acquainted with the P. R. R. than the P. R. R. Miss Annie Lee
The Heifer, specially imported from 'Cowes'.....

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

In the characters given us by Mr. Owens during his present engagement, he either must have commenced at the weak end of his repertoire, or else, like many other good things, his acting gains in estimation upon better acquaintance. The character of "John Unit," in Mrs. Bateman's comedy of "Self," is the best he has yet placed before us. It has only one fault, and that is, there is not enough of it. "Self" is a drama of life in New York, and no act in it but what naturally enough might be an event of every day occurrence.

"Self" will be given this afternoon and evening, and "Roadside" will be brought out on Monday.

Grand Opera House

"Evangeline" is drawing good large houses nightly, and the extravaganza improves as it gets older. The music is light and sparkling, and some of the vocal airs are excellent. The "Lone Fisherman" continues to be the most interesting character, and the facial expression in some of the situations could not be improved. Matinee this afternoon and performance this evening.

Bush Street Theater

Manager Locke has extended an invitation to the children of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum to be present at the "Humpty-Dumpty" matinee this afternoon, and no doubt the tricks of Grimaldi and the graceful evolutions of "Colombine" (Miss Boshell) will gladden the hearts and make merry the young orphans. "Humpty-Dumpty" will be continued next week, and will be followed by the Haverly Minstrels, who appear on Monday, April 22d, and who will be the greatest attraction that this theater has ever engaged. The entire company are new faces excepting Billy Rice.

Emerson's Opera House

Notwithstanding the numerous and highly attractive entertainments given elsewhere throughout the city, the Denman Thompson Company still continues to attract a very large share of public patronage; and this is not at all to be wondered at, as "Joshua Whitecomb" is a character that visitors never get tired of. He is so amusing that his friends like to call upon him often and spend a couple of pleasant hours in his company. Matinee this afternoon and evening performance as usual.

Baldwin's Theater

"Saratoga" is next on the list of the present company's programme, which will appear on Monday evening. "One Hundred Years Old" this afternoon and evening, and Sunday evening for the last time.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

THE Paris Exposition is to be opened on the 1st of May.

AN Eastern inventor has patented a claw-hammer coat that can be used as a boot-jack.

TENNYSON is engaged on a historical drama, uniform with "Queen Mary" and "Harrold."

Mrs. OATES, or as she is now called, Miss Alice Oates, will visit California in June next.

A NEW play, called "Land Ahead," by George M. Fenn, has scored a success at Hull, England.

MONSIEUR SAVINIER, the solo cornet player, performs every evening at the free concerts given at The Fountain.

FOREPAUGH'S Circus and Menagerie will be opened this afternoon, on the lot corner Seventh and Mission Streets.

J. J. WALLACE, late of the Kiralfy Ballet Troupe, leaves for Australia in the Zealandia on Monday, with a new play, called "The Young Man from America."

THE Julien Children perform at Woodward's Gardens this afternoon, and they are without exception the most graceful young acrobats we have ever seen.

THE gross income of the theaters in Paris is subject to a special poor tax, which is often the cause of the failure of managers. An effort is being made to have the tax taken out of the net profits instead of the gross receipts.

LEOPOLD LICHTENBERG, the California boy violinist, arrived in this city last evening. As it is only about once in every generation that a master spirit is directed to the severe study and hard work absolutely necessary for the attainment of proficiency on this most difficult of all musical instruments; a few words may be appropriate upon the present occasion regarding the talented young artist who has carried off the honors in Europe, and whose future career will be watched with much interest by all lovers of art and music in California.

Leopold Lichtenberg, son of Charles B. Lichtenberg and Malvina Goldstadt, was born in San Francisco on the 22d of November, 1861. His parents are originally from Warsaw, the ancient capital of Poland, they were married in Paris, and came to California in 1852. At the time of Leopold's birth his father kept a small jewelry store at the corner of Third and Market streets, where the Nucleus building now stands. Young Lichtenberg commenced to study the violin under the tuition of Monsieur T. G. Beanjardin, at the age of eight years, receiving his first lesson on the 1st of May, 1870. His progress was most rapid, for we find him playing in public on June 1st, 1871, a difficult fantasia with variations, by Paganini, at a benefit given to R. Wunderlich, at Starr King's Church; and again on the 9th of April, 1872, at a benefit to Prof. Scott, where he rendered in brilliant style De Beriot's Fifth air. For some time after this very few benefit performances were given at which our young prodigy did not assist.

When the Polish violinist, Wieniaski, arrived here in June, 1873, he was visited at the Occidental Hotel by young Leopold and his father, and as Lichtenberg the elder had been born and raised within thirty miles of the native place of Wieniaski, the meeting was like that of old acquaintances. The result of this interview was, that Wieniaski promised to attend to the musical education of the boy at the Conservatory at Brussels, provided enough money was raised to defray his traveling expenses there, and an address to this effect was published in July, 1873.

To accomplish this (that is, the getting up of a purse for this purpose), a number of schemes were tried, the most successful being a soiree at the residence of Captain D. C. M. Goodsell, an enthusiastic collector of old violins, and a great admirer of the young violinist. Mrs. Goodsell deserves great praise for her adroit management of this soiree and securing so satisfactory a result—as it laid the foundation of the boy's future financial success. A trip to Sacramento was made in company with Captain Goodsell, who performed on the way some wonderful tricks in extracting the four-bit pieces from the pockets of the passengers on the boat and placing them in young Leopold's purse. Governor Booth was visited, who introduced the boy to some of the principal citizens of Sacramento, but altogether the trip to the Capital was not a success.

Members of the Bohemian Club, and others, at last interested themselves in sending Leopold to New York, where he was taken in hand by the rich bankers Seligman, and sent by them to Europe, where Wieniaski fulfilled his promise, and to-day, the violin in the hands of our young artist, is no longer dead wood and cat-gut, but a living thing giving expression to every human passion, and under the magical touch of his genius, emotions otherwise unspeakable find a tongue in the vibrating strings, and considering the age and experience of Master Leopold Lichtenberg, he stands now without a rival in the world of violin art.

The first concert will be given at Platt's Hall, on Monday, April 22d, upon which occasion we expect to see the hall crowded to its utmost capacity.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

Parties having anything to buy, sell, or trade, or business of any kind to be transacted, should call on CHARLES H. WHEELER, 229 Kearny Street. See advertisement.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouses opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

If your WATCH needs repairing, take it to I. TOEPLITZ, 235 Dupont Street, second door from Sutter. Work first-class, and prices reasonable.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from mint employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

The Bell Punch

The following is the substance of the Pennsylvania liquor punch bill, which provides that after January 1st, 1874, all dealers in spirituous liquors, vinous, or malt liquors, except such as are hereinafter excepted, shall pay a fine of one cent on each drink of alcoholic or vinous liquors or any admixture thereof, and a tax of one-half cent upon each drink of malt liquor sold or drank on the premises of any person licensed to sell at retail; said taxes to be paid into the county treasury. Every person or firm engaged in the sale of liquors at retail must have attached to the counter over which said liquors are sold one register "Malt Liquors," and one marked "Alcoholic Liquors," and designations to be marked on the face of said registers in letters not less than one inch in length. Each bell in said registers is to be struck by means of mechanism for that purpose, one for each drink sold. At each stroke of said bell is to be registered on a dial on said register the number of drinks sold. The register must have stamped on it, in legible letters, "Commonwealth of Pennsylvania," and also the coat-of-arms of this State, and the registers are to be furnished by the State to the County Treasurers of the different counties. Each person procuring a license to sell liquor at retail must obtain from the Treasurers the requisite number of registers, which will be furnished at cost, and attach the same to the counter on the premises where the liquor is to be sold, the same to be attached under the supervision of the Collector of Taxes. It is made the duty of all persons having a register on their premises to properly register the sale of all drinks in the presence of the purchasers thereof. If spirituous liquors are sold in larger quantities than by the drink the crank of the register must be revolved so as to register four drinks sold; for each pint of malt liquor sold the register must be made to mark two drinks sold.

VON HOLSTEIN'S new opera, "The Highlanders," made such a sensation at Mannheim, that its peculiar merits are attracting more than passing notice from musical people. The scene is laid in Scotland, the period about the time of Culloden.

TALK about female curiosity—it's all one-sided. Let one man stop on the street to spell out a sign on the top of a high building, and every other mother's son that goes by will stand still and stare for ten minutes trying to make out what the first idiot is looking at.

When a young pastor, two months in arrears on his board bill, sees his landlady with a vinegar like expression seated in the front pew, it can't be expected that his sermon will possess that eloquence which springs only from a mind unembarrassed by earthly cares.

A couple in Virginia City who had been engaged for a long time were one evening reading the paper together.

"Look, love," he said; "only twenty dollars for a suit of clothes."

"Is it a wedding suit?" she asked, looking naively at her lover.

"Oh no," he answered, "it's a business suit."

"Well, I mean business," she replied.

Barry Sullivan

About the year 1840, then quite a young man, Barry Sullivan formed a part of the stock company of Mr. Adams, who had built the Abercorn Theater, Paisley, and there he continued for a couple of seasons. Inexperienced as he then was, he soon, according to the Paisley Herald, became a great favorite with the weavers of Paisley, in those days great patrons of the theater, and not by any means bad judges of acting. Under the kindly and discriminating criticism of the West End and Charleston weavers, the young actor improved amazingly, and one of the first to discover his budding genius was the late Bailie Lamb, who vouchsafed his friendship and prognosticated his future eminence. At this time, Sheridan Knowles was engaged by Mr. Adams to appear in a series of his own plays, and he was ably supported by Mr. Sullivan in "The Hunchback," "The Wife," "William Tell," "The Love Chase," etc., and the theater was crowded night after night, including the elite of Paisley. These are old stories, and not very many who witnessed Mr. Sullivan's youthful efforts are left to tell the tale. —London Figaro.

An amateur preacher lately came to grief at Whithy, England, in the course of a sermon delivered in a theater there. He modestly observed that the devil had the house during the week, but that on the Sabbath the Lord took possession of it. A member of the stock troupe came forward, and, taking off his coat, asked the preacher whether he meant to be personal. The hint was enough, and the man of words intimated in effect that he thought the devil not a bad sort of a fellow after all.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. WANTED—Twenty Vases—Landscape.

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

Is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

One-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side this average depth is greater.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes. Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $400 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Riche's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Synopsis of Scenery and Incidents

ACT I. THE YOUNG DRAGOON. NANCY OF ROSEDALE. The Schemer. His plan exposed. A Rebuff. The Squire and his passion. Rosa and the young Lord. He would put his sieve in the milk, that's all. The mysterious and unwelcome visitor. Bravery of Kohl—"I'll call the servants"—the Lancers. Arthur's bravery and its reward. A situation. Almost a thrashing. Entrance of Elliott Gray. "I'll trouble you for that child." The Rescue. An awkward blow. "Hot again." "Ladies, let us go to breakfast." Tableau.

ACT II. THE BLOT. Old room in the lost wing. The gay villain and his tool. The plot for abduction thickens. The young Doctor and his love. Professional pride. A listener. Elliott's hand-the handage. "You'd better take it off again." "Good-night, Rosa." The midnight entrance of Miss. The secret spring and the casket. An alarm. The cheque. "Damnation, I'll be even with you yet." Coolness of Elliott. Tableau.

ACT III. THE LOST CHILD. Tabitha—the housekeeper. "Nothing of the sort." Bad pumping. The young Dragoon again. Lunch. The cupboard and the traps. Kohl in duress. "This comes of being a volunteer." Matthew tells his love. The brother's return. Sorrow of Matthew and constancy of Florence. Thrilling Tableau.

ACT IV. SCENE 1—LORD BATEMAN. The Music Lesson. The lecture and the tenderness of Tabitha. SCENE 2—THE GIPSY DELL (austere Scene of the play). The villain's purpose clear at last. The old willow. "Call the Crick" and his song of "Luddv Fuddy!" The Gypsies retire to rest. "All quiet." Call in a new Character. The young Lord once more. "Oh, Elliott have you come to take me home?" Surprised! A dangerous place. The Gipsy's attack, and "Up Lancers." Tableau.

ACT V. THE RIFLE BALL! SCENE 1—The Rogue at bay. The flowery tribute. Elliott once more. "Oh, Rosa, Rosa." SCENE 2—The mother is happy once more. Elliott sorrows and joys. Kohl's plot for the Widow. SCENE LAST—The Ball-Room at Rosedale. Kohl's "art of dancing." The hook. Mischief—Military Quadrille. "Hot again!" Grand Quadrille and Galop—new, by the Entire Company. Tableau.

EVANGELINE

DISTRIBUTION OF CHARACTERS

Evangeline, our heroine, a creature of impulse and an impetuous pet, pursued through love's impatient prompting, by Gabriel, and, with a view to elude her, by a whale. Miss Florence Ellis Catherine, the very mildest type of ante-nuptial mother-in-law—but wait. Mr. Harry Josephs Eulalie, Evangeline's 'confidante,' confidently hoping Woman's Rights. Miss Lizzie McCall Queen Boorioboola Gha, the King's much better adviser and super-viser of his whole conduct. Miss Viola Barnes Mary Ann, Evangeline's waiting-maid. Miss Hattie Richardson Gabriel, our hero, a fascinating and perambulating young lover—in point of fact a 'roaming' Romeo. Miss Lizzie Webster Le Blanc, a lawyer of the 'shyest' 'shyster' stamp, with a 'will' and a 'way' equally dark. Mr. Sol Smith Russell Capt. Dietrich, a Dutch mercenary in the British ranks, who shows no mercy, being a mercy-nary cuss. Mr. George S. Knight The Lone Fisherman, a patient and singularly taciturn toiler of the sea, with a natural tendency to 'hook' whatever comes within his reach. Mr. Harry Hunter Bazil, Evangeline's sire, whose vacillating mind is divided between the 'rental' of her prospective husband and his own 'parental' affection. Mr. E. S. Tarr King Boorioboola Gha, royal proprietor of the mid-African diamond fields, who, not being able to hear anything 'near,' occupies 'an ear' trumpet. Mr. Edwin S. Tarr Hazz Wagner, a spirit-al 'corporal' with undue 'corporeal' proclivities. Mr. Charles Eosine The Jailor, never without his key, vocal or instrumental, consequently always on the 'qui vive.' Mr. Horace Prall Grab { a couple of the King's 'cop.' { Mr. H. Voss, Jr. Runemin. { per 'colored' 'Cops' { Mr. Wm. Bullock Ringbolt. { a brace of conscientious deserters who { G. Everett Deadshake. { left their ship simply because they { S. R. Morse couldn't take it with them { The Policeman, called by some a peeler, possibly because he was never known to heed any 'appeal' a prisoner might make. 'Lucas a non,' and all that sort of thing. Mr. H. E. Dixey Lo, the poor Indian, the 'loest' and 'lonest' savage of them all. Mr. D. E. Steele The Headsmen, not a mimic of stupid people, but very clever at taking off 'blockheads.' Mr. S. M. Crane The Conductor, though given to much punching, better acquainted with the P. R. R. than the P. R. Miss Annie Lee The Heifer, specially imported from 'Cowes' Fishermen, Sailors, Acadian Peasants, Africans, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

This evening in "Rosedale" Miss Eleanor Carey will appear as 'Rosa Lee,' and Mr. Barton Hill will assume the character of 'Elliott Gray.' The play is familiar to our theater-goers, having been produced on different occasions on the California stage. It has always been a favorite with the fair sex, possibly on account of the opportunity it offers for display in dress. "Rosedale" will be continued during the week and also given on Saturday evening at the testimonial benefit to Manager Hill, whose untiring efforts in administering to the esthetic wants of the public, we must be sure substantially appreciated.

Grand Opera House

Important changes in the principal female characters in "Evangeline" will occur during the week, the most important being the assumption of the title role by Miss Catherine Lewis on Wednesday evening. This seems to us to be a most sensible move on the part of the management, and we expect to see a marked improvement in the audiences resulting therefrom. "The Corsair," now in rehearsal, will be the next attraction.

Bush Street Theater

Manager Locke, with a most commendable liberality, has tendered the whole of the present week as a grand complimentary benefit to the charitable fund of the F. Fire Department. "Humpty Dumpty" will be given as the attraction, with new tricks and features introduced. On Monday week the Haverly Minstrels will open.

Emerson's Opera House

No play was ever produced on any stage, but which the press has been more unanimous in opinion than Mr. Denman Thompson's plain and durable "Joshua Whitcomb." We have not yet seen one diverse or 'cism' regarding it. Unlike most stage presentations, the characters are not overdrawn but actual life pictures. We trust that Denman Thompson's engagements will carry him across the Atlantic so that he may regulate the ideas of our English columns on the subject of domestic life in New England. "Joshua Whitcomb" will be before the public for this week only, on Monday next a new play will be produced of a character quite different from that which now enters upon its sixth week of successful patronage.

Baldwin's Theater

The English version of "Le Centenaire" was given here last evening to a fair audience. Howard's society play, "Saratoga," will be given to-night, bringing out the full force of the Union Square Company's wardrobe.

The Fountain

The programme selected for the free concert this evening at this favorite place of amusement and restaurant embraces some of the most popular pieces of German composition. Savinier gives a cornet solo, which will be one of the attractive features in the entertainment.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

THERE will be no Herold Matinee this week.

GEORGE RIGNOLD will play in this city in July.

THE next Herold Matinee will be given on Wednesday, April 24th.

"OUR BOYS" will be played in Paris in French during the Exposition.

It is reported that Sothern cares no more for a cent than he does for two and a half.

MISS AUGUSTA DARGON will make her debut on the California stage on Monday, April 22d.

"THE REMARKABLE HISTORY OF LISSET" is the remarkable name of Leonard Grover's new play.

Is the Argonaut in earnest when it calls Misses Harrison and Plaisted and Messrs. Keene and Mestayer "Hoodlums!"

AN Eastern man has found out that Dr. Mary Walker's peculiarity is caused by her having been born in Middlesex County.

EXPECT something better than usual when the Haverly Minstrels open at the Bush Street Theater next Monday night.

HERR GOFFRIE'S CONCERT, at Pacific Hall, this evening. One of his selections, Ernest's "Elegie," is one of the gems of violin composition.

MISS CATHERINE LEWIS has signed a contract with the Evangeline Company, and will appear Wednesday evening as 'Evangeline.' We hail the improvement as one much needed.

ONE firm on Front Street bought $50 worth of tickets for "Joshua Whitcomb's" entertainment, which they distributed among their employees—so much for 'Uncle Joshua's' popularity.

THE remarkable uniform worn by Mr. Geo. S. Knight, in "Evangeline," did actually belong to General Butler, who, on discarding the same, gave it to his servant, who sold it to Mr. Knight.

THE character of 'Elliott Gray,' in "Rosedale," is one in which Mr. Barton Hill made a complete failure, when played by him in Philadelphia, some three years ago. It will be played all the week at the California Theater.

"THE DELUGE" will be placed on the stage at Haverly's Theater, Chicago, this evening. The "Trip to the Moon" has had a good run of two weeks there, and our California Theater friends have been well received by the Chicago public.

THE Musical May Festival next month promises to be the great musical event of the season. Over 1,000 voices will be in the chorus, and the whole concert will be telephoned to Oakland—arrangements to that effect being now under consideration.

ONE hundred and fifty dollars a week was the tempting bait Mr. Rice, of the Evangeline Company, threw to Miss Alice Harrison—and it took—and Alice will be ours no more; she will join the Evangeline Company in June next, when her present contract expires.

IF a woman wants to faint in comparative safety, Maine is the place to do it in. A woman fainted in a car on a Maine railway, and thirteen liquor flasks were promptly placed at her disposal. In this connection it may incidentally be mentioned that there were just thirteen men in the car.

"La Dame aux Camelias"

The story of the production of this celebrated play, one of the most famous pages in the history of the modern drama, has been too often recounted, and it would take too long in the telling to admit of its repetition here. Suffice it to say that this remarkable drama, the greatest theatrical success of the nineteenth century, was tossed from hand to hand, its production delayed by the opposition of managers, actors and the censorship, till well-nigh three years had elapsed from the date of its composition. Written in feverish haste in the seclusion of a country-house, on the backs of letters, scraps of wrapping-paper, etc., in the frenzy of an inspiration that could not wait to seek for better materials, it is the only production of this cold, concentrated, polished talent which bears the stamp of the fervor of youth and the impetus of actual genius. It shakes one's faith in the intelligence of dramatic managers and critics to find how thoroughly and sincerely they disbelieved in the ultimate success of this fine play. One person alone, the kindly and genial Dejazet, had full faith in the work, and encouraged the young author with her warm and enthusiastic praises, aiding his first steps in the pathway of dramatic literature, as she afterwards did those of his rival and fellow academician, Victorien Sardou. From the hour that the curtain fell on the last act of "La Dame aux Camelias" the younger Dumas had an acknowledged place in the narrow legion of the successful. Play after play followed from his brilliant pen, all eagerly competed for by the Parisian managers, all warmly received by the public, all winning a certain measure of success—some achieving a veritable triumph. And yet it may be doubted if he really possesses le don du theater. His plays are less remarkable as plays than as vehicles for his peculiar ideas about social matters and his studies of social questions, set forth with all the charm and grace of his polished diction and keen wit. Certain passages from his dramas have attained to more celebrity than have the dramas themselves, such as the theory of "la ligne" in "Les Idées de Madame Aubrey," and that of the "vibron" in "L'Etranger." His characters talk brilliantly, but he gives them nothing to do during at least half of their allotted scenes. Even in "Le Demi-Monde," in some respects the best of his dramatic works, this want of action is very apparent during the first three acts. It needs the stormy scene between Madame d'Ange and her soldier-lover in the fourth act to wake up the audience and to start the action. But the great defect about all the works of the younger Dumas is that he is too determined a realist. His photographs—he does not create. He paints with a pencil well-nigh as accurate and pitiless as that of Zola, though his types are taken from the upper ranks of society, and not from the workshop and the gutter. Yet they are scarcely less loathsome and less repellent.—Lippincott's Magazine for April.

Female Minstrelsy

It has been said that a general idea of the characteristics of most people can be gathered from an inspection of the houses which they have inhabited. This holds good with the Rentz Female Minstrel Troupe, who left Piper's Opera House a week ago Saturday. During the time they had possession of the dressing-rooms they covered the walls with obscene charcoal sketches. Some of these drawings were simply beastly, a disgusting proof of the depths of degradation to which foul-minded women can sink. The day after they left, Mr. Piper was forced to whitewash the walls before the ladies of Mr. Byron's combination and the regular troupe could be admitted.—Virginia Chronicle, April 9.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

Parties having anything to buy, sell, or trade, or business of any kind to be transacted, should call on CHARLES H. WHEELER, 229 Kearny Street. See advertisement.

Go to the "P. CENTEMER" KID GLOVE STORE, No. 3 Kearny Street (entrance on Geary) and select your gloves.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouse opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

If your WATCH needs repairing, take it to I. TOEPLITZ, 225 Dupont Street, second door from Butler. Work first-class, and prices reasonable.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from mini employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

PLUNDER

It is stated that the Irish play called "Dionel Maugh," which is a Welch name, was written by two Frenchmen, translated by an English woman and a Jew, and produced in America, where it was a dead failure—another illustration of the old adage about "too many cooks." Now, if Boucicault had stolen that play direct from some Frenchman, it would have succeeded.

It was a little embarrassing to the stranger. He entered the church just as they were singing a hymn, and the sexton, hymn-book in hand, as he pointed him into a pew, kept on abstractedly singing. "Over there, over there." "Over where?" was the whispered inquiry. "Over there, over there," sang the sexton, still pointing in reply, and then the stranger ineffectually subsided into the first empty pew.

Adelaide, the Adorable, made $72,000 in the United States last season, and so far, in London, she has cleared about $12,000. We are sorry to be forced to infer from these figures that the balance of fools is on our side. Adelaide, it is said, will return hither next season. No wonder. She has introduced a new bit of business in the balcony scene of "Romeo and Juliet," which is worth noting. She accompanies Juliet's sweet "good-nights" with leaves plucked from the spreading foliage, passionately kissed and thrown to Romeo.

THE ransom originally demanded by the bold brigands who, in January, carried off Signor Parisi from the large town of Palermo, and from the neighborhood of his father's house, was $120,000. They kept him blindfolded eleven days and nights in a dark hole or grotto, with an armed brigand constantly guarding him; but he was well fed, and had a good cigar once a day. When they found that their demand was too great, they compromised and released him for $2,000 in gold and $7,200 in bank notes; but as the numbers of the bank notes are known at every bank in Sicily, they overreached themselves in that matter.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street.

The attention of our lady friends and the fair sex of San Francisco is directed to an event of much importance to them, namely: The Spring Opening of the MILLINERY of MME. CONSTANT, at No. 314 Sutter Street. A new style of French Pattern Bonnets has just been received, which require to be seen and tried on to be appreciated, as no description could do them justice.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM Importer of ARTISTS and WAX FLOWER MATERIALS, No. 219 Post St. Free Art Gallery. Works of Local Artists on Exhibition and for sale, James Hamilton's last works on exhibition.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

An extensive assortment of SPRING STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of C. HERRMANN, 402 Kearny Street and 910 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of last season, and superior articles for sale.

Clara Louise

It has been broadly affirmed that the alleged unpleasantness between Kellogg, Cary and Roze is, in reality, a myth, and rumor goes so far as to assert that Strakosch is responsible for all the stories, which he sets afloat simply for advertising purposes. The wily Max would doubtless be willing to secure advertising at any cost, but we do not believe that the stories of Clara Louise Kellogg's ill-temper are mere fiction. There are too many who can bear witness to the unpleasant disposition of that young lady to leave the true origin of these stories in doubt for a moment. It is certainly a great misfortune that a lady so gifted and so far removed from any reasonable occasion for jealousy should render herself obnoxious to everybody with whom she has business relations. It is high time that her better sense, if she has any, should assert itself.—Chicago S. E. Herald.

Mrs. BOWERS, the most popular actress in California, says: "I was eating dinner when some one tapped me on the shoulder and I heard a voice say, 'I am J. W. Rover, and have just been hanged at Reno, but I am innocent.'" Until this visit Mrs. Bowers declares that she did not know that Rover had been hanged.

George Cruikshank

writer in the Chicago Saturday Evening Herald tells us that he was almost a in the enjoyment of fun. A holiday version would give him countless subscribers for sketches. Never at rest for a moment, he would in the evening seize on a scrap of paper at hand, and with wonderful rapidity sketch away. "Do you remember the little old woman with a long nose in the poke bonnet? There she is. I was for the fiddler at the corner. Here is for the pieman," until the paper being up, he added his quaint and conspicuous sketch, and threw away sketch after sketch for any one's acceptance, with generous profusion. An old friend of his early days: "I have a dear little girl quietly thrust a piece of paper almost beneath his pen. He would fill it with quaint forms, and then suddenly turn round, and, without speaking, cover the face of the blushing child with his huge whiskers, whilst he kissed her. He had made happy with a comic sketch. His memory on the subject of places where the finest beer was sold was also tenacious, and the day's excursion or the evening's walk was often deterred on in reference to these particular localities. His wild spirits made him an uncertain guest and a dangerous companion; for his pranks were innumerable. He would suddenly dash across the road, with the gravest and most gentlemanly bow to an old lady or gentleman, the most ridiculous and absurd injuries; then, assuming deafness in the midst of a furious burst of indignation at the boasted individual, he would sit with a quiet and gentlemanly air, each of thanks for the information so kindly afforded him!

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed in well selected reading matter. An one side of these papers is printed in "San Francisco," only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. one-sixth cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 133 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Rhine's Fashion Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHURBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

MONEY SAVED BY USING STEVENOT'S BORAX WATER

No Housekeeper Should be Without It!

The best thing known for washing Flannel superior to anything for cleaning Silk and Velvet; the most cleansing for the body, for healing eruptions of the skin; when used as a shampoo, will cleanse the scalp and prevent the hair from falling out; when mixed with starch is used for glazing shirts and other linens. By washing shelves or cupboards with this solution, ants and cockroaches and other insects will be driven away. Borax is the best thing known for curing rheumatism.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.
Gentlemen—The artists of the Kellogg Cary Opera Company feel it an honor and a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so soft and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action on the keys every requirement of the most exacting musician. We heartily commend them in the highest terms.

Synopsis of Scenery and Incidents

ACT I. THE YOUNG DRAGON. MANOR OF ROSEDALE. The Schener. His plan exposed. A Rebuff. The Squire and his passion. Rosa and the young Lord. He would put his sleeve in the milk, but's all. The mysterious and unwelcome visitor. Bravery of Kobb—"I'll call the servants"—the Lancers. Arthur's bravery and its reward. A situation. Almost a thrashing. Entrance of Elliott Gray. "I'll trouble you for that child." The Rescue. An awkward blow. "Hot again." "Ladies, let us go to breakfast." Tableau.

ACT II. THE BRAND! Old room in the lost wing. The gay villain and his tool. The plot for abduction thickens. The young Doctor and his love. Professional pride. A listener. Elliott's hand—the bandage. "You'd better take it off again." "Good-night, Rosa." The midnight entrance of Miles. The secret spring and the casket. An alarm. The cheque. "Damnation, I'll be even with you yet." Coolness of Elliott. Tableau.

ACT III. THE LOST CHILD. Tabitha—the housekeeper. "Nothing of the sort." Bad pumping. The young Dragon again. Lunch. The cupboard and the trars. Kobb in duance. "This comes of being a volunteer." Matthew tells his love. The brother's return. Sorrow of Matthew and constancy of Florence. Thrilling Tableau.

ACT IV. SCENE 1—LORD BATEMAN. The Music Lesson. The lecture and the tenderness of Tabitha. SCENE 2—THE GIPSY DELL (sensational Scene of the play). The villain's purpose clear at last. The old willow. "Call the Crack" and his song of "Luddy Fuddy!" The Gypsies retire to rest. "All quiet." Call in a new Character. The young Lord once more. "Oh, Elliott have you come to take me home?" Surprised! A dangerous place. The Gipsy's attack, and "Up Lancers." Tableau.

ACT V. THE RIFLE BALL! SCENE 1—The Rogue at bay. The flowery tribute. Elliott once more. "Oh, Rosa, Rosa." SCENE 2—The mother is bappy once more. Elliott sorrows and joys; Kobb's plot for the Widow. SCENE LAST—The Ball-Room at Rosedale. Kobb's "art of dancing." The book. Mischief—Military Quadrille. "Hot again!" Grand Quadrille and Galop—new, by the Entire Company. Tableau.

EVANGELINE

DISTRIBUTION OF CHARACTERS

Evangeline, our heroine, a creature of impulse and an impetuous pet, pursued through love's impatient prompting, by Gabriel, and, with a view to eadacious contingencies—by a whale. Miss Florence Ellis Catherine, the very mildest type of ante-nuptial mother-in-law—but wait.....Mr. Harry Josephs Eulalie, Evangeline's "confidante," confidently hoping Woman's for Rights.....Miss Lizzie McCall Queen Boorioboola Gha, the King's much better adviser and super-vicer of his whole conduct.....Miss Viola Barnes Mary Ann, Evangeline's waiting-maid.....Miss Hattie Richardson Gabriel, our hero, a fascinating and perambulating young lover—in point of fact a "roaming" Romeo.....Miss Lizzie Webster Le Blanc, a lawyer of the "shyster" stamp, with a "will" and a "way" equally dark.....Mr. Sol Smith Russell Capt. Dietrich, a Dutch mercenary in the British ranks, who shows no mercy, being a mercy-nary cuss.....Mr. George S. Knight The Lone Fisherman, a patient and singularly taciturn toiler of the sea, with a natural tendency to "hook" whatever comes within his reach.....Mr. Harry Hunter Bazil, Evangeline's sire, whose vacillating mind is divided between the "rental" of her prospective husband and his own "parental" affection.....Mr. E. S. Tarr King Boorioboola Gha, royal proprietor of the mid-African diamond fields, who, not being able to hear anything "near," occupies "an ear" trumpet.....Mr. Edwin S. Tarr Hans Wagner, a spirit-and "corporal" with undue "corporeal" proportions.....Mr. Chas. Rosine The Jallor, never without his key, vocal or instrumental, consequently always on the "qui" vive.....Mr. Horace Frail Grab.....a couple of the King's "cop".....Mr. H. Voss, Jr. Runemin.....per colored "Coppe".....Mr. Wm. Bullock Ringbolt.....a brace of conscientious deserters who.....G. Everett Deadshake.....left their ship simply because they.....S. R. Morse The Policeman, called by some a peeler, possibly because he was never known to heed any "appeal" a prisoner might make, "Lucas a non," and all that sort of thing.....Mr. H. E. Dixey Lo, the poor Indian, the "loest" and "lonest" savage of the land.....Mr. D. R. Steele The Headsman, not a mimic of stupid people, but very clever at taking off "blockheads".....Mr. S. M. Crane The Conductor, though given to much punching, better acquainted with the P. R. R. than the P. R. R.....Miss Annie Lee The Heifer, specially imported from "Cowes".....Fishermen, Sailors, Soldiers, Acadian Peasants, Africans, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

"Rosendale" is one of those standard plays about which a manager can never make much mistake in placing on the stage in the hands of a good company. As played at the California last evening, it was more enjoyable than anything given during the past month of star engagements. Barton Hill is more at home and appears to better advantage in the character of "Elliott Gray" than in anything else we have ever seen him. Miss Eleanor Carey is quite bappy in her conception and assumption of "Kiss Leigh," and the rest of the cast is well filled up. As "Rosendale" will be continued during the week, we will have occasion to further notice it.

Grand Opera House

"Evangeline" will be strengthened tomorrow evening through the assumption of the title role by Miss Catherine Lewis, from the rendering of which character she will no doubt gather fresh laurels. "The Corsair" is underlined as the next "Opera bouffe," by the present company, in which Mr. Richard Golden will appear in his great character of "Ynssep." "Evangeline" this evening and till further notice.

Bush Street Theater

The present week will positively be the last of Nick Roberts' Humpty-Dumpty Pantomime Company. The most celebrated and very highly spoken of Haverly Minstrels will open on Monday, and we may expect to see something better in that line of business than anything we have had since the days of Birch, Wambold and Backus. This week of "Humpty-Dumpty" is for the benefit of the Charitable Fund of the S. F. Fire Department.

Emerson's Opera House

Denman Thompson and company this evening and during the week in "Joshua Whitcomb." Reserved seats for Saturday matinee, which will be the last of "Uncle Joshua," may be procured at the box-office; also for the new piece to be placed on the stage on Monday evening next.

Baldwin's Theater

"Saratoga" was produced here last evening by the Union Square Company in the most gorgeous style, and will run for the balance of the week. On Monday, April 22, "A Celebrated Case" will be given.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

VENIE CLANCY will rejoin the "Evangeline" troupe in July.

THERE are thirty-three "Uncle Tom" Companies in the United States.

CHARLES R. THORNE withdrew from the Union Square Company in Cincinnati.

THE cost of transporting the "Uncle Tom" Company of Jarrett & Palmer across the Atlantic will be $5,000. The overland trip of the "Evangeline" Company cost Rice $4,500.

MR. J. C. WILLIAMSON has purchased a play by Joaquin Miller. The hero is a gold-seeker of '49, and there is, of course, a vehicle for the display of Miss Maggie Moore's accomplishments. The play will be brought out next Fall, and the Park Theater is spoken of in this connection.

JOHN McCULLOUGH will open as "Spartacus," in "The Gladiator," instead of "Othello," on April 22d, at the Grand Opera House, New York, supported by Joseph Weelock, Harry Langdon, Edwin Price, M. J. Jordan, S. L. Mason, E. D. Tannehill, Stella Boniface and Marie Prescott.

MAX STRAKOSCH is said to have made Marie Roze a very advantageous offer for an opera season of eight months, commencing next September. It is also reported that a Boston Lecture and Musical Bureau have offered Madame Roze $40,000 to sing one hundred concerts in a period of six months.

IT is now reported that Miss Kellogg has renewed her engagement with Strakosch for another year. Mr. Strakosch and Miss Kellogg will spend the summer in Europe. Previous to this they go to Mexico. When they return from Europe they will open in New York—probably in November, in "Paul and Virginia."

MISS GABRIELLE DE SACLD is spoken of by Eastern reviewers as an artist of great merit. She has succeeded Miss Maud Grainger in the character of "Mrs. General Clinton" in "Our Bachelors," at the Park Theater, New York, she made her debut three years ago at Booth's Theater as "Princess Katherine" in "Henry V."

MISS ELMA DELARO, the talented young mezzo-soprano of the Oates Comic Opera Company, was the recipient of an elegant cluster diamond ring, from her Boston friends, during the company's recent engagement at the Globe. Miss Delaro is a native of Nashville, Tennessee, and of prominent family connections. She made her first appearance in concert some four years ago, after completing a course of three years' hard study, under some of Boston's best teachers. She subsequently appeared in opera, and judging from her recent performances of "Mlle. Lange" and the "Princess of Trebizonde," we should say her success was established beyond a doubt. Her cordial reception in those characters last week was no less deserving than it was flattering. — Boston Society, April 6th.

MR. HENRY IRVING's new character of Louis XI., is thus graphically described: "A more complete study of unquem factus, of a loathsome, yet a marvelously clever character, has not been seen upon the stage for many a year. Richard of Gloucester was an angel compared with the gloating sinner of the French play. Devilish craft and subtle malice find their culminating point in Mr. Irving's picture of the superstitions king. The actor's tragic intensity was only equalled by his grim comedy. He enjoyed his crimes, and laughed sardonically at them. He threatened, and bullied, and cringed, and cozened, without the least suspicion of trickery. He was old, and yet he conquered his age. He was cruel, under the garb of saintliness. In a word, he was the prince-liest hypocrite ever seen."

AN English society writer says: "I hear that at the late drawing-room the Lord Chamberlain insisted on cutting off the 'shoulder straps' of a dress worn by one of the ladies desirous of showing her respect to the Queen, on the ground that too high dresses were allowed. It is not often, nowadays, that we hear complaints of dresses being too high; on the contrary, the general fault found (by, at all events, members of the gentler sex) is that dresses are worn too decollete, and sometimes they are indeed low."

Folly of Fatalism

It sounds almost like a jest, and yet it is a grave and veritable fact, that there is no creed so fatal to the holder as that of the fatalist. Nothing can be so hurtful to a man's welfare, or so destructive of his energy and force of character, as the belief that he has no power over his own destiny, and that do what he may he cannot alter in the slightest degree the ordained course of events. No person is so utterly weak and worthless as he who is content to fold his hands and say with the Italian: "Che sara sara" (what will be, will be). To believe that

"There's a divinity that shapes our ends, Rough-hew them how we will."

and not only to believe it, but to consistently act up to that belief, would, unless we are very much mistaken, soon lead us to surmise that Destiny had intended us to become the inmates of a work house. Fortunately there are few, if any, in our country who persistently regulate their conduct by such a creed as this, though there are many who are fond of trusting to Providence, and who, like Mr. Micawber, are always waiting for something to turn up. For such persons nothing ever does turn up, and in the end we generally find them grieving bitterly over their "ill luck," and complaining that their neighbors are much more fortunate. Possibly they will tell us that the stars under which they were born are to blame, or that by some mischance or other Providence has not provided for them in the handsome manner they could have wished. They forget the aphorism of the Latin poet, Appian: "Faber quisque fortunae suae" (Each man is the artificer of his own fortune); or, to use the words of Bacon: "The mold of a man's fortune is chiefly in his own hands." Dame Providence does not build bridges or erect houses; we have never seen her plowing the fields or manufacturing apparel, and the gossip we hear about her leads us to suspect that she is only fatalism passing under a different name. Like Penelope with her web, she continually baffles our eager expectations by undoing at one time the good she has done for us at another. Since the days of that inexorable trinity, Clotho, Lachesis, and Atropos, the Fates have borne many names and have wandered through many lands, but they are still the same ill-omened daughters of Nox and Erebus, the offspring of night and darkness, of ignorance and superstition. Omens, augury, astrology, the belief in destiny and predestination, portents, providence, fortune, and fortune-telling, inevitable necessity, or extreme necessitarianism (such as Robert Owen believed in)—all these are but different forms of fatalism; they are the various costumes that she has during past ages been pleased to put on. With the ancient Greeks, under the name of Moira or Destiny, Fate was held to be more powerful than the gods, and stronger than Zeus himself. The literature of the Latin race is colored to the very core by the fatalistic creed, the Turk and the Persian, the Mussulman and the Hindoo, still believe that

"On two days it stands not to run from thy grave—
The appointed and the unappointed day.
On the first neither balm nor physic can save,
Nor thee on the second the universe slay."
—Tinsley's Magazine.

A YOUNG lady had coquetted until the victim was completely exhausted. He rose to go away. She whispered, as she accompanied him to the door, "I shall be at home next Sunday evening." "So shall I," he replied.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new water-rooms opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

If your WATCH needs repairing, take it to I. TOEPLITZ, 725 Dupont Street, second door from Butler. Work first-class, and prices reasonable.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from mint employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. Their establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

A Telephone Tempest

What an Excitable Frenchman has to say of the Invention—Proving that a Poor Italian Discovers it 11 Years Ago

There is a Frenchman in Buffalo who disputes the claims of Bell and Edison on the invention of the telephone. Monsieur Franconi is a modest man, what he knows he prides himself upon, and when he expresses an opinion 'tis an opinion as is an opinion. He says, in a quiet way, to his friends, that the novel telephone is old enough to be bald-headed, and when among his cronies he is disposed to dilate upon the credulousness of Americans, and cite as an evidence their perfect faith in the inventive powers of the men who have turned the telephone loose upon us. A Buffalo News reporter met the old man and ventured to dispute the accuracy of his knowledge. He exploded in a torrent of French expletives, and seizing the scribbler by the throat he hurried him through a dark alley into a repellent-looking tenement house, and in a fever of passion he dragged from an old cupboard a bundle of French papers. On the top of this pile was a dim looking sheet, which proved to be the Petit Journal of Paris. The date was November 22, 1865, and in it there was a paragraph, encircled with the dingy hue of stove blacking. "There," said Franconi, "there is the proof that Bell and Edison have stolen their thunder. Look at that." Here is the paragraph that set the Frenchman's brain on fire:

DISCOVERY OF THE TRANSMISSION OF SOUND AND WORDS BY THE TELEGRAPH

A new discovery, which will have immense results in applications that can be made to the industry, has long been added to the number of wonders of this century, it is the transmission of the sounds of the voice by telegraph.

The author of this discovery is Signor Manzetti, of Aosta, the inventor also of a celebrated automaton. He transmits words with the ordinary telegraph wire, and with an instrument more simple than that which serves to-day for dispatches.

From this henceforth two merchants may communicate instantaneously their business affairs from London to Calcutta, infusing each other of their speculations, agreements, etc. Numerous experiments have been made that have completely succeeded, and confirm the practical possibility of this discovery. It transmits also perfectly the sounds of music, etc., etc.

He hardly gave the reporter time to read this before he loaded him down with Italian papers of twelve years ago, full of laudatory notices of the invention of Manzetti. Franconi, who is of Italian extraction, claimed the glory of the discovery for Italy.—Ex.

ET CETERA

THE Shah of Persia received a present of a Krupp cannon from the Czar of Russia. When it arrived in Teheran it was a novelty to the Persians. The Shah and his court assembled to see it discharged, and a big crowd was there. It was pointed in the direction of a village a few miles off, and fired. Shortly after, a messenger arrived in haste, with the news that the ball had struck and demolished the mosque of the village and killed a lot of the inhabitants. Upon the authority of Lieut. Derby, a somewhat similar incident occurred years ago at a Western fort in the United States. A new method of using field artillery—only once by an ingenious army officer. A mountain howitzer was strapped to the saddle of a mule, loaded, and pointed at a target. As soon as the mule heard the fizzing of the fuse he turned round to see what was the matter, and the result was that he commenced to describe a circle with the loaded cannon on his back. The time that was made by that crowd of soldiers getting out of the range of that gun is not on record; but Derby says that they did not reflect upon the high price of uniforms as they dumped themselves over the bluff into the river. The gun went off, and the ball struck the fort and scared the Major's wife into convulsions.—Ex.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Out-sides," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 130 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Rough's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to O. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.
Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.:

Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Taking it as a whole, "Rosedale" is the most enjoyable drama that has been placed on the California stage for the past months. The cast of characters has been made with good judgment, and the stage setting and scenery is all that could be desired. "Rosedale" during the week and for Mr. Barton Hill's benefit on Saturday. On Monday, Miss Augusta Dargon will appear in the title role of "Mary Stuart."

Grand Opera House

This evening Miss Catherine Lewis will appear as 'Evangeline' and it is more than probable that further remodeling of the cast will be made shortly. This change is judicious, and will soon be made apparent through the increased attendance. "Evangeline" this evening and till further notice.

Bush Street Theater

Manager Haverly arrives this evening. There is no doubt about the advent of his company being the next sensation in San Francisco. It is more than likely that standing-room only will be announced during the whole of the coming week.

Emerson's Opera House

"Joshua Whitcomb" this evening and the rest of the week. The intrinsic worth of 'Uncle Josh' has been tested and found to be 100 cents on the dollar. No discount there.

Baldwin's Theater

"Saratoga" is drawing good houses. It is cast to the full strength of the wardrobes of the present company, and is altogether most elegantly placed on the stage. The scenery reflects great credit upon the artist. Considering the size of the canvass, the perspective is handled in a most masterly manner. In the lunch scene in the woods the loul ensemble is the most artistic stage picture ever placed on exhibition at Baldwin's. Leaving out a few passages much too broad to be in good taste, "Saratoga" is the best play yet given by the Union Square Company. "Saratoga" this evening.

The Fountain

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

Miss Ada Gray left for the East this A. M.

J. H. Haverly, of Haverly's Minstrels, will arrive to-night.

Miss Augusta Dargon, the next star at the California Theater, will arrive by to-night's overland train.

A Russian recently presented Nilsson with a $5,000 silver urn. He must have been a real earnest admirer.

Is the new play which Mr. Denman Thompson produces next week Mr. Gates, the tenor, and Miss Hattie Moore, the alto, will participate.

An Eastern editor inserts a verse from scripture every day in his news column, under the supposition that it will be news to the most of his readers.

The "Celebrated Beecher Case" has been re-produced in Brooklyn, and it will for some time receive a daily addition of new incidents, illustrations, etc.

The Duvallie Sisters, the premieres danseuses forte, who played a short engagement at the Grand Opera House a year or two ago, have returned from the East.

When "East Lynne" was played lately, at the Royal Hawaiian Theater, Honolulu, Mr. John Jack assumed three characters in the cast; Miss Annie Firman and Miss Ingles two each. A benefit, under the auspices of the Hawaiian Caledonian Club, was given Miss Annie Firman, and a selection of Scottish songs was given in costume by some of the members with much eclat.

The dilettanti of Paris are going wild over the success of a new tenor named Sellier, who recently made his debut at the Grand Opera in "William Tell." He is said to be the best 'William Tell' ever heard in Paris. He was porter in a wine and liquor house, when Edmond About, the journalist, passing by as Sellier was singing an aria, one day, was charmed by his voice, and invited him to his rooms, where he was at once tendered an engagement.—Ex.

The California artist, Mr. William Keith, contemplates a visit to London, and it is just likely that while there he will find out that it will be greatly to his pecuniary advantage to make a permanent residence in the great metropolis. He has sketches from nature in possession sufficient for years of elaboration and reproduction on large canvass. The large painting now on his easel, of a mountain view near the head waters of the American River, is yet for sale, although he has received a good offer from an English buyer; but he would prefer leaving it in California.

Mattie Field, whom old residents of this section, as well as California, remember as an actress of a considerable degree of merit, died in Vienna, Frederick County, Maryland, on the 8th of last month. During the past few years Mrs. Field has become widely known as a lecturer and was engaged as such up to within a few days of her death. She was a lady of remarkable intelligence, fascinating conversational powers, and a genial, whole-souled character, which drew to her the kindest regards of a large circle of friends and acquaintances.—Gold Hill News, April 15.

In connection with the May Festival, at the Mechanics' Pavilion, Mr. Ladd, of the American District Telegraph Co., at the suggestion of Mr. S. Bugbee, is in correspondence with the Eastern owners of the only monster telephone in the United States of sufficient power to transmit a volume of sound equal to what will be produced at the coming concert, on the subject of obtaining the use of the complete apparatus for the purpose of utilizing its telephonic power in transporting to the ears of Oakland the grand chorus of 2,000 voices, with orchestral accompaniment. It might be well, in the event of the telephone being obtained, to reverse the arrangement during one of the days of the concert—that is, let the orchestra perform at Dietz Hall, and the audience listen in the pavilion.

The Eureka Sentinel of the 12th current, in noticing the Haverly Minstrels, speaks thus of George Thatcher: "He has already done what would almost be considered an impossibility—opened a new vein in the Ethiopian business—does not depend upon acrobatic training or burlesque for effect, but tells his little stories in a quiet, unaffected way and quaint manner that simply convulses the audience. Why they should laugh seems a matter of surprise to him, and when it does penetrate the brain that there is anything amusing in his remarks or odd in his speech, he receives the idea with a sly twinkle of the eye and an inward chuckle, that sends the people off into a roar again and again. He is as droll and inimitable in his way as the most famous comedian that we can call to mind, and we have an idea that he will yet bloom forth in white on theatrical boards."

The concert of Leopold Lichtenberg, announced for next Monday evening, at Platt's Hall, we look upon as an event worthy of the earnest notice of all lovers of music in California. We predict that future reviewers will record him as the first great violinist that America has yet produced, and we believe that before many years our prediction will be verified. It is only advanced students of the violin who know the immense and inexhaustible capabilities and difficulties of that instrument. Paganini, one of the great masters, remarked that it required a lifetime to learn the rudiments of the violin, and a student could in that case only expect to become an accomplished player after the end of a lifelong study. The systematized method of Conservatory tuition was not in vogue in the days of Paganini, else he would have modified his remark. Without any disparagement of our resident violinists, many of whom are most accomplished orchestral players, we believe that the boy Lichtenberg stands alone as a soloist and possesses absolute genius as a violinist.

The Chicago Daily News speaks thus of our friends of the California Theater Company as they appeared at Haverly's in "A Trip to the Moon":

"The company is a very good one, the chorus excellent, the singers far above the burlesque average, and the dancing alone worth double the price of admission. There is not an inferior artist in the whole play, and the only pity is that they had not better material to work with. Miss Alice Harrison is naive, piquant, sly, roguish, and truly come at times, has a rollicking way of rolling out her part and an independence in uttering absurd gags that are irresistible. In boisterous humor she reminds us of the by-gone hoydens of the stage; in suggestive gestures she more resembles the once famous Rigboche than any actress we have seen; and in grace of action, freedom of limb, and grace of step she approaches Vestris in her palmy days. She has a good voice, and sings her songs in such a manner as would be acceptable even if her musical abilities were more moderate. Mr. Keene is a splendid burlesque actor, but somewhat too boisterous, and his merriment would be more telling if a trifle more subdued. Mr. Harrison plays the King as extravaganzas king should be played—after the true Bartholomew Fair pattern—and secures a very full share of the public applause. The ballet is superb in dress, drill and appearance, and the dancing of the premiers, Mlle. De Rosa and Palladino, is the best which has been seen on Chicago boards for years. The scenery is gorgeous, and some of the sets are studies of composition and color."

A PECULIAR looking genius stepped into a hardware store in Washington the other day and said: "I've been here six months, and, so help me gracious, I haven't found a decent barber yet. The best of them haul and scrape against the grain, and scarify a fellow till you can't rest. I'll have no more of it in mine. Hand down the best kit of shavin' tools you have in the shop." It was Dr. Mary Walker.—Derrick.

Piping off a Tragedian

Mr. Pope Encounters a Merciless Female Critic in Carson

Charles Pope played "Richard III." to a tremendous house in Carson on Saturday evening. Colly Cibber's acting version was of course used. Although containing Shakespeare's exact language, the text is arranged so as to be better adapted to the stage. It opens with a scene from "Henry VI." When the curtain rose a lady was noticed in the front row with a volume of Shakespeare in her lap ready to pounce upon any inaccuracies in the text. She had her finger on the line, "Now is the Winter of our discontent," etc., but to her utter astonishment "Glowler" did not enter, but instead a young man with a pale moustache came in. Then another fellow joined him and began to talk about a military row that had taken place somewhere in the Western part of England. The lady bent scrutinizingly over her book and turned over the leaves to be sure that she was right, and then thinking possibly that there was some mistake in the programme, grabbed it up and read it carefully at least three times. All this while a number of minor characters were gyrating about the stage, and still no crooked-bodied tyrant was on hand. She then asked her escort if it was Saturday, April 13, and receiving an affirmative reply, was still more bewildered and astonished. Finally "Glowler" came in and opened according to the book, and then the lady, much relieved, began following him line for line. Presently, in accordance with Cibber's version, he skipped about half a page, and the lady began to claw all over the book to find him. By this time the entire company were "piping off" the critic and enjoying the joke immensely. Those behind the scenes were watching her through the cracks of the flies and going into convulsions every time a place was reached where Cibber and Shakespeare failed to hitch. The lady finally threw aside the book in disgust, much to the relief of Mr. Pope, who naturally felt some annoyance at being confronted by a book, especially as the fair book-holder was evidently unaware of the differences which exist between the acting edition and the original.—Virginia Chronicle, April 15th.

The Rum Punch

Recently, in rummaging an old 'chest of drawers' in Richmond, a brown manuscript was found signed with the initials 'E. A. P.' and on examination it proved to be the last verse, not hitherto published, of that marvelous melody, "The Bella." We have obtained it!

Bear the bell-punch with its bells—
Moffett bells!
O, what a slew of revenue their melody foretells!
How they jingle, jingle, jingle, in the glaring air of noon.
While the breakers, twain and sludge,
By the jingle, mangle, mangle, as he stirs them with a spoon.
With a spoon, spoon, spoon, spoon, spoon,
Spoon, spoon, spoon,
With the circumbulation of the spoon!

—Graphic.

THERE is pathos, real and unaffected, in the closing passage of Mr. Christian Ross' lecture concerning his lost Charley, when he compares his quest to a search in a deep, dark abyss by the light of a taper, where he hears now and then a little voice in the darkness crying, "This way, papa, here I am;" but when he goes in the direction of the sound he finds it is only the voice of his hopes and the whispering of his own heart.—Phila. Evening Bulletin.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outsides," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in 367 Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Synopsis of Scenery and Incidents

ACT I. THE YOUNG DRAGON. MANOR OF ROSEDALE. The Scherer. His plan exposed. A Rebuff. The Squire and his passion. Rosa and the young Lord. He would put his sleeve in the milk. That's all. The mysterious and unwelcome visitor. Bravery of Kobb—"I'll call the servants"—the Lancers. Arthur's bravery and its reward. A situation. Almost a thrashing. Entrance of Elliott Gray. "I'll trouble you for that child." The Rescue. An awkward blow. "Hot again." "Ladies, let us go to breakfast." Tableau.

ACT II. THE BRAND! Old room in the lost wing. The gay villain and his tool. The plot for abduction thickens. The young Doctor and his love. Professional pride. A listener. Elliott's hand—the bandage. "You'd better take it off again." "Good-night, Rosa." The midnight entrance of Miles. The secret spring and the casket. An alarm. The cheque. "Damnation, I'll be even with you yet." Coolness of Elliott. Tableau.

ACT III. THE LOST CHILD. Tabitha—the housekeeper. "Nothing of the sort." Bad pumping. The young Dragon again. Lunch. The cupboard and the trans. Kobb in duress. "This comes of being a volunteer." Matthew tells his love. The brother's return. Sorrow of Matthew and constancy of Florence. Thrilling Tableau.

ACT IV. SCENE 1—LORD BATEMAN. The Music Lesson. The lecture and the tenderness of Tabitha. SCENE 2—THE GIPSY DELL (sensational Scene of the play). The villain's purpose clear at last. The old willow. "Call the Crack" and his song of "Luddy Fuddy." The Gypsies retire to rest. "All quiet." Call in a new Character. The young Lord once more. "Oh, Elliott have you come to take me home?" Surprised! A dangerous place. The Gipsy's attack, and "Up Lancers." Tableau.

ACT V. THE RIFLE BALL! SCENE 1—The Rogue at bay. The flowery tribute. Elliott once more. "Oh, Rosa, Rosa." SCENE 2—The mother is happy once more. Elliott sorrows and joys. Kobb's plot for the Widow. SCENE LAST—The Ball-Room at Rosedale. Kobb's "art of dancing." The book. Mischief—Military Quadrille. "Hot again!" Grand Quadrille and Galop—new, by the Entire Company. Tableau.

DISTRIBUTION OF CHARACTERS

Evangeline, our heroine, a creature of impulse and an impetuous pet, pursued through love's impatient prompting, by Gabriel, with a view to edacious contingencies—by a whale.....Miss Catherine Lewis Catherine, the very mildest type of ante-nuptial mother-in-law—but wait.....Mr. Harry Josephs Eulalie, Evangeline's "confidante," confidently hoping Woman's for Rights.....Miss Lizzie McCall Queen Booriboolo Gha, the King's much better adviser and super-vicer of his whole conduct.....Miss Viola Barnes Mary Ann, Evangeline's waiting maid.....Miss Hattie Richardson Gabriel, our hero, a fascinating and perambulating young lover—in point of fact a "roaming" Romeo.....Miss Lizzie Webster Le Blanc, a lawyer of the "shyest" "shyster" stamp, with a "will" and a "way" equally dark.....Mr. Sol Smith Russell Capt. Dietrich, a Dutch mercenary in the British ranks, who shows no mercy, being a mercy-nary cuss.....Mr. George S. Knight The Lone Fisherman, a patient and singularly taciturn toiler of the sea, with a natural tendency to "hook" whatever comes within his reach.....Mr. Harry Hunter Bazil, Evangeline's sire, whose vacillating mind is divided between the "rental" of her prospective husband and his own "parental" affection.....Mr. E. S. Tarr King Booriboolo Gha, royal proprietor of the mid-African diamond fields, who, not being able to hear anything "near," occupies "an ear" trumpet.....Mr. Edwin S. Tarr Hans Wagner, a spirit-nal "corporal" with undue "corporeal" proportions.....Mr. Chas. Rosine The Jailor, never without his key, vocal or instrumental, consequently always on the "qui" vive.....Mr. Horace Frail Grab.....a couple of the King's "cop".....Mr. H. Voss, Jr. Runemin.....per colored "Coppers".....Mr. Wm. Bullock

Ringbolt.....a brace of conscientious deserters who left their ship simply because they couldn't take it with them.....S. R. Morse The Policeman, called by some a peeler, possibly because he was never known to heed any "appeal" a prisoner might make, "Lucas a non," and all that sort of thing.....Mr. H. E. Dixey Lo, the poor Indian, the "loest" and "lonest" savage of them all.....Mr. D. R. Steele

The Headsman, not a mimic of stupid people, but very clever at taking off "blockheads".....Mr. S. M. Crane The Conductor, though given to much punching, better acquainted with the P. R. R. than the P. R.....Miss Annie Lee The Heifer, specially imported from "Cows".....Fishermen, Sailors, Soldiers, Acadian Peasants, Africans, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

"Rosedale" will be given on Saturday evening at the benefit of Mr. Barton Hill. Reserved seats may be secured at the box office daily. We trust that those who have so often received pleasure from the care, attention and energy of Manager Hill will unite on Saturday evening in giving him the pleasure of seeing a crowded house, and rendering his benefit a substantial success. "Rosedale" this evening.

Grand Opera House

Miss Catherine Lewis assumed the title role in "Evangeline" last evening, and sang and acted the character with sparkling vivacity. If the burlesque had been placed on the stage in the same manner as it was last evening, the bank account of the management would have shown a larger balance in its favor. Next week, Mr. Sol Smith Russell will appear as "Catherine"; Mr. Richard Golden taking the character of the eccentric notary "Le Blanc." Mr. Knight will introduce a new cavatina called "Melting Moments," and strike a note never before heard from the vocal organ of any living tenor. Mr. Russell will be the recipient of a benefit on Friday evening, April 26th, and "Conrad, the Corsair," is underlined for Monday, April 29th. "Evangeline" during this and next week, and Saturday matinees.

Bush Street Theater

Manager Locke has secured a succession of most attractive novelties for this place of amusement. "Humpty-Dumpty" will be withdrawn after the present week, and the most celebrated Haverly's Minstrels will appear on Monday. From Eastern accounts they eclipse everything else in their special line of business.

Emerson's Opera House

Mr. Denman Thompson, author and actor, must feel gratified at the appreciation with which "Joshua Whitcomb" has been greeted in San Francisco. The desire to witness the performance is still so great that it will be continued till further notice. On Monday evening it will commence the seventh week of representation to full houses.

Baldwin's Theater

"Saratoga" is a success.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

J. R. GRISMER goes to Baldwin's on the opening of "The Danites."

MISS AUGUSTA DARGON occupied a box at the California last evening.

NEXT Sunday, at Woodward's Gardens, a balloon ascension will be made by Prof. Martin.

MR. E. A. MURDOCK, of the Grand Opera House Company, started eastward this morning.

TONY PASTOR has concluded an engagement with Manager Locke of the Bush Street Theater by telegraph.

MISS KATIE MAYHEW and Miss Minnie Walton will be among McKee Rankin's support, at Baldwin's, in "The Danites."

MESSRS. BALDWIN AND MAGUIRE are said to be contemplating a grand project that will prove a most agreeable surprise when developed.

E. D. DAVIES, the ventriloquist, and possibly Baker and Farron, specialty artists, are expected by next week's steamer from Australia.

LEVY, of cornet notoriety, is one of the best advertised celebrities of the age. His excuse at the last moment, for not appearing at Miss Catherine Lewis' benefit, was decidedly gauzy.

MR. FRED. W. BERT, accompanied by Commodore Nutt, has made the overland trip, from Oregon to Idaho, camping at times on the way with Indians. He expects to be in San Francisco early in May.

The setting of "Saratoga," at Baldwin's Academy, reflects the greatest of credit on the efficient stage manager, Mr. H. M. Brown, who is untiring in his efforts to bring out these plays in the best manner possible.

The Argonaut entertains the idea that an alarming degree of interest is manifested as to who its dramatic contributor, "Betsy B," really is. The Footlight also entertains an idea that Mrs. Jos. Austin, formerly of the Alta, is about one of the best informed persons on that subject.

HARRY GRIMM, of the Arion Hall, is in telephonic connection with the box office of the Grand Opera House. An excited German, wishing to secure a couple of seats for "Evangeline" the other evening, whispered at the telephonic mouthpiece in a manner that startled the people passing on Kearny Street, and made the clerk at box office jump as if he had been struck by the lightning.

The repertoire of the Haverly Minstrel Company is spoken of as being more refined and witty than that of any other minstrel company ever organized. Thatcher introduces new business of a character superior to anything ever before offered by any artist in black. Welch and Rice are known to be in the front rank in their special line, and the rest of the company are individually credited with special talent.

THE UNION SQUARE THEATER COMPANY, now playing at Baldwin's, will play "A Celebrated Case" next week, which will also be their last appearance for some time, as they will travel through the interior for five weeks, until "The Danites" engagement is over, when they will return, and either support some star that may be here at that time or else bring out a new play entirely. During their trip in the interior they will be under the management of Chas. Goodwin.

MISS ELLIE WILTON was tendered a benefit—in fact, Mr. Barton Hill insisted upon her accepting a benefit at his theater—which kind offer she however declined. Ellie says she wants to be the first leading lady that left the theater without any benefit; that the good will of the community is more than a benefit to her. She, in company with Mrs. Bogarel (her sister), will leave for New York within two weeks, on their way to Europe. Bon voyage et au revoir mais non pas adieu.

DISURBANCE IN CHURCH.—The story comes from Deadwood, that a member of a certain church congregation was howieknuffed by a zealous deacon for putting a counterfeit quarter in the contribution-box, and the excited pastor, without leaving the pulpit, shot the good deacon for creating a disturbance during divine service.

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

NEW YORK, APRIL 8TH, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—Messrs. Gardier and Baehle, managers of Niblo's Garden, have produced Mr. Hart Jackson's new and remarkable play, "The Craiga Dhoul." Mr. Hart Jackson, the translator and adaptor of that wonderful play, "The Two Orphans," is too well known to require any introduction, suffice it to say that in "The Craiga Dhoul," he has produced a play of the most peculiar interest, attractive features and strong dramatic situations. It has been placed upon the stage with a remarkably strong cast, new and magnificent scenery, costumes and appointments. The title and the story of the play are founded upon the popular superstition among the Irish peasantry of the existence of a protecting demon in all their great families.

TONY PASTOR'S.—Again we have to chronicle the continued success of this the leading Vaudeville Theater of New York. One of the pleasantest features of Tony Pastor's is the number of ladies and children that are always in attendance. The programme is selected by Mr. Pastor with such great care and detail, that everybody may be interested and amused.

Heller introduces the strange story of Blue Beard with novel effect in all his current entertainments. They are wonderful-creating, fun-provoking scenes, and in every sense unobjectionable, unless to those jugglers who have borrowed the title of spiritualists.

"A Celebrated Case" continues to be the unabated attraction at the Union Square Theater.

Extraordinary success attends the indescribable performance at the San Francisco Minstrels.

Barnum's "Greatest Show on Earth," in the American Institute Building, opened Saturday evening, April 6th, to an immense audience. The programme was an excellent one.

On Monday night, April 15th, Miss Maggie Moore and J. C. Williamson reappear at the Grand Opera House in "Struck Oil."

Before going to Europe, which he purposes doing soon, Mr. S. B. Mills, the well-known pianist, will be the recipient of a well deserved tribute from his brother artists, on Wednesday, April 24th.

J. K. Emmet appears at the Standard next week, in "Fritz."

"Diplomacy" is the most brilliant production of Wallace's season. It met with instant popular favor.

"The Exiles" will be produced on Wednesday evening at Booth's, by the Boston managers, with Mr. D. H. Harkins, Mr. Shewell, and Miss Marie Wainwright in the cast.

"A Celebrated Hard Case" will be played all the week at the Theater Comique. Quite a number of new specialty artists are added to the variety bill. A grand complimentary benefit will be tendered to Mr. M. W. Hanley, the manager of the Theater Comique, by Messrs. Harrigan and Hart, on Thursday afternoon next.

Mrs. Rachel MacCanley, a Western star, of whose brilliancy much has been written, is to play "Seraphine," in "The Mother's Secret," in the New Park Theater, Brooklyn, this week. A carefully selected company will support her.

"Leah, or the Jewish Maiden's Wrong," is the title of the drama that will be produced at Niblo's Garden to-morrow night. It is adapted from the German by Chas. Smith Cheltenham. Miss Gussie De Forest will personate the "Jewess."

A partial change was made Saturday evening, April 6th, in the cast of "The Exiles," still holding the boards at the Broadway Theater. While there has been a reduction of the prices of almost everything, the theaters have persistently maintained their war rates; but the management of this popular theater has recognized the popular fact, and heeded the suggestions of the press, and henceforth will adopt reduced and popular prices. Such success has attended the performances of "The Exiles" the past five weeks that the management can well afford to make this concession to popular exigencies, and now that the entertainment is within the means of all, we shall be very much surprised if there is not a renewed succession of crowded houses.

The play is very thrilling and interesting; and whether it follows the original French version closely or not, or whether it is better than Mr. Shewell's version or not, is a sterling, good-acting melodrama. Mr. Shewell's version will be produced at Booth's Theater on Wednesday, and then the public will have the opportunity of judging of the work of the dramatists for themselves. Mr. Rowe has clearly endeavored simply to produce an effective, good-acting play, replete with thrilling situations and as little unnecessary talk as possible, and how he has succeeded, the enthusiasm which the performance nightly excites demonstrates beyond question. In the famous snow scene, in addition to the teams of reindeer and dogs, is introduced a pony team, the view being one of the most picturesque and realistic of the kind imaginable. The fire scene, in the last act, in which a thrillingly realistic effect of smoke is produced by steam, is another pictorial triumph, which will be remembered after the drama has been withdrawn. We learn that "The Exiles" will be played at popular prices as long as the patronage warrants the great outlay.

When there is a decline in the business, the company will make a tour of the country.

O. S.

A LONDON correspondent of the N. Y. Mercury writes that Adelaide Neilson has not drawn expenses at the Haymarket Theater, but the seats have been well papered in order to make a show. This has induced the ever adorable correspondent to come back to America. He says: "I have been told that little Freddie Swah, of the N. Y. Times, has received orders to set the press puffing-machine at work in her interest." He adds: "It is alleged here that American managers are so eager to recognize the ideal purity of the stage, as represented by Neilson, and the straightforward business probity of little Freddie, that they are now ready to give the gross receipts of every performance and four bene to every week in order to secure the most moral show in the world."

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouses opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

If your WATCH needs repairing, take it to I. TOEPLITZ, 225 Dupont Street, second door from Sutter. Work first-class, and prices reasonable.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from night employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

Go to the "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVE STORE, No. 3 Kearny Street (entrance on Geary) and select your gloves.

The attention of our lady friends and the fair sex of San Francisco is directed to an event of much importance to them, namely: The Spring Opening of the MILLINERY of MME. CONSTANT, at No. 314 Sutter Street. A new style of French Pattern Bonnets has just been received, which require to be seen and tried on to be appreciated, as no description could do them justice.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

An extensive assortment of SPRING STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of C. HEERMANN, 402 Kearny Street and 910 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of last season, and superior articles for sale.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Out-sides," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 152 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

There is a French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their homes built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to F. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

MONEY SAVED BY USING STEVENOT'S BORAX WATER

No Housekeeper Should be Without It!

The best thing known for washing Flannel, superior to anything for cleansing Silk and Velvet, the most cleansing for the body; for healing eruptions of the skin, when used as a shampoo, will cleanse the scalp and prevent the hair from falling out; when mixed with starch is used for glazing shirts and other linens. By washing shelves or cupboards with this solution, ants and cockroaches and other insects will be driven away. Borax is the best thing known for curing Rheumatism.

Decker Brothers' PIANOS

PHILADELPHIA, June 27th, 1876

The DECKER BROTHERS' Grand Pianos used by the Musical Congress at their Grand Operatic Concerts and Musical Festivals, recently given at the American Academy of Music, were remarkable for their superior quality of tone and extraordinary power. Finer instruments in every respect we have never heard.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.:
Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and a pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

Synopsis of Scenery and Incidents

ACT I. THE YOUNG DRAGON. MANOR OF ROSEDALE. The Schemer. His plan exposed. A Rebuff. The Squire and his passion. Rosa and the young Lord. He would put his sleeve in the milk, that's all. The mysterious and unwelcome visitor. Bravery of Kobb—"I'll call the servants"—the Lancers. Arthur's bravery and its reward. A situation. Almost a thrilling. Entrance of Elliott Gray. "I'll trouble you for that child." The Rescue. An awkward blow. "Hot again." "Ladies, let us go to breakfast." Tableau.

ACT II. THE BRAND! Old room in the lost wing. The gay villain and his tool. The plot for abduction thickens. The young Doctor and his love. Professional pride. A listener. Elliott's hand—the bandage. "You'd better take it off again." "Good-night, Rosa." The midnight entrance of Miles. The secret spring and the casket. An alarm. The cheque. "Damnation, I'll be even with you yet." Coolness of Elliott. Tableau.

ACT III. THE LOST CHILD. Tabitha—the housekeeper. "Nothing of the sort." Bad pumping. The young Dragon again. Lunch. The cupboard and the trays. Kobb in danger. "This comes of being a volunteer." Matthew tells his love. The brother's return. Sorrow of Matthew and constancy of Florence. Thrilling Tableau.

ACT IV. SCENE 1—LORD BATEMAN. The Music Lesson. The lecture and the tenderness of Tabitha. SCENE 2—THE GIPSY DELL (sensational scene of the play). The villain's purpose clear at last. The old willow. "Call the Crack" and his song of "Luddy Fuddy!" The Gypsies retire to rest. "All quiet." Call in a new Character. The young Lord once more. "Oh, Elliott have you come to take me home?" Surprised! A dangerous place. The Gipsy's attack, and "Up Lancers." Tableau.

ACT V. THE RIFLE BALL! SCENE 1—The Rogue at bay. The flowery tribute. Elliott once more. "Oh, Rosy, Rosy." SCENE 2—The mother is happy once more. Elliott sorrows and joys. Kobb's plot for the Widow. SCENE LAST—The Ball-Room at Rosedale. Kobb's "art of dancing." The book. Mischief—Military Quadrille. "Hot again!" Grand Quadrille and Galop—new, by the Entire Company. Tableau.

Eulalie, Evangeline's "confidante," confidently hoping Woman's for Rights.....Miss Lizzie McCall
Queen Booriboolo Gha, the King's much better adviser and super-viser of his whole conduct.....Miss Viola Barnes
Mary Ann, Evangeline's waiting-maid.....Miss Hattie Richardson
Gabriel, our hero, a fascinating and perambulating young lover—in point of fact a "roaming" Romeo.....Miss Lizzie Webster
Le Blanc, a lawyer of the "shyster" stamp, with a "will" and a "way" equally dark.....Mr. Sol Smith Russell
Capt. Dietrich, a Dutch mercenary in the British ranks, who shows no mercy, being a mercy-nary cuss.....Mr. George S. Knight
The Lone Fisherman, a patient and angularly taciturn toiler of the sea, with a natural tendency to "hook" whatever comes within his reach.....Mr. Harry Hunter
Bazil, Evangeline's sire, whose vacillating mind is divided between the "rental" of her prospective husband and his own "parental" affection.....Mr. E. S. Tarr
King Booriboolo Gha, royal proprietor of the mid-African diamond fields, who, not being able to hear anything "near" occupies an "ear" trumpet.....Mr. Edwin S. Tarr
Hans Wagner, a spirit-ual "corporal" with undue "corporeal" proportions.....Mr. Chas. Rosine

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Patrons of this theater and the many friends of Manager Hill will not require to be reminded of his benefit announced for to-morrow evening. "Rosedale" is the drama chosen for the occasion, in which the beneficiary will assume his favorite character of "Elliot Gray." Some special and attractive features will be introduced, and we expect to see one of the largest audiences that the house will hold, assembled to-morrow evening. Miss Augusta Dargon will commence an engagement on Monday evening in the character of "Lady Teazle" in "School for Scandal."

Grand Opera House

The additional power thrown in the soprano of "Evangeline," since the advent of Miss Catherine Lewis, seems to have awakened a corresponding force throughout the whole of the rest of the cast, and the contemplated changes announced for next week will still further add to the effective rendition of this burlesque opera. "Evangeline" this evening and Saturday matinee.

Bush Street Theater

The pantomime of "Humpty Dumpty" will be withdrawn after to-morrow night. It has had very good houses during the whole of the present week, the benefit of which will be resped by the charitable fund of the S. F. Fire Department. The Haverly Minstrels are now performing with the greatest possible success at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, and their appearance at the Bush St. Theater on Monday evening, will turn the tide of playgoers in that direction. Reserved seats for Monday evening for sale at the box office.

Emerson's Opera House

The continued success of Mr. Denman Thompson's domestic drama of "Joshua Whitcomb" has decided the management to continue it during the next week and till further notice. Artists have been at work getting ready a complete set of new scenery to be produced on Monday evening, upon which occasion an original act will be added to the comedy. We are curious to find out what new fun the author and actor has in store for us. Our prediction, that "Joshua Whitcomb" would have a run proportionately equal to that of "Our Boys," in London, appears to be on the eve of fulfillment.

Baldwin's Theater

The friends of Miss Louise Sylvester have been agreeably surprised at the versatile talent developed by that vivacious young lady. Her rendition of the character of the "Widow of the Period" in "Saratoga," is not the least of her triumphs. She dresses the part in elegant taste and the song and dance introduced in the woods is simply away up. "Saratoga" this week, and on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next.

The Fountain

Cornet solo every evening by Savinier at the free concert given here. To-night's programme will be found on third page. Gems of operatic composition and the most popular dance music performed every evening.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

MANAGER HAVERLY arrived last evening.

The Haverly Minstrels have met with immense success in Virginia City.

"Saratoga" will be continued at Baldwin's during the first three evenings of next week.

THE DUVALI SISTERS will commence a short engagement at the Adelphi Theater next Monday night.

A NEW act quite as funny as any of the others will be added to "Joshua Whitcomb" on Monday evening.

A COMPLIMENTARY concert, tendered to Miss Lotta Chissold, will take place Wednesday evening, at Pacific Hall.

MANAGER KENNEDY is negotiating with Strakosch for a season of opera at the Grand Opera House in the near future.

MISS AUGUSTA DARGON will appear at the California on Monday evening as "Lady Teazle," in "The School for Scandal."

It is rumored that the National Guard will appear on the stage of the California Theater to-morrow evening, at Manager Hill's benefit.

It is not improbable that when the Union Square Theater company return from their country trip they will re-open in "The Danicheffs."

MR. CHARLES POPE and Piper's Opera House Company are making a provincial tour through Nevada, under the management of Messrs. Crosby & Maeder.

THE programme of the Lichtenberg concert, at Platt's Hall, on Monday evening, will be found on third page. Vieuxtemps' Reverie will be the introductory solo given by the young artist.

FOLLOWING Haverly's Minstrels, at the Bush Street Theater, come Harrigan and Hart, then an interval of uncertainty for two weeks, and then Tony Pastor's great variety combination.

A MUSICAL and literary entertainment will be given at Pacific Hall this evening by the ladies of the First Universalist Society. Miss Annie Pixley, Mr. H. Edwards, and others, will take part in the entertainment.

With the departure of Harry Edwards, who goes to Boston in June, and Miss Ellie Wilton, who leaves shortly on her European tour of recreation, the California loses two popular artists that will not readily be replaced.

In anticipation of the rush of visitors to witness the performances of the Haverly Minstrels, Manager Locke is having the Bush St. Theater thoroughly overhauled; painters, glaziers and upholsterers are at work in every direction.

THE character of Elliott Gray, which Barton Hill assumes at his benefit to-morrow evening, was that in which Mr. W. H. L. Barnes appeared on the occasion of the Mercantile Library benefit, and wherein he scored a complete success.

On account of something being the matter with the working apparatus of the trade winds, Spring, gentle Spring, will only appear to-day between the hours of 10 and 11 A. M.; the rest of the weather programme will be assumed by Winter, Summer and Autumn.

STRAKOSCH says about Miss Cary: "She is a beautiful woman and likes fine dress, as they all do. Sometimes she comes to me and says: 'Max, you must give me a new dress for that piece.' She generally gets it, for I have found they don't sing well when they think they are not well dressed."

A CHIP from Billy Rice's lecture: "In New York they take greenbacks (if the owners ain't looking); in California they take silver; but Nicholls (nickels) is good enough for Louisiana. Not long ago they put up the big Hand of Liberty on Union Square, in New York; and permit me to add, that it was the only big hand ever put up on the square in that section."

THE Thirteenth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is announced to be opened on the 6th of August next. This will be the fifth held in the present pavilion, corner Mission and Eighth Streets. The Board of Trustees expect to realize from the profits of the fair a sum sufficient to clear off the indebtedness of the Mechanics' Institute Library, and make it in future free to mechanics and apprentices. Information regarding the exhibition may be obtained upon application to Mr. J. H. Culver, Secretary, 27 Post Street.

A WRITER in the N. Y. Home Journal thus speaks of Marie Roze as "Leonora," in "La Favorita":

"So much has been said about the singing of Madame Marie Roze, I may be allowed, perhaps, to say a few words about her acting, from which I think our dramatic artists may learn a good deal. On the American stage we have abundance of declamatory acting; very little of the purely æsthetic. It is comparatively easy to find suitable gesture for given words, at least, if the words have any rhetorical value: for the action in such case is spontaneous, and suggested by the words themselves. But how often does a writer leave a "situation" without words, as, for instance, in a death scene, and what scope does such a situation often afford for the plastic and energetic faculty of the actor for the expression by signs of what is implied in the character and the situation, but which could not by words, for critical reasons, be expressed—what scope for acting in short. And it is by this acting, this almost magical expression of thought and passion without the aid of words, that many French actors have achieved their greatest marvels. Alexandre Dumas, Sardou, and others, have affirmed that their histrionic interpreters understood better than themselves the meaning of some of their scenes. Since Rachel, no French actress of the highest order has visited this country, and the majority of our playgoers have few opportunities of witnessing the kind of acting of which I speak. Marie Roze, in the last scene of the "La Favorita," gives us a good sample of this acting. She remains alone over twenty minutes on the stage, deriving little help from the singing, hardly any from scenic effects, and yet she holds the attention of the audience in wrapt suspense; we are made to feel the dramatic force of the situation, and we are made to feel it by force of acting alone."

FORGETTING that a woman should be, at least, as old as she looks, an actress in Paris told a magistrate she was twenty-five. As she stepped out of the box a young man stepped in, who owned to be twenty-seven. "Are you related to the last witness?" he was asked. "Yes," said he, "I am her son." "Ah," murmured the magistrate, "your mother must have been married very young."

A GASCON preacher once stopped short in the pulpit. It was in vain that he scratched his head; nothing would come out. "My friends," said he, as he walked quietly down the pulpit stairs; "my friends I pity you, for you have lost a fine discourse."

If you'll keep it secret—honor bright—I'll tell you a little story. J. e. Something that happened to me last night Here at the masquerade ball, you know You may have noticed I've spooned of tale On Laura Clyde—nothing else to do—She's rather pretty—at any rate. Friend of flirting, and I am too.

Laura's a friend of my sister Fan; Her room joins mine, the walls are thin; So I, by accident, heard them plan Their dresses for masquerading in.

The ball was lovely, the costumes fine, And either dancing or iced champagne, Can't say which, but suspect the wine—Just a little confused my brain.

So, meeting Laura, a giddy maid, Knew her at once by her dress, you see—I took her out for a promenade On the piazza, alone with me.

"Flirted?" Said I was mad in love, Madly worshipped the ground she trod, Vowed it by all below, above; Did she return it?—a word, a nod?

The fair head dropped in assent, and I Snatched off the mask—with rapture kissed her. A peal of laughter was my reply, By Jove! old boy, it was my sister Laugh at me, Joe! don't spare my pride! Nor mind my feelings—I feel as glad It was my sister, not Laura Clyde; Heavens! what an escape I had —Vanity Verres.

MR. M. D. CONWAY has been talking to Mrs. Chataway, the keeper of Shakespeare's house, about General Grant's visit to Stratford, and repeats her plain speech in the "Cincinnati Commercial": "Generally," said she, "people who come here seem to have some interest in the place. General Grant walked about with his eyes fixed on the floor—what there was on the floor I don't know. He didn't look at anything at all, not at the pictures nor at the relics, and he didn't say a word till he was going out of the front door; then he said, 'Thank you.' That was the only speech he made here. Mrs. Grant seemed to like it. And when she was in this room looked at the open fire-place, and said she could imagine Mrs. Shakespeare going about with the little baby William in her arms, patting him and hushing him when he cried, there in the big chimney corner. All that was pleasant of Mrs. Grant; but General Grant"—This sentence was completed and punctuated by the ascending point of Mrs. Chataway's nose.

The attention of our lady friends and the fair sex of San Francisco is directed to an event of much importance to them, namely: The Spring Opening of the MILLINERY of MME. CONSTANT, at No. 114 Sutter Street. A new style of French Pattern Bonnets has just been received, which require to be seen and tried on to be appreciated, as no description could do them justice.

Parties having anything to buy, sell, or trade, or business of any kind to be transacted, should call on CHARLES H. WHEELER, 229 Kearny Street. See advertisement.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

An extensive assortment of SHIRING STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of C. HERRMANN, 402 Kearny Street and 910 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of last season, and superior articles for sale

A Useful Role

Emile Guyon, of the Comedie Francaise, owed her life, once upon a time, to her presence of mind, and her talent for shrieking. She and Mme. Marie Laurent had a harrowing mother's scene at the Port Saint Martin, in "La Fille de la Nuit," where shriek was pitted against shriek and Mme. Guyon's final yell, "My child, my child, give me back my child!" used fairly to curdle the blood of every one within hearing. She had been invited to spend a few days with M. Legouve at Seine Port, but when she arrived at Cesson in the evening she found no one in waiting, as they did not expect her till next day. She set out to walk along the lonely road, and at a particularly gloomy spot was seized by two men. For a moment she was too much startled to do anything, but her senses returned promptly, and she threw her whole energy and the full force of her wonderful lungs into one shriek. She did not cry "an Secours," but, as she said, "let off her usual cry, 'Mon enfant, mon enfant, rendez moi mon enfant!'" The highwaymen dropped her, stuck their fingers in their ears and fled, their hair on end. Such a shriek they had never heard before, and from the fact that there was no "enfant" in sight they were sure they had captured a raving maniac.—Ex

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. For list of papers and further information call on or address

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of watershed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land, to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Decker Brothers' PIANOS

The DECKER BROTHERS' Grand Pianos used by the Musical Congress at their Grand Operatic Concerts and Musical Festivals, recently given at the American Academy of Music, were remarkable for their superior quality of tone and extraordinary power. Finer than instruments in every respect we have never heard.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co., Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it as once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is as pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

Synopsis of Scenery and Incidents

ACT I. THE YOUNG DRAGON. MANOR OF ROSEDALE. The schemer. His plan exposed. A Rebuff. The Squire and his passion. Rosa and the young Lord. He would put his slave in the milk, that's all. The mysterious and unwelcome visitor. Bravery of Kobb—"I'll call the servants"—the Lancers. Arthur's bravery and its reward. A situation. Almost a thrashing. Entrance of Elliott Gray. "I'll trouble you for that child." The Rescue. An awkward blow. "Hot again." "Ladies, let us go to breakfast." Tableau.

ACT II. THE BRAND! Old room in the lost wing. The gay villain and his tool. The plot for abduction thickens. The young Doctor and his love. Professional pride. A listener. Elliott's hand—the bandage. "You'd better take it off again." "Good-night, Rosa." The midnight entrance of Miles. The secret spring and the casket. An alarm. The cheque. "Damnation, I'll be even with you yet." Coolness of Elliott. Tableau.

ACT III. THE LOST CHILD. Tabitha—the housekeeper. "Nothing of the sort." Bad pumping. The young Dragon again. Lunch. The cupboard and the traps. Kobb in duress. "This comes of being a volunteer." Matthew tells his love. The brother's return. Sorrow of Matthew and constancy of Florence. Thrilling Tableau.

ACT IV. SCENE 1—LORD BATEMAN. The Music Lesson. The lecture and the tenderness of Tabitha. SCENE 2—THE GIPSY DELL (sensational scene of the play). The villain's purpose clear at last. The old willow. "Call the Crack" and his song of "Luddy Fuddy!" The Gypsies retire to rest. "All quiet." Call in a new character. The young Lord once more. "Oh, Elliott have you come to take me home?" Surprised! A dangerous place. The Gipsy's attack, and "Up Lancers." Tableau.

ACT V. THE RIFLE BALL! SCENE 1—The Rogue at bay. The flowery tribute. Elliott once more. "Oh, Rosa, Rosa." SCENE 2—The mother is happy once more. Elliott sorrows and joys. Kobb's plot for the Widow. SCENE LAST—The Ball-Room at Rosedale. Kobb's "art of dancing." The book. Mischief—Military Quadrille. "Hot again!" Grand Quadrille and Galop—new, by the Entire Company. Tableau.

EVANGELINE

DISTRIBUTION OF CHARACTERS

Evangeline, our heroine, a creature of impulse and an impetuous pet, pursued through love's impatient prompting, by Gabriel, with a view to edacious contingencies—by a whale..... Miss Catherine Lewis
Catherine, the very mildest type of ante-nuptial mother-in-law—but wait..... Mr. Harry Josephs
Eulalie, Evangeline's 'confidante,' confidently hoping Woman's Rights..... Miss Lizzie McCall
Queen Boorioboola Gha, the King's much better adviser and super-viser of his whole conduct..... Miss Viola Barnes
Mary Ann, Evangeline's waiting-maid..... Miss Hattie Richardson
Gabriel, our hero, a fascinating and perambulating young lover—in point of fact a 'roaming' Romeo..... Miss Lizzie Webster
Le Blanc, a lawyer of the 'shiest' 'shyster' stamp, with a 'will' and a 'way' equally dark..... Mr. Sol Smith Russell
Capt. Dietrich, a Dutch mercenary in the British ranks, who shows no mercy, being a mercy-mary cuss..... Mr. George S. Knight
The Lone Fisherman, a patient and singularly taciturn toiler of the sea, with a natural tendency to 'hook' whatever comes within his reach..... Mr. Harry Hunter
Bazil, Evangeline's sire, whose vacillating mind is divided between the 'rental' of her prospective husband and his own 'parental' affection..... Mr. E. S. Tarr
King Boorioboola Gha, royal proprietor of the mid-African diamond fields, who, not being able to hear anything 'near,' occupies 'an ear' trumpet..... Mr. Edwin S. Tarr
Hans Wagner, a spiritual 'corporal' with undue 'corporal' proportions..... Mr. Chas. Rosine
The Jailor, never without his key, vocal or instrumental, consequently always on the 'qui vive'..... Mr. Horace Frail
Grab..... a couple of the King's 'cop'..... Mr. H. Voss, Jr.
Runemin..... per colored "Cops"..... Mr. Wm. Bullock
Ringbolt..... a brace of conscientious deserters who left their ship simply because they couldn't take it with them..... G. Everett
Deadshake..... S. R. Morse
The Policeman, called by some a peeler, possibly because he was never known to heed any 'appeal' a prisoner might make, "Lucas a son," and all that sort of thing..... Mr. H. E. Dixey
Lo, the poor Indian, the 'locest' and 'loncest' savage of them all..... Mr. D. E. Steele
The Headman, not a minute of stupid people, but very clever at taking off 'blockheads'..... Mr. S. M. Crane
The Conductor, though given to much punching, better acquainted with the P. R. R. than the P. R. R. itself..... Miss Annie Lee
The Heifer, specially imported from 'Cowes'.....

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

A "Rosedale" matinee will be given this afternoon, and for the complimentary benefit to Barton Hill this evening, the prospect of an immense assemblage, to show their appreciation of the man, as well as the manager, is quite favorable. On Monday Miss Dargon will appear as 'Mary of England,' instead of 'Lady Teazle,' as formerly advertised.

Grand Opera House

The sparkling music of "Evangeline" is now given in a style doing justice to the composer and credit to the performers. A matinee performance will be given this afternoon and a reconstruction of the cast will be made for Monday evening. "Evangeline" will be followed by "The Corsair," now in rehearsal.

Bush Street Theater

The present week has been the most successful of the Nick Roberts' engagement. Considering the great attractions at other places of amusement, Manager Locke may be quite satisfied with his share of patronage, and more especially, when his prospects of next week's receipts are taken into consideration. The Haverly Minstrels will arrive per special train from Virginia City to-morrow, and appear on Monday evening.

Emerson's Opera House

By the manner in which this theater is being overhauled, and money spent on the painting and decorating and general fixing up, we are inclined to believe that "Joshua Whitecomb" intends making a permanent home in California. It does one good to look through the box-office window at the happy countenance of Manager Hill—any evening about 8.30—as he converts the four-bit pieces into twenty dollar rolls and stacks them away in his capacious safe. Matinee this afternoon and new net on Monday evening.

Baldwin's Theater

"Saratoga" is played here in a manner so realistic that one almost fancies he is on the ocean floor and feels the salt sea breeze, and when Mackay tastes that water, the muscles around the mouth contract out of sympathy. Great preparations are in progress for "The Danites." Dayton tells us to expect something grander than anything heretofore produced in this city.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

JOHN McCULLOUGH goes to England next month.

OREGON will be well represented at the May Musical Festival here.

WILLIE EDOUTIN is reported engaged for the Evangeline Combination.

MARIE BRABROOK is better known in private life as Mrs. Geo. Rignold.

MRS. EMERSON has abandoned the idea of bringing the Red Stockings to S. F.

HAVERLY'S Minstrel Company arrive to-morrow P. M. in a special through train from Virginia City.

THE Boston Society for the elevation of the stage got no further than one performance of "Rip Van Winkle."

AN Eastern editor, mentioning Miss Larkelle as "Stetson's trump card," is set up by his type-setter as saying "Stetson's strumpard."

IF Dame Rumor is to be relied on, the return of Tracy Titus from Australia will stir up a large-sized mare's nest in managerial circles.

THE Herold Matinees will be resumed on Wednesday. The programme for the fifth of the present series will be found on opposite page.

JAMES MORRISON who was here with the Haverly Minstrels two years ago, assumes the orchestral baton at Forepaugh's circus on Monday.

MR. PORTER, the scenic artist is in town, but will leave shortly for Carson City, where he will paint the scenery for the new Opera House to be built there.

MANAGER HAVERLY was welcomed by his legion of friends yesterday on the street. The FOOTLIGHT representative on meeting him was visibly affected. Cigars for two.

IN the light of recent developments, we can now understand much that we have hitherto doubted concerning pretty Venie Clancey's troubles in the Evangeline Company.

GRIMALDI will astonish the Sacramentans on Monday evening. "Humpty-Dumpty" will be played there for one week, to be followed by the Union Square Company.

KATE FIELD appeared at a fancy dress ball in London as "Young America," emblazoned in stars and stripes and eagles. The Prince of Wales appeared as "Robinson Crusoe."

THOMAS MAGUIRE, JR., and Gen. Barton dissolved partnership with J. K. Emmet at St. Louis. After a few weeks rustication at the Arkansas Hot Springs, Maguire returns to this city.

THE one thousandth performance of "Our Boys," at the Vaudeville, London, was a benefit, with the following result: Royal General Theatrical Fund, £100; Metropolitan Free Hospital, £50; Charing Cross Hospital, £50; Great Northern Hospital, £50; and the Boys' Home and Refuge, £50; Total, £300.

A French author declares that there are a hundred different ways of using the fan. Of these, however, he only mentions one; which consists in so holding this weapon and shield of coquetry that its bearer may receive a love-letter unobserved. That the fan may serve to hide blushes, facilitate whispering, and so on, need scarcely be pointed out. Those who desire full information on this subject cannot do better than study Gossion's "Pleasant Quippes for Upstart Gentlewoman," published in 1596, soon after the introduction of the fan into England, and full of remarks on its use and abuse. For many years after its first introduction into Italy the fan was regarded much as a woman who waltzed was looked upon at the beginning of the present century. Even that stern moralist, Lord Byron, was shocked at the newly imported dance, though some years after the publication of his satire on the waltz he became so far reconciled to it as to write in "Don Juan":

The only dance which teaches girls to blush.

First of April

Some wag in Washington thought it would be decidedly apropos in view of the recent comment the Edison Phonographic inventions have created, to lug in the achievements of our modern Morse for an April fool joke. Accordingly the wag telegraphed from the National capital to the Commercial, of this city, that Edison was about to turn water into wine at la Galileo, but instead of employing spiritual assistance in the doing of it, he would use only the electric wire. This, the Commercial, with all its "culchaw," swallowed whole, and, as if to make the sell even more laughable, gave it a column editorial predicting great things for the country and enumerating the countless blessings this man Edison was about to shower upon the people. Among the latter was the very happy announcement that cereals would be made instantly from Mother Earth and, in substance, knocking the ancient theories of Greeley and others, who advised our young men to "plow and sow," higher than a kite. The effect of that editorial was terrible; our ambitious men and colonists who had made ready for a start to their new rural homes in Southern Kansas paused and decided to investigate; our grain men shuddered for their business was at an end—they foresaw scientists and electricians with a wire in hand making all the grain they wanted; our lake and canal men went into the wildest despair and elevators were allowed to be sold and bid in for the taxes. Messrs. Hanour, Murray, Ritchie, and other wine dealers offered their Dry Monopole and Sweet Angelica for a song, while good Brother Dick wrung his hands at the thought that now every man would become his own distiller, and visions of a percentage on the sale in Buffalo of the Moffat whiskey bell punch vanished in thin air. —Buffalo Sunday Morning News.

Sporting Dramatics

A NEWSPAPER MUSICAL CRITIC was obliged to leave town, and turned over his work for one night to the sporting man of the staff. This is how the criticism on an important concert appeared the next day:—"Time was called about eight o'clock, and about fifty bugles, fifes, and fiddlers entered for the contest. The fiddlers won the toss and took the inside, with the chandeliers right in their eyes. The umpire, with a small club, acted as starter. Just before the start he stood upon a cheese-box, with a small lunch-counter before him, and shook his stick at the entries to keep them down. The contestants first started to 'Landliche Hochzeit,' by Goldsmark, Op. 26. They got off heavily even, one of the fiddles gently leading. The man with the French horn tried to call them back, but they settled down to work at a staggering gait, with the big roan fiddle bringing up the rear. At the first quarter of the course the little black whistle broke badly, and went into the air, but the fiddles on the left kept well together, and struck up a rattling gait. At the halfway the man with the straight horn showed signs of fatigue. There was a little bobtailed flute which wobbled sadly with the bugle at a mile, but he was windbroken and wheeled. The big fat bugle kept calling 'whoa' all the time, but he seemed to keep up with the rest till the end of the race. They all came under the string in good order, but the judge on the cheese-box seemed to reserve his opinion. He seemed tired, and the contestants went out to find their bottle-holder and get ready for the Beethoven handicap. It was a nice exhibition, but tiresome to the contestants. All bets are off. —Ex.

ITEMIZED PLUNGER

A hard-up citizen offers for sale his nationalization papers. Circus bills are posted on Western gravestones.—A baker advertised for a second-hand bread maker, and a loader applied for the position; and the boss said, "I doughn't want you."—A barber, called in to shave the face of a deaf man, commenced giving him a history of the war in Europe.—The Canadians would prefer keeping the present Dufferin, than to have any change in their government.—Talk to a newspaper about his sheet, and he feels like making a ghost of you.

ADRIANE PATTI received over 1000 bouquets at her final appearance in Naples. Six of them were over ten feet in diameter. She was presented also with a laurel leaf of pure gold. The bouquet sent by the Cesi Club was wrapped with a band decorated by the great Neapolitan painter, Dalbono. Another was decorated with twenty branches of corn, and another consisted of strange fruits. —Ex.

A CALIFORNIAN declining to swear to the size of a stick used by one of the parties in a "heated discussion," the judge insisted upon knowing if it was as thick as his wrist. "I should say," said the badgered man, "that it was as thick as your head!" and the Court's curiosity was satisfied. —Ex.

Modern Drama

The stage is a reflection of the time; this is the picture it displays, for it is the copy of what exists. But another phase of our histrionic authorship is its cynicism and satire, and surely that is also an echo of the moment. Society may not be more earnest than it used to be, but no one can move about in it without the conviction that it is bitter in its humor and caustic in its wit. The higher class comedy of the present time reflects the specialties of the age, and does so in an artistic, a brilliant, and, as regards its authorship, in an elegant manner. Its actors and actresses appear the gentlemen and ladies they assume to be, its scenery and stage furnishing combine the taste of an artist with the wealth of a millionaire, and its comedies are rendered in such a way as those who look on would themselves act were the fiction changed to fact, and the story transferred to their own houses. This, then, can not be called a decline of the drama; it is a change of face, but it is a change that has first come from without; in a word, it is making a record of the age. What Congreve and his contemporaries were in their day to their society, such are the authors and artists of the natural drama with theirs. The task of comparison must devolve upon another generation; it will be for it to say with what truth the mirror has done its work, but it is for the playgoer of to-day to admit that the example of good manners and easy deportment, the cultivation of taste, of a love of art, and, to some who might not otherwise obtain it, an acquaintance with the elegance of refinement which surrounds the wealthy and most enlightened members of society are due to the drama of the present, and such an attainment does not need apologists. —London Era.

A Rose by any other Name Won't Sell as Sweet

That Shakespeare was very much mistaken in supposing that there is nothing in a name, is well proven by the story of the "Autograph" Waltzes. In the city of Boston there resides "a party by the name of Warren" who had written some dance music, which, though it had never attained popularity nor brought its composer any fame or money, possessed undoubted merit. When Strauss came to this country to play at the Boston Peace Jubilee, in the Summer of 1871, the whole country went wild about his dance music, particularly his waltzes. Every composition of the kind that had Strauss' name on it, no matter how trashy, sold faster than it could be printed, while the same class of works by other composers, though infinitely superior to many of those by Strauss, were allowed to waste their sweetness on the desert air. Poor Warren, wandering about the streets of Boston in a decaying paper collar, a second-hand duster and a well-ventilated straw hat, was suddenly struck by the bright idea that if he could write a waltz in the style of Strauss, and put the name of Strauss on its title-page, he might sell copies enough to enable him to obtain a square meal. Accordingly he wrote the "Autograph" Waltzes, and after Strauss had left the country published the composition with the name of the great German as its author. The result has been that "Autograph" has had the largest sale of any waltz ever issued in America, with the single exception of "The Beautiful Blue Danube." This popularity is well deserved, for in point of beauty and dancing quality "Autograph" undoubtedly stands without a peer among works of its class. It is ever fresh and charming, and new beauties are discovered in it every time it is heard. —Ex.

Four Eccentrics

Cibber, the actor and dramatist, in company with three friends, once made an excursion. Cibber had a false set of teeth; one of his friends a glass eye, a second friend a cork leg, but the third had nothing particular, except a remarkable way of slaking his head. They traveled in a post-coach; and while at the first stage, after each had made merry with his neighbor's infirmity, they agreed that at every halting-place they would all affect the same singularity. When they came to breakfast, they all squinted, and, as the countrymen stood gaping round, when they alighted.

"Did not it," cried one, "how that man squints!"

"Why," said a second, "here be another squinting fellow!"

The third was thought to be a better squinter than the other two, and the fourth better than all the rest. In short language cannot express how admirably they all squinted—for they went one degree beyond superlative. At dinner they appeared to have cork legs; and their stumping about made more diversion than at breakfast. At ten they were all deaf, but at supper, which was at the Ship, at Dover, each man resumed his character, the better to play his part in a farce they had concerted among them. When they were ready to go to bed, Cibber called out to the waiter.

"Here, you fellow! take out my teeth."

"Teeth, sir?" said the man.

"Ay! teeth, sir! Uncrew that wire, and they'll all come out together." After some hesitation, the man did as he was ordered. Then another called out.

"Here, you! take out my eye."

"Lor, sir!" said the waiter, "your eye?"

"Yes, my eye! Come here, you stupid dog! Pull up that eyelid, and it will come out as easily as possible."

This done, the third cried out.

"Here, you rascal! take off my leg."

This the waiter did with less reluctance having been before apprized that it was cork, and also conceiving that it would be his last job. He was, however, mistaken. The fourth watched his opportunity, and while the frightened waiter was surveying with rueful countenance the eye, teeth, and leg lying on the table, cried out, in a frightful, hollow voice.

"Come here, sir—take off my head!"

Turning round, and seeing the man's head shaking like that of a mandarin upon a chinupiece he darted out of the room, and, after tumbling headlong down stairs, ran about the house swearing that the gentlemen above stairs were certainly all devils. —Ex.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush

A very extensive selection of all kinds of DRESSING, ERTSIES and FEATHER DISTERS may be found at 310 Sutter Street. The brothers LEVENSON have opened a place of business there, and offer their merchandise at the most reasonable rates.

The "P. CENTEMERT" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast.

The attention of our lady friends and the fair sex of San Francisco is directed to an event of much importance to them, namely, The Spring Opening of the MILLINERY of MME. CONSTANT, at No. 314 Sutter Street. A new style of French Pattern Bonnets has just been received, which require to be seen and tried on to be appreciated, as no description could do them justice.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A FIANO, visit the new warehouses opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

IF YOUR WATCH needs repairing, take it to I. TOEPLITZ, 213 Dupont Street, second door from Sutter. Work first-class, and prices reasonable.

Go to the "P. CENTEMERT" KID GLOVE STORE, No. 3 Kearny Street (entrance on Geary) and select your Gloves.

THE CELEBRATED
Cucamonga Rancho
 CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES
 is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,
WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, acutely trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co., Gentlemen: The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

Evangeline, our heroine, a creature of impulse and an impetuous pet, pursued through love's impatient prompting, by Gabriel, with a view to edacious contingencies—by a whale.....Miss Catherine Lewis Catherine, the very mildest type of ante-nuptial mother-in-law—but wait.....Mr. Sol Smith Russell

Eulalie, Evangeline's "confidante," confidently hoping Woman's for Rights.....Miss Lizzie McCall Queen Booriboolo Gha, the King's much better ad-viser and super-viser of his whole conduct.....Miss Viola Barnes

Mary Ann, Evangeline's waiting-maid.....Miss Hattie Richardson Gabriel, our hero, a fascinating and perambulating young lover—in point of fact a "roaming" Romeo.....Miss Lizzie Webster

Le Blanc, a lawyer of the "shyest" "shyster" stamp, with a "will" and a "way" equally dark.....Mr. Richard Golden Capt. Dietrich, a Dutch mercenary in the British ranks, who shows no mercy, being a mercy-nary cuss.....Mr. George S. Knight

The Lone Fisherman, a patient and singularly taciturn toiler of the sea, with a natural tendency to "hook" whatever comes within his reach.....Mr. Harry Hunter Bazil, Evangeline's sire, whose vacillating mind is divided between the "rental" of her prospective husband and his own "parental" affection.....Mr. E. S. Tarr

King Booriboolo Gha, royal proprietor of the mid-African diamond fields, who, not being able to hear anything "near" occupies "an ear" trumpet.....Mr. Edwin S. Tarr Hans Wagner, a spirit-nal "corporal" with undue "corporeal" proportions.....Mr. Chas. Rosine

The Jailor, never without his key, vocal or instrumental, consequently always on the "qui" vive.....Mr. Horace Frail Grab.....a couple of the King's "cop".....Mr. H. Voss, Jr. Runemin.....per colored "Cops".....Mr. Wm. Bullock

The Policeman, called by some a peeler, possibly because he was never known to heed any "appeal" a prisoner might make. "Lucas a non," and all that sort of thing.....Mr. H. E. Dixey Lo, the poor Indian, the "loest" and "loonest" savage of them all.....Mr. D. R. Steele

The Headman, not a mimic of stupid people, but very clever at taking off "blockheads".....Mr. S. M. Crane The Conductor, though given to much punching, better acquainted with the P. R. R. than the P. R. R. Miss Annie Lee

The Heifer, specially imported from "Cowes".....F. Thompson

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

The dramatized version of Tennyson's "Queen Mary" will be given for the first time in California this evening. Miss Augusta Dargon assumes the title role. She is spoken of by Eastern critics as being the equal of Salvini in magnetic intensity, and as a tragic actress second to no one of the present generation.

Bush Street Theater

"Standing room only" will more than likely be announced about fifteen minutes after the doors are opened here this evening. The celebrated Haverly Minstrels commence a season, with the prospects of being the greatest success that this place of amusement has ever enjoyed. At Virginia City, during the whole of last week, Piper's Opera House was crowded every evening, and their performance created there quite a furor.

Grand Opera House

This evening Mr. Richard Golden will appear as the eccentric 'Le Blanc,' and Mr. Sol Smith Russell will be transformed into 'Catherine.' The cast of 'Evangeline' now is everything that could be desired, and will be continued during the present week, Saturday matinee being the last performance. "Conrad, the Corsair," is announced for Saturday evening, April 27th.

Emerson's Opera House

The Denman Thompson Company enter to-night on the seventh week of the most successful season ever given at this theater. The public has been unanimous in its appreciation of "Joshua Whitcomb," another page of whose history will be unfolded to view this evening.

Baldwin's Theater

Platt's Hall

Leopold Lichtenberg, pupil of Wieniawski and first violinist in the class of 1876 at the Brussels Conservatory, and lately solo violinist in the orchestra of Theodore Thomas, will perform this evening the celebrated "Reverie" of Wieniawski. It is unfortunate that the engagements of our resident violinists will preclude their attendance, but we trust that some future matinee performance will enable them to be present.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

The musical services at the churches yesterday were very impressive.

MODJESKA is in Chicago. She commences an engagement to-night at Hooley's Theater.

Mr. T. W. KEENE has had an offer of the position of leading man at McVickers next season.

GREAT preparations are being made for the annual reception and exhibition of the S. F. Art Association.

KATE CLAXTON and company commence a short season at Haverly's, Chicago, this evening in "The Two Orphans."

JOHN E. OWENS appears at Piper's Opera House this evening in "Our Boys," supported by Miss Gracie Woodthorpe of this city.

THE one hundredth successive representation of "A Celebrated Case" at the Union Square Theater, New York, will be given this evening.

It is not improbable that "Girofle-Girofla" will be given by the Evangeline Company, with Miss Catherine Lewis in the dual character.

THE vocalization of Miss Louise Sylvester, Miss Nina Varian and Mr. W. H. Fitzgerald, are delightful features in the picnic scene in "Saratoga."

MANY eyes were turned heavenward yesterday afternoon watching the ariel progress of Professor Martin. He came down all right near San Leandro.

MISS KITTY BLANCHARD who supports Mr. McKee Rankin in "The Danites," shortly to be produced at Baldwin's, is Mrs. McKee Rankin in private life.

THE California Theater Company are playing "The Deluge" in Chicago. Miss Helen Tracy assumes the part of 'Eve,' and Tom Keene plays the 'Devil' as usual.

RESERVED seats for the May Festival may be secured at Sherman & Hyde's. The diagram shows seating capacity for nearly 20,000, and the orchestra will accommodate over 2,000.

Opera Bouffe Librettos

Opera bouffe librettos are curious things. In fact, Barnum never got together greater curiosities. When 'Hamlet' remarked to 'Horatio' that there were more things 'twixt heaven and earth than were dreamed of in his philosophy, he evidently had the opera bouffe libretto in his mind's eye for one of them. These librettos belong to a class by themselves. There is nothing like them under the sun. They are more improbable than a fairy tale, more extravagant than burlesque. They place all known laws at defiance, including the laws of morality. They are naughty but nice. They are frothy and ethereal, but have a decided flavor of mortality about them, and very imperfect mortality at that. Prudes roll up their eyes at the mere mention of them, but we see them at the theater taking them in straight along. Opera bouffe librettos have one conspicuous weakness, and that is for conspirators. An opera bouffe libretto without conspirators would hardly be an opera bouffe libretto at all—it would not seem natural. What would "La Fille de Madame Angot" be without the conspirators, if only to sing their choros and dance that delightful waltz with the fair companions of 'Madame Lange?' "La Grande Duchesse" started the conspiracy business, and Offenbach has not forgotten to make use of it in his latest work produced in this country, "La Boulangere des Eens," which gives the two ingenious police spies a chance to get off their comic diet, "Les Fariniers sont Tons Blancs." Another peculiarity of the opera bouffe libretto is the aged uncle. He is always there, though he is invariably an unimportant personage and has not much to do. But it is useless to attempt to point out the peculiarities of opera bouffe librettos, for they are altogether peculiar.

H. & M. Mirror.

BOTTICELLI's first play, "London Assurance," was published when he was nineteen years old, since then he has written upwards of 100, the profits of which are estimated to have been about ten millions of dollars.

Violino Primo

Genuine Cremona violins are rare, but from the following item in the Buffalo Sunday Morning News, it would appear that a young lady of that city is the happy possessor of an Amati.

"There is in possession of the daughter of the late Dr. James Wenz, of this city, a violin which is remarkable for its age, as well as its history. The late doctor bought it some thirty-three years ago in the city of Strasburg, from an old Italian master. Misfortune and sickness had reduced the old musician to the most extreme poverty, and in this extremity he was forced to part with his favorite instrument, and tears were in his eyes when he surrendered it to the doctor. He told him to be careful of it, as it had a history which placed it above ordinary violins. The Italian said it once belonged to a nobleman of Italy, who gave it to the choir of one of the churches where it was used for some years. One night the church was robbed by bandits, and among other things, the violin was carried away. Nothing was heard of it for some years till one day a beggar called at the nobleman's and offered to sell him a violin. The nobleman at once recognized it by certain marks as the very instrument he had presented to the church, and that had been stolen. He paid the price and took back his old favorite. When he died it passed into the possession of the man who sold it to Dr. Wenz. The doctor kept it to the end of his life, and then gave it to his daughter who now owns it. It was kept in the house as a memento, nothing more, until a short time ago, when a young man who had called at the house was shown the instrument and began to examine it. On the inside of the back his sharp eye discovered some words, which proved to be the name of the maker, and the year in which it was made. The following appears in the stamp: Nicola Amati fecit in Cremona, 1675. This shows the violin to be two hundred and three years old. Miss Wenz prizes her venerable treasure highly. She would not part with it, and takes delight in exhibiting it to those who call."

Tricks in all Trades

The following amusing story is told of an amateur performance of "Stradella," given in New York a short time ago. The tenor was indisposed when the time for the performance arrived, and his place was filled by a person who could not sing a note, though he was a fine actor. Throughout the entire opera he sang in dumb show, while the notes which the audience supposed him to be uttering really issued from the throat of the conductor, who, of course, was facing the stage, with his back to the audience, who remained utterly ignorant of the trick, and by whom it was agreed that a tenor who could act so well and, at the same time, sing so correctly and pleasingly had never been seen before, even upon the professional stage. Ex.

Cautions to London Society Gossipers

The London correspondent of the Sheffield Independent says:—"It is reported in Club circles that forty members of an aristocratic Club 'not a hundred miles' as the old strikers used to say, 'from Piccadilly,' have bound themselves by oath to punish with the horsewhip the editor of any 'personal newspaper' who shall henceforth print the name of any lady known to any of them in its columns, accompanied by any unpleasant allusion."

M. LECOCQ's latest opera, "Le Petit Duc," has been a great pecuniary success, and has beaten every other comic opera in respect of the enormous receipts. For the first thirty representations in Paris, of the "Grand Theatre," the gross receipts amounted to $26,521; the first thirty of the "Fille de Madame Angot," reached $29,891; and for the "Petit Duc," they are $32,438. This gives an average of $1,082 per night. The house, when full, supposing every night filled, holds only $1,061, the balance being made up by "standing-room." The return for the thirty-first performance was $1,334 50.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are none ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from mint employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

A Daring Rider

Not the least remarkable incident in the life of Count Maurice Sander was his connection with Prince Metternich. The Prince was as punctilious, reserved, and measured, in words and politics, as the Count was brusque, reckless, and hasty in action. When he applied to the Prince for the hand of his daughter, the Prince said he did not care about having his daughter's neck broken; but on Sander promising to abandon his feats of equestrianism, he at last gave his consent. The very same evening Sander rode his horse "Tartar" up two flights of stairs into a drawing-room, and coolly told the Prince, who remonstrated with him for breaking his promise, that "on the contrary, he was keeping his promise, and acquainting his horse to polite society. He was incorrigible. He jumped anything and everything. At a cross road he once went over a peasant's wagon. He crossed the Danube on the floor when the ice was breaking up, galloped up and down the Prater backwards in his saddle, and rivalled all the feats performed in the great circuses. In 1848 he was treated to a charivari by the enraged populace, on account of his connection with Prince Metternich; but stepping out on the balcony with a dog-whistle and two servants, each with a sack full of cats, he quite out-whistled and out-mewed his antagonists. Then going down stairs among them, he seized a stone, and throwing it at one of his windows, invited the crowd to smash the rest. Taken aback at this courtesy, they refused. Thereupon Sander cried, "Well then, let us go to my father-in-law and smash his." This proposal was carried by acclamation, and the Prince's windows were duly smashed. By this time Sander had got the crowd so under his control that no further damage was done, and what might have turned out a serious riot was changed into a convivial meeting. One day a remarkable transformation took place. He became as nervous and timid as he had been reckless and daring. He never mounted a horse again, refused to take the reins when he went out driving, and always warned his daughter to be cautious. This change, I was told by one of his intimate friends, was due to a dream. The dream was to the effect that the Devil suddenly appeared with a number of mirrors, which he held one by one before the Count, and in which Sander saw the danger he had run in of his exploits. Mirror after mirror was held before him until the sweat poured from his brow, and the last glass was reached. Instead of showing him this one, the Devil put it back with a leer, and said, "This is the last one; this has yet come." At this moment the Count awoke, and vowed he would never mount a horse again. And he did not. —Mayfair.

A Rare Collection

A remarkable collection of ancient works illustrative of ornamental art, and especially illustrating the adaptability of plant forms to decoration, is shortly to be brought to the hammer in London. It is the property of Mr. John Catto, of Great Castle Street, Oxford Circus, London, who has long held a high position in the metropolis in connection with this particular form of art, as applied to manufactures and interior decorations, such as curtain fabrics, wall-papers, cabinet furniture, art tiles, and reposse and other metal work. Within the last few years considerable advance has been made in this direction, under the leading of the South Kensington School of Artists, but many of the old herbals or works on medical botany, such as Matthioli's, Brunfels, Fuchs, old Hooker or Tragus, Debonnus and Lebel, collected by Mr. Catto, furnish endless pictorial sources from which the best artists of the present day have as yet only begun to draw their materials. The text of these works cannot be dignified by the name of scientific treatises, the properties attributed by the writers to the plants they describe, being often quaint and fantastical, but the woodcuts with which they are profusely illustrated are certainly marvellous specimens of drawing, the treatment of the details being almost conventional requiring only conventional arrangement of the parts to form perfectly correct ornamental designs according to principles laid down by Ruskin, Owen Jones, Redgrave, and other authorities. Many of the volumes are over 300 years old, and some of them contain 1,000 woodcuts each. The collection has been gathered together from all parts of Europe during many years, and it may be said to be priceless, both on account of the beauty of the illustrations and their extreme rareness. London Correspondent of Aberdeen Free Press, March, 1878.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush

The attention of our lady friends and the fair sex of San Francisco is directed to an event of much importance to them, namely: The Spring Opening of the MULLINERY of MME. MULIN-STANT, at No. 314 Sutter Street. A low style of French Pattern Bonnets has just been received, which require to be seen and tried on to be appreciated, and no description could do them justice.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouse opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

If your WATCH needs repairing, take it to T. TOEPLITZ, 225 Dupont Street, second door from Butler. Work first-class, and prices reasonable.

Go to the "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVE STORE, No. 3 Kearny Street (entrance on Geary) and select your gloves.

E. BUTTERICK & Co's Spring Patterns, the most reliable, stylish and popular. Agency 124 Post Street. Send stamp for Catalogue.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, generally known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines square) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. THE CELEBRATED
is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,
WITH WATER FREE
one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.
LOCATION
Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.
Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface artesian wells have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.
At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.
There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.
Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.
RITCHIE'S FRUIT HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.
For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

WEBER
PIANOS ARE THE BEST
San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.
Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.
Gentlemen—The artists of the Kellogg Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DISTRIBUTION OF CHARACTERS

Evangeline, our heroine, a creature of impulse and an impetuous pet, pursued through love's impatient prompting, by Gabriel, with a view to edacious contingencies—by a whole.....Miss Catherine Lewis Catherine, the very mildest type of anti-nuptial mother-in-law, but wait.....Mr. Sol Smith Russell Eulalie, Evangeline's 'confidante,' confidently hoping Woman's for Rights.....Miss Lizzie McCall Queen Booriboolah Gha, the King's much better adviser and super-vicer of his whole conduct.....Miss Viola Barnes Mary Ann, Evangeline's waiting-maid.....Miss Hattie Richardson Gabriel, our hero, a fascinating and perambulating young lover—in point of fact a 'roaming' Romeo.....Miss Lizzie Webster Le Blanc, a lawyer of the 'shyest' 'shyster' stamp, with a 'will' and a 'way' equally dark.....Mr. Richard Golden Capt. Dietrich, a Dutch mercenary in the British ranks, who shows no mercy, being a mercy-nary cuss.....Mr. George S. Knight The Lone Fisherman, a pattern to all singularly taciturn to all of the sea, with a natural tendency to 'hook' whatever comes within his reach.....Mr. Harry Hunter Bazil, Evangeline's sire, whose vacillating mind is divided between the 'rental' of her prospective husband and his own 'parental' affection.....Mr. E. S. Tarr King Booriboolah Gha, royal proprietor of the mid-African diamond fields, who, not being able to hear anything 'near,' occupies 'sn ear' trumpet.....Mr. Edwin S. Tarr Hans Wagner, a spiritual 'corporal' with undue 'corporeal' proportions.....Mr. Chas. Rosine The Jailor, never without his key, vocal or instrumental, consequently always on the 'qui vive'.....Mr. Horace Frail Grab.....a couple of the King's 'cop'.....Mr. H. Voss, Jr. Runemin.....per 'colored' 'Cops'.....Mr. Wm. Bullock Ringbolt.....a brace of conscientious deserters who left their ship simply because they couldn't take it with them.....G. Everett Deadshake.....S. R. Morse The Policeman, called by some a peeler, possibly because he was never known to heed any 'appeal' a prisoner might make, 'Lucas a non,' and all that sort of thing.....Mr. H. E. Dixey Lo, the poor Indian, the 'loosest' and 'lonest' savage of them all.....Mr. D. R. Steele The Headsman, not a mimic of stupid people, but very clever at taking off 'blockheads'.....Mr. S. M. Crane The Conductor, though given to much punching, better acquainted with the P. R. R. than the P. R. R. Miss Annie Lee The Heifer, specially imported from 'Cows'.....Mr. Wm. Bullock Fishermen, Sailors, Soldiers, Acadian Peasants, Africans, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

The appearance of Miss Augusta Dargon last night was not greeted with the appreciation her merit deserves. Eastern cynicisms fail to do her justice. In her vor of expression, passionate utterance and appropriate action, she is the best English tragic actress that has ever trod the boards of the California Theater. Her voice is under perfect control, at times modulated to a musical whisper, and again reaching the height of grand passion. Her words are turned out clear, distinct, and sharply cut, and her features are very mobile and follow and give expression to her language. The tragic force of the last scene is beyond description. "Mary of England" this evening, which we will again notice.

Grand Opera House

The change of cast this week has most materially improved the extravaganza of "Evangeline," and had the present been the original cast, the run of the piece would in all likelihood have been at least twice as long, the present being the last week. Great attention has been given to the details of "Conrad, the Corsair," which will be brought out on Saturday evening.

Bush Street Theater

As we were crowded out last night, getting only a good view of the back hair of that part of the audience in the jammed entrance, we will have to defer notice of the Heavenly Minstrels.

Emerson's Opera House

A crowded assemblage again greeted our established friend Joshua Whitecomb, who is running now entirely on his merit. The original fourth act is a continuation of domestic life in New England. "Uncle Josh" gets off some more of his dry sayings, and the grand finale shows the whole company at a Fourth of July celebration, introducing a patriotic speech, the "Star Spangled Banner," etc. Same programme for this evening.

Baldwin's Theater

"Saratoga" this and to-morrow evening. "A Celebrated Case" on Thursday

MISS ADA WARD is in New York with her "Last Franc."

A St. Louis Amateur Opera Company will present "Norma" in May.

BOUCCACULT, Jefferson and Rignold are some of the future attractions booked for the California.

"MRS. MACSOLLEY'S TWINS" is the title of a new song in which Salisbury made a hit in Australia.

A CONCERT will be given this evening at Calvary church for the benefit of the Ladies' Relief Fund.

MISS LOTTA CHISSOLD will be the recipient of a grand complimentary benefit to-morrow evening, at Pacific Hall.

WHILE Williamson is in Europe, Miss Maggie Moore will retire for a season and enjoy the companionship of her relations in this city.

THE sale of seats for the May Festival will be commenced at the music store of Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co. on Monday next, April 29th.

THERE seems to be some uncertainty whether Lawrence Barrett comes to the California or Baldwin's, although information is to the latter.

ON SAT, that Emperor Norton and his staff are to ascend in the balloon from Woodward's next Sunday, and that the valve rope will be tied up stairs where they can't reach it.

MCCULLOUGH, Raymond, Barrett, Williamson, C. R. Thorne, Kellogg and other American celebrities will cross the Atlantic shortly for Europe, and be in Paris during the Exposition, which opens May 1st.

IT speaks very bad for the cultured taste of a city like San Francisco, to have an actress like Miss Dargon play to a poor house—she deserves none but crowded houses—for her art is no catch-penny thing, but art itself, aye genius.

A WRITER in the Washington Sunday Herald in noticing the production of "A Celebrated Case" by the National Theater Company, makes special mention of the excellent rendition of the character of Valentine de Mornay, by Miss Laura Joyce.

AN act of vandalism was perpetrated on Sunday morning in the destruction of the large plate glass covering the show case at entrance to Bradley & Rulofson's photographic gallery. We trust that Kienan will have the satisfaction of hearing of the capture of the villain and of his punishment for so wanton an act.

AN unusually attractive programme is offered for the concert to-morrow afternoon at the Metropolitan Temple. Beethoven's "Overture to Coriolanus" will be given for the first time in this city. We trust that Professor Herold will secure Master Leopold Lichtenberg for a solo at one of his future matinees.

THE Grimaldi Pantomime Company open at Piper's Opera House on Monday next. After a short season at Virginia City they proceed eastward, disbanding at Salt Lake. Nick Roberts then goes to New York and makes arrangements for the Tony Pastor Troupe to appear at the Bush Street Theater sometime in June.

WHILE our John was in St. Louis, where he played a two weeks engagement, and which on account of the Leuten season was not a complete success—he received 968 at least that is the exact number given by the St. Louis Piety letters from good young ladies there, entreating him to come back at a season when their presence will not be forbidden.

ELLIE WILTON carries with her a souvenir of California and its gold, a ten dollar piece on a chain, which, on pressing a spring, opens and discloses a portrait ingeniously hidden. It will be to her a daily remembrance of the many warm friends in San Francisco who wish her well, and who will gladly welcome her back after she has accomplished the object of her European tour.

THE concert of Leopold Lichtenberg, at Platt's Hall last evening, did not, in point of attendance, meet with that recognition the occasion demanded. What we have already written regarding the young artist was fully confirmed by last night's performance. In execution and power of expression he is far beyond what could be expected for his years of study. Although only a boy in years, his intonation is already as powerful as that of a finished musician. Age will further develop this power, and we may look to his becoming in the near future, not alone the great California player, but the great American violinist.

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

CHICAGO, April 13th, 1878.
ED. FOOTLIGHT:—To-night closes the second week of "A Trip to the Moon," at Haverly's, and the attendance all week has been rather light. The piece did not make the hit here that was expected, and is to be withdrawn after to-night. Monday, "The Deluge." The engagement will probably be shortened. Kate Claxton follows.

At McVickar's, "The Exiles" has been running all week to fair business. Manager McVickar always sets his plays in good shape, but in this he has fairly outdone himself, and his artists, Rogers and Mulmish, show some work this week that would do credit to any theater in this country. Whatever McVickar's company may be, his scenery and appointments are always first-class. The cast of "The Exiles," at this house, is made up from the stock company, with the addition of Chas. M. Walcott, of Philadelphia, who plays "Schelm," and taken as a whole, is not particularly strong. The piece will run two weeks.

At Hooley's, the Broadway Theater Company are doing Geo. Fawcett Rowe's version of the same piece. The cast is good, Leveck being particularly strong as "Schelm," but the play is much inferior to the one at McVickar's, and the scenery bears no comparison. The attendance has been only fair, but the piece will be kept on another week. Modjeska comes 22d.

Madame Duclos' Blondes have gone back to the Folly Theater, and Manager Hamlin, of the Coliseum, has put his variety company into the New Chicago Theater, while the Coliseum is closed for repairs. It is his intention to change the Coliseum Hall into a regular theater, and the workmen are now at work. The place will not be ready before June, and until then his company will occupy the New Chicago Theater. He gives a first class variety show, but owing to strong counter attractions, the attendance this week has not been as large as usual.

The Prophet Jeremiah an Irishman

A Brooklyn divine, the Rev. Joseph Wild, has been unfolding an unfamiliar page of history. This gentleman, whose "scholarly" attainments are vouched for by an American contemporary, has discovered that long before James I.'s Scotchmen took possession of Ulster that province had been fortunate enough to attract the attention of a still more celebrated and at least equally pushing race. As far back as the time of the prophet Jeremiah, it seems, the tribe of Dan, who must have been a peculiarly enterprising body of men, had entered into commercial relations with the British Isles. Dr. Wild does not appear to possess any statistics calculated to throw light upon the value and quantity of our exports and imports at that rather remote period; but supposing him to be right as to his general facts, we must assume that only a remunerative business would have tempted the traders of Syria to try their luck at so great a distance from home. This, however, is a comparatively small matter, the revelation of real interest is that this commercial connection afforded the Prophet an opportunity of paying Ireland a visit, and of carrying with him to that Isle of Saints a number of relics of extraordinary historical interest. When trouble had overtaken his people, Jeremiah, Dr. Wild tells us, stepped on board one of the ships of Dan and made the voyage to the coast of Ulster. He was accompanied by a princess descended from David, and among his luggage he had the Ark of the Covenant, and Jacob's stone or pillow. The young lady he gave in marriage to a native chief. The genealogical tree may present some difficulties at one or two points, but Dr. Wild states it as a fact that through this union Queen Victoria can claim descent from the son of Jesse. What has become of the ark Dr. Wild is not prepared to say; but he thinks it "reasonable to suppose" that it was deposited at Tara, where Jeremiah founded a school of prophets. As for Jacob's pillow, it was carried to Seone, in Scotland, whence it was transferred later on to Westminster Abbey, where it remains to this day, forming part of the chair in which the Sovereigns of England are crowned. The legend of the coronation stone is a familiar one; but to many of our readers Jeremiah's expedition to Ulster "about the year 580 B.C." may not be so well known.—English Ec.

Rapid Literary Composition of Authors

"Alexander Feast" was struck out at a single sitting. Indeed, Dryden says himself that, when he was writing, ideas thronged so fast that the only difficulty he had was in selection. Everybody knows the extraordinary literary faculty of Sir Walter Scott—how his amanuensis, when he employed one, could not keep pace with the breathless speed with which he dictated his marvelous romances. If we can judge from the many original MSS. of his novels and poems which have been preserved to us, it would seem that he scarcely ever recast a sentence or altered a word when committed to paper. The effect of this is that both Dryden and Scott have left a mass of writings valuable for the genius with which they are instinct, but defaced with grammatical blunders, and with many pleonasm and tautologies, the result of their authors not practicing what Pope calls "the first and greatest art, the art to blot." Mr. Johnson's "Rasselas" was written in a week, to defray the expenses of his mother's funeral. Horace Walpole wrote nearly all the "Castle of Otranto" at a sitting, which terminated not by mental fatigue, but by the fingers becoming too weary to close on the pen. Beckford's celebrated "Vathek" was composed by the uninterrupted exertion of three whole days and two whole nights, during which time the ecstatic author supported himself by copious draughts of wine. What makes the feat more wonderful is, that it was written in French, an acquired language, for Beckford was of course an Englishman. Mrs. Browning wrote her delightful poem, entitled "Lady Geraldine's Courtship," a long, elaborate romance in a difficult metre, in twelve hours, while the printer was waiting to put it into type. It is comparatively easy to understand the rapidity with which these compositions were produced, because, being works of imagination couched in a style essentially bold and free, choice phraseology, careful rhythm, and copious illustration were not so much needed; but when we learn that Ben Jonson completed his highly-wrought comedy of the "Alchemist" in six weeks, and that Dr. Johnson could throw off forty-eight octavo pages of such a finished composition as his "Life of Savage" at a sitting, one is indeed lost in bewildering admiration, and perhaps half inclined to doubt the author's word. However much we may wonder at feats like these, we should not forget Sheridan's witty remark, "that very easy writing is generally very hard reading;" and comfort our commonplace selves with the thought that, in nine cases out of ten, genius in literature is like genius in practical life, little else than honest, indefatigable labor fortunately directed. The wise Lord Bacon has observed, "that prodigies, of what kind soever they may be, belong to what is monstrous in nature, and as they are not produced in accordance with the laws which determine man's condition, ought neither to be sought out nor imitated."—Cassell's Family Magazine

Will and I

(SONG)

In the sunlight, clear and golden,
In the starlight, dim and often,
Pleasantly we roamed together,
Up the hillside, over the water,
In the days so long gone by—
Will and I.

And the moments sped so fleetly,
Mid the flowers blooming sweetly,
That our hearts grew near each other,
As we lingered thus together—
Lingered 'neath the starlit sky—
Will and I.

But we parted from each other
With a pang each strove to smother,
Parted, as we thought, forever—
Looking forward, never—never—Dreaming of the days gone by—
Will and I.

But we were not thus to sever,
Tender though his came throbbing ever
'Round our hearts, with magic power
Whispering of each bygone hour,
'Till we felt love could not die—
Will and I.

So we journey now together
Walking closely, hand to hand,
Meeting calmly, strong at heart,
Now that we no more shall part,
Wintry storms, or summer sky—
Will and I.

When life's pilgrimage is ended,
May our souls still sweetly blend
Tried on earth and purified,
Wander upward, side by side,
To that home beyond the sky—
Will and I.

—REBECCA RUTHE SPRINGES.

THE Kiasograph, a new invention, will enable lovers to sit ten feet apart and stealthily indulge in oculatory exercises in the presence of the old folks. This is a great desideratum, certainly, but unless each end of the instrument is sweetened with some substance forty degrees sweeter than the best refined sugar in the market, the kisses will not taste as good as if the old folks were in bed or dozing in the kitchen. Fathers and mothers should cut this out and paste it in their hats.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eld and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from mint employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114½ Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

The attention of our lady friends and the fair sex of San Francisco is directed to an event of much importance to them, namely, The Spring Opening of the MILLINERY of MME. CONSTANT, at No. 314 Sutter Street. A new style of French Pattern Bonnets has just been received, which require to be seen and tried on to be appreciated, as no description could do them justice.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

An extensive assortment of SPRING STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of C. HEHRMANN, 402 Kearny Street and 910 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of last season, and superior articles for sale.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A MIANO, visit the new warehouse opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chi Mering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

If your WATCH needs repairing, take it to L. TOEPLITZ, 225 Dupont Street, second door from Butler. Work first-class, and prices reasonable.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, generally known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $1—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many actions. For list of papers and further information call on or address is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes. Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars, etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co. Gentlemen—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DISTRIBUTION OF CHARACTERS

Evangeline, our heroine, a creature of impulse and an impetuous pet, pursued through love's impatient prompting, by Gabriel, with a view to edacious contingencies—by a whale... Miss Catherine Lewis Catherine, the very mildest type of ante-nuptial mother-in-law—but wait... Mr. Sol Smith Russell Eulalie, Evangeline's 'confidante,' confidently hoping Woman's Rights... Miss Lizzie McCall Queen Booriboolo Gha, the King's much better adviser and super-vicer of his whole conduct... Miss Viola Barnes Mary Ann, Evangeline's waiting-maid... Miss Hattie Richardson Gabriel, our hero, a fascinating and perambulating young lover—in point of fact a 'roaming' Romeo... Miss Lizzie Webster Le Blanc, a lawyer of the 'shyster' stamp, with a 'will' and a 'way' equally dark... Mr. Richard Golden Capt. Dietrich, a Dutch mercenary in the British ranks, who shows no mercy, being a mercy-mary cuss... Mr. George S. Knight The Lone Fisherman, a patient and singularly taciturn toiler of the sea, with a natural tendency to 'hook' whatever comes within his reach... Mr. Harry Hunter Bazil, Evangeline's sire, whose vacillating mind is divided between the 'rental' of her prospective husband and his own 'parental' affection... Mr. E. S. Tarr King Booriboolo Gha, royal proprietor of the mid-African diamond fields, who, not being able to hear anything 'near,' occupies 'an ear' trumpet... Mr. Edwin S. Tarr Hans Wagner, a spiritual 'corporal' with undue 'corporal' proportions... Mr. Chas. Rosine The Jailor, never without his key, vocal or instrumental, consequently always on the 'qui vive'... Mr. Horace Frail Grab... a couple of the King's 'cops'... Mr. H. Voss, Jr. Runemin... per'colored 'Cops'... Mr. Wm. Bullock Ringbolt... a brace of conscientious deserters who... G. Everett Deadshake... left their ship simply because they... S. R. Morse

The Policeman, called by some a peeler, possibly because he was never known to heed any appeal a prisoner might make, "Lucas a non," and all that sort of thing... Mr. H. E. Dixey Lo, the poor Indian, the 'loest' and 'lonest' savage of them all... Mr. D. R. Steele The Headsman, not a mimic of stupid people, but very clever at taking off 'blockheads'... Mr. S. M. Grant The Conductor, though given to much punch up, better acquainted with the P. R. R. than the P. R... Miss Annie Lee The Heifer, specially imported from 'Cows'... Fishermen, Sailors, Soldiers, Acadian Peasants, Africans, etc.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, generally known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines aggregate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. For list of papers and further information call on or address

DISTRIBUTION OF CHARACTERS

Evangeline, our heroine, a creature of impulse and an impetuous pet, pursued through love's impatient prompting, by Gabriel, with a view to edacious cootings—by a whale.....Miss Catherine Lewis
wait.....Miss Lizzie McCall
Rights.....Miss Lizzie McCall
Queen Booriboolah Gha, the King's much better adviser and super-vicer of his whole conduct.....Miss Viola Barnes
Mary Ann, Evangeline's waiting-maid.....Miss Hattie Richardson
Gabriel, our hero, a fascinating and perambulating young lover—in point of fact a 'roaming' Romeo.....Miss Lizzie Webster
Le Blanc, a lawyer of the 'shyest' 'shyster' stamp, with a 'will' and a 'way' equally dark.....Mr. Richard Golden
Capt. Dietrich, a Dutch mercenary in the British ranks, who shows no mercy, being a mercy-nary cuss.....Mr. George S. Knight
The Lone Fisherman, a patient and singularly taciturn toiler of the sea, with a natural tendency to 'hook' whatever comes within his reach.....Mr. Harry Hunter
Bazil, Evangeline's sire, whose vacillating mind is divided between the 'rental' of her prospective husband and his own 'parental' affection.....Mr. E. S. Tarr King Booriboolah Gha, royal proprietor of the mid-African diamond fields, who, not being able to hear anything 'near,' occupies
'an ear' trumpet.....Mr. Edwin S. Tarr
Hans Wagner, a spiritual 'corporal' with undue 'corporal' proportions.....Mr. Chas. Rosine
The Tailor, never without his key, vocal or instrumental, consequent ly always on the 'qui vive'.....Mr. Horace Frail
Grab.....a couple of the King's 'cop'.....Mr. H. Voss, Jr.
Runemin.....per' colored 'Cops'.....Mr. Wm. Bullock
The Policeman, called by some a peeler, possibly because he was never known to heed any 'appal' a prisoner might make, 'Lucas a non,' and all that sort of thing.....Mr. H. E. Dixey
Lo, the poor Indian, the 'loest' and 'lonest' savage of them all.....Mr. D. R. Steele
The Headman, not a mimic of stupid people, but very clever at taking off 'blockheads'.....Mr. S. M. Crane
ed with the P. R. R. than the P. R. R. itself.....Miss Annie Lee
The Heifer, specially imported from 'Cows'.....
Fishermen, Soldiers, Academic Peasants, Africans, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Miss Augusta Dargon will this evening assume the character of 'Lady Gay Spanker' in Boucicault's comedy "London Assurance," to be followed by a change of character every evening during the week. On Monday she will appear in that terrible character, 'Meg Merriles,' in Sir Walter Scott's "Guy Mannering." Jefferson will star at the California after the present engagement of Miss Dargon.

Grand Opera House

"Evangeline" is announced to be withdrawn after the present week, although it has turned out to be unlike the majority of dramatic attractions, being considered better the oftener it is seen. "Conrad, the Corsair," which will bring in play the full strength of the Evangeline Company, will be the Saturday evening attraction.

Bush Street Theater

For the first time since the advent of the Haverly Minstrel Company we were enabled last evening through the courtesy of Manager Locke, to obtain sitting room and to enjoy the great pleasure of getting acquainted with the budget of charcol sketches of the talented artists in color. There is no doubt about the standard of public estimate already established by the Haverly Minstrels. They are, in the simple but very expressive words of the classic poet, "away up." We do not refer to the Greek but to the San Francisco modern classics; the language of to-day is good enough for us, we wish something new for the columns of the Footlight and do not desire a two-thousand year-old quotation, and this is where the chief merit of the Haverly Minstrelsy lies, it is fresh, new, and sparkles like champagne or the bead on proof brandy.

After the usual introductory overture, the first song given, "Darling I will come again," with chorus and orchestral accompaniment, tell at once that we are in the presence of artists. The voices of the quartette are well balanced and in good accord, and the orchestral accompaniment is in perfect harmony. This result speaks of individual talent, thorough rehearsals, correct judgment, and excellent taste of the director. Both the tenor and baritone of the company are gifted with fine sympathy-etic voices well adapted for ballad minstrelsy. The end men have an apparently inexhaustible amount of witty sayings and doings. Richmond's pocket-book of patent plaster certificates being of the most humorous and ludicrous character imaginable; and Thatcher's introduction of localisms in his comic song being one of the best efforts made in that line.

The burlesque lyric uproar of Rice at the commencement of part second keeps the house in a tumult of applause, and Thatcher and the rest in their originalities require to be listened to and looked at to be fully enjoyed. Secure your seats early.

Emerson's Opera House

It is really surprising to find how well filled this place of amusement continues to be upon each successive representation of "Joshua Whitcomb." The management is reaping the reward of good judgment and careful attention to detail. Everything connected with the theater is wound up and goes like clock-work. 'Uncle Josh' will hold the boards and offer his pumpkins for sale every evening till further notice.

Baldwin's Theater

"A Celebrated Case" will be reproduced by the Union Square Company this evening.

Herold Matinee

The most conspicuous feature of yesterday's programme was Raff's Symphony, "In the Woods." The Dance of the Dryads, in the second part of the symphony (Twilight), was rendered in a fantastic and elfin-like manner. The piece ends with the wierd murmurs in the forest at night, and the Wild Hunt with Frau Hollie (Hulda) and Wotan, after which comes the daylight and dissolves the spell. Hermann's Capriccio for three solo violinists, by Messrs. Henry Heyman, Henry Widmer, and Henry Honteier, was a classical selection, and its scholarly rendition by those artists deserved the encore which it received. Weber's "Oberon" closed the programme.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

THE Occidental Club will picnic at Badger's Park on Saturday.

BILLY Rice's health will not permit him to play more than once a night.

HOLLOWAY, the English clown, takes the place of Ted Almonte at Barnum's Circus.

BOBBY Newcomb gives some clever imitations of Aimee, at the S. F. Minstrels, New York.

THREE African lions have been added to the Zoological Department at Woodward's gardens.

LOUIS ALDRICH accompanies Mr. and Mrs. McKee Rankin to this city, and will appear in "The Danites."

THE Phila. Dramatic and Musical Mirror has secured a local correspondent who slings a decidedly caustic pen.

THE first of the benefit entertainments for the Rev. Father Rogers' church will be given this evening at Pacific Hall.

THE Australian steamer is expected from Australia to-day, with the Troubadours and other professionals on board.

REHEARSALS under Prof. Morgan, for the grand May Festival, are held at the Metropolitan Temple every Friday evening.

A GRASS concert will be given this evening at Dietz Hall, Oakland, by Mr. Henry Heyman, violinist, graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Leipzig.

At the marriage of Rothschild to Roseberry, she appeared without a single piece of jewelry, although the possessor of a quantity of it of almost fabulous value.

THE diamonds of Ex-Queen Isabella of Spain, are valued at three million dollars. They are now in the vault of the Bank of France and will be sold in Paris in July.

DR. CAEVER, the glass ball demolisher, missed fire at Denver the other day, or rather he failed to fire himself fast enough after the East-bound train and was left behind.

THE light of other days has returned to the Pittsburg Opera House. On the 11th of April that theater was illuminated with candles and coal oil lamps. Times are hard and gas is high in Pittsburg.

POOR AMISCHER in a letter written before strychnine triumphed over a weak mind, expressed the hope that he should "meet his beloved wife on the stage of the next world."—N. Y. Clipper, April 20

MANAGER HAVELY regrets that the Bimsh Street Theater is not made of India Rubber, so to enable it to stretch sufficient to hold all the people that are now turned away nightly for the want of room.

THE N. Y. Clipper informs its readers that Salisbury, the famous troubadour, is no relation of the English minister Salisbury whose recent remarks called forth such a spirited rejoinder from the Russian who's Gotsnebakoff.

TO-morrow evening, at the Grand Opera House, a benefit will be given to Sol Smith Russell, who will give specially for the occasion his character sketches of "Hoose, with Sage and Ingins" and "Doreus Penroyal," the maiden of uncertain age. This will be in addition to the burlesque of "Evangeline."

A GALLERY boy at Baldwin's remarked the other night, on witnessing that portion of the scene in "Saratoga" where 'Bob Saekett' encounters the fainting form of his "wood nymph" that "Jimmy O'Neill had a soft thing," evidently in complimentary allusion to the interesting situation rather than the interesting lady herself.

How Carl Schurz Won his Spurs

It was in Spandau that the adventure occurred which won Carl Schurz his knight's spurs—if one may use a medieval figure in this unknighly age. But the whole adventure is thoroughly romantic. Before the troubles of 1848, Schurz was studying medicine at Bonn, and there became intimate with the poet and professor Gottfried Kinkel. This Kinkel was a wild, visionary writer, but seems to have possessed that personal magnetism which secures the trust and most self-sacrificing friends. Both he and Schurz took part in the so-called Baden revolution in 1849—a campaign which, so far as the revolutions were concerned, resembled more closely a Fenian invasion of Canada than any other military event with which I am acquainted. At the break-up those patriots who were able crossed the frontier into France and Switzerland; Schurz reached the latter country; but Kinkel was caught and locked up in the penitentiary at Spandau, where he spent most of his time in spinning yarn for the Government's benefit. His friends, however, were not going to let him pine away at this useful but un congenial employment without making an effort to release him from it. His wife—a woman of great energy of character—wrote to Schurz, asking if he was ready to help, and he came at once to Bonn to see her. From there he went with letters to a quite trustworthy person in Berlin, notably to a certain physician there, and these two, with the assistance of a country gentleman living in the neighborhood of Spandau, arranged and carried out the daring attempt. They succeeded in bribing a turnkey, who, between eleven and twelve at night, having provided himself with a duplicate key to Kinkel's cell, which hung in the prison office, and a rope, let the latter out, and got him on to the roof of the building, whence he was let down to the street, where Schurz and the physician were waiting. They conducted him with all possible haste to a neighboring inn, where a suit of plain clothes was awaiting him, the doctor taking in exchange his prison gear, which he intended, and, to his sorrow, actually did preserve as a relic, though implored by his friends to destroy so dangerous a possession. For not long afterward, he being suspected of having a hand in Kinkel's flight, his house was searched, and the clothes being found, he was sentenced to a long term in prison and died there. This, however, is a digression. After the change of dress was effected, the before-mentioned country gentleman appeared with a carriage and a span of fine horses, himself on the box, and, after Schurz and Kinkel had got in, started for the Mecklenburg boundary. They reached in safety the port of Rostock, being everywhere helped by trustworthy friends, and from there the two sailed for Scotland in a vessel dispatched by its generous owner solely to convey them. Mr. Schurz was at this time (November, 1850) but twenty-two years old.

—Harper's Magazine, May.

Cas a Diva

An English paper publishes the following story of "Papa" Bateman, purporting to come from a Boston correspondent. On one occasion Miss Kate was going by steamer to Philadelphia, her father, as usual, accompanying her. Some slight accident to the vessel occurred, which caused alarm for awhile. Bateman raged, pacing up and down the deck, and gesticulating violently. A fellow-passenger, with a view to comfort him, told him there was no danger, that he need not be afraid. "Afraid!" roared Bateman; "do you suppose that I fear for myself? I don't care a rush for myself! It is my gifted child that I am thinking of. It's the infernal villain, the captain, who has endangered the life of my god-like daughter, that I'm mad about. He's worse than a pirate, he ought to be hanged this moment. One of the hairs of my divine Kate is worth more than the lives of every man, woman, and child on this crazy old tub. Oh! my god-like daughter!"

A Horse Trade

When Abraham Lincoln was a lawyer in Illinois, he and the judge got to hanting one another about trading horses, and it was agreed that the next morning at nine o'clock they should make a trade, the horses to be unseen up to that hour, and no backing out, under a forfeiture of twenty-five dollars. At the hour appointed the judge came up leading the strictest-looking specimen of a horse ever seen in those parts. In a few minutes Mr. Lincoln was seen approaching with a wooden saw-horse upon his shoulders. Great were the shouts and the laughter of the crowd, and both were greatly incensed when Mr. Lincoln, on surveying the judge's animal, set down his saw-horse, and exclaimed, "Well, judge, this is the first time I ever got the worst of it in a horse trade!"—Ez.

A FARMER told a friend of his, who had come from town for a few days shooting, that he once had so excellent a gun that it went off immediately upon a thief coming into the house, although not charged. "Wonderful gun, indeed," said the sportsman, "but how did it happen—must have been an Irish gun." "Not at all," said farmer, "the thief and it went off together, and before I had time to charge him with it." A regular sell.

MR. LESTER was one day standing in Market Square, when four Irishmen came up, one of whom asked the distance to Pawtucket. He was told that it was about four miles. "Well, faith," said Pat, in a mock tone of encouragement to his three tired companions, "that's not bad at all—only a mile apiece for us!" "Whom do you want to see in Pawtucket?" inquired Mr. Lester. "Be jabers," was the quick reply, "I want to see myself there the most of anybody!"

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, generally known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Lilies, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

THE FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and visitors will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHURBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Gentlemen: The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic that it sustains the volume to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We heartily commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Miss Dargon appeared last evening as 'Lady Gay Spanker,' thus affording us an opportunity of judging her in a character extremely opposite to that of 'Mary of England.' In both instances she has proven her ability, and may justly be regarded as one of the best actresses who has ever visited California. She was ably assisted by Mr. Barton Hill, as 'Charles Courtley,' and Mr. Henry Edwards, as 'Sir Harcourt Courtley,' most likely the last opportunity we will have of seeing him in that character here. The 'Dazzle' of Mr. John Wilson and 'Pert' of Miss Belle Chapman were very well represented, and Miss Eleanor Carey, as 'Grace Harkaway,' sustained the favorable opinion that lady has already for herself established. 'The School for Scandal' this evening. Miss Dargon as 'Lady Teazle.'

Grand Opera House

For the benefit of Mr. Sol Smith Russell, 'Evangeline' will be given this evening. Between the acts he will appear in his specialties, which of themselves are enough to draw an immense audience. Those who have not seen Mr. Russell in his most comical sketches will be rewarded, if present this evening, with the greatest possible amount of enjoyment. Last performance of 'Evangeline' at matinee to-morrow.

Bush Street Theater

The rush to see the Haverly Company still continues, and those who visit find one of the most entertaining performances ever given in this city. The large majority of the business is quite new to San Francisco and as the audience waits patiently till the curtain drops, it is a sign that it is perfectly well satisfied with the entertainment. Matinee performance to-morrow afternoon.

Emerson's Opera House

'Joshua Whitcomb' this and every evening till further notice. Those who enjoyed the first three acts during the six weeks run are now anxious to find out what happens in the fourth act, and the result is that the seventh week is quite as successful as any of the preceding.

Baldwin's Theater

'A Celebrated Case' to-night.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

ONE of Dr. Richmond's patients was so thin that he had to use him for a paper-cutter.

NICK ROBERTS' 'EMPTY-1/2-EMPTY' TROUPE appear at Piper's Opera House on Monday next.

MR. JOSEPH MAAS who was here with Kellogg is now a member of the Carl Rosa Company in London.

At the Grand, this evening, Sol Smith Russell will have a benefit and give some of his peculiar comicalities.

CARL ZERRAEN, the eminent conductor of the Boston Jubilee, will be the chief maestro at the Grand May Musical Festival.

THE free list has been suspended at the Vandeville Theater, London, where 'Our Boys' will be played to-night for the 1060 successive time.

THE Herbert Fitzherbert of Fred Maeder in 'The Victims' played at Piper's on Tuesday evening is spoken of by the Gold Hill News as a decided success.

AN amateur performance of 'Saratoga' will be given this evening at Dietz Hall, Oakland. A special train and ferry boat will bring back visitors from this city.

THE COUNT JOHANNES is reported coming to San Francisco. It will be a heavy tax on our theater-goers if he should get here when eggs are at 50 cents a dozen.

PRIOR to her departure for Europe, Mrs. May A. Banta, a pupil of Sig. Mancusi, will receive a complimentary benefit at Pacific Hall, on Tuesday evening, May 7.

THE late M. Charles Hugo's dramatization of his father's celebrated story 'Les Miserables,' occupies five hours on the stage as played at the Porte St. Martin, Paris, where it is a success.

THE Philharmonic Society of San Jose, with an ambition worthy of success, performed 'Belshazzar's Feast' at the San Jose Opera House, on Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week.

KENNEDY'S 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' Company opens to-night in Virginia City, at Piper's Opera House. Billings and Barrows are cast for the same characters they played at the Grand, and Miss Alice Howard appears as 'Topsy.' John Leach accompanies the party.

DURING the indisposition of Miss Neilson—the adorable Adelaide—her place at the Theater Royal, Haymarket, London, was filled by Miss Erntstone, whom the critics have just discovered to be 'one of the best actresses in the highest line of the legitimate on the English stage.'

DEACON BILL of Gold Hill has made a discovery, being nothing less than a new way of getting to heaven. His plan is to go up in a balloon beyond the line of decomposition and stay there till the day of judgment, so that when the angel Gabriel blows his horn he will be one of the first to enter.

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

Ed. FOOTLIGHT:—
Union Square Theater.—'A Celebrated Case,' now playing at this famous theater, is, beyond doubt, the best drama ever offered the New York public and fully deserves the liberal patronage bestowed upon it. The pathos of the grand story is well portrayed by the great actress, Miss Sarah Jewett, the beautiful Miss Dietz, and the accomplished Mr. Coghlan. The remainder of the cast is in competent hands, and the play is mounted in a style commensurate with every requirement.

Tony Pastor's.—This popular bijou of a theater is in the very zenith of success. It presents an olio bill of rare excellence each week, and is richly deserving of the immense patronage it creates. The management is in able hands, and the attractions brought forward for public approbation are the very first in the variety catalogue.

Theater Comique.—At no place in New York can the visitor pass a more enjoyable evening than with the ever popular Harrigan and Hart. Their programme is always fresh and overflowing with good things. 'The Celebrated Hard Case,' Harrigan's last burlesque, is brim-full of wit, humor, and excellent music, and should not fail to win good opinion and a golden reward.

SAN FRANCISCO MINSTRELS.—These excellent caterers to the public, Messrs. Birch, Wambold, and Backus, are still keeping on the stage their laughable burlesque of the 'Funny Babies.' The rest of the programme is entirely new. Mr. Bobby Newcomb has written a new song, and with it gives a new dance. His last imitation of Mlle. Amnee is his best, and the audience enjoy it most heartily. Ricardo comes out in a change of dress and song, and French, the great banjoist, has produced some fresh and sparkling jokes.

THE Great London Circus and Sanger's Mammoth Menagerie are playing to medium business at Gilmore's Garden. The grand and unequalled Mme. Dockrill, whose challenge to the equestrian world to compete with her in difficult feats of horsemanship for $10,000, remains unaccepted. The other members are James Robinson, the champion rider of the world, William Gorman, the famous hurdle rider, the fascinating juggler rider, Miss Pauline Lee, Johnny Patterson, clown, the Kennel Brothers, Livingstons and Murtz, Frank Gardiner, and the superb menage—horse performer, Mr. Dockrill.

At the farewell concert which is to be given to Mr. S. B. Mills, on the 24th of this month, the principal attraction, after Mills' own playing, will be his duet with Mr. Max Pinner, the favorite pupil of Liszt.

At the Standard Theater, Mr. J. K. Emmet opened on Monday, April 15, in 'Fritz, Our Cousin German,' to large audiences.

Grand Opera House.—The humorous dialect actor, Mr. J. C. Williamson, and his handsome wife, Miss Maggie Moore, opened on Monday, the 15th of April, to an immense business. Our old friend, Mr. John McCallough, begins a three weeks' engagement at this famous theater, formerly Fisk's Grand Opera House.

At Wallack's Theater, 'Diplomacy' is the great success, with Wallack, Montague, and a matchless cast.

At the Park Theater, 'Our Aldermen' are still in session, and are transacting a vast amount of business.

Fifth Avenue Theater.—'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' with Mr. and Mrs. Howard in the title role, to medium business.

Heller's Theater.—The story of Blue Beard, witty and marvelous, and a long line of blood-curdling and awe-inspiring tricks must be seen by all to be appreciated.

THE N. F. Clipper, of April 20th, publishes the following memoir of Ted Almonte, the clown, who died in New York on the 10th inst.:

'He was born in England in 1812, and about 1868 entered the arena as a member of the circus under Frederick Ginnett, one of two brothers well known in England as managers. With Ginnett he traveled but a short time, and then he enrolled himself under the banner of Benjamin Bonn, who had what was called the Russian Circus; he then joined the Sangers, whose establishment, like that of the Henglers, has been noted in England a quarter of a century. During the three seasons Almonte was with it, it traveled in the Summer, and in the Winter located at Agricultural Hall, London, where was brought out the grand cavalcade of 'The Congress of Monarchs,' known here as 'The Congress of all Nations,' and which at Agricultural Hall attracted on several occasions as large an attendance as thirty-seven thousand people in one day. It was the Sangers who in 1870 transformed Howes & Cushing's Circus into an unprofitable enterprise after it had promised so much. It is a peculiarity of the English public that, when two or more circuses are announced to appear in the same town, they will wait for the one that is to come last. By billing so as to make it appear that they would succeed Howes & Cushing on the next day, the Sangers induced the people to stay away from their rivals' entertainment and wait for their own. But, instead of following up Howes & Cushing's, they let the people wait, and meanwhile took in nearly all the best towns in the North before the managers of the American circus began to see through the Britons' strategy. Subsequently the Sangers followed their rivals so closely that in Preston both shows performed on the same day—a memorable one in England's circus annals. This was virtually the end of Howes & Cushing's Circus in England. In the following Spring it returned to America. Egbert Howes' Great London Circus and Sangers' English Menagerie was the title of the show with which Almonte came to America, as an Italian trick-clown. He arrived here on April 3, 1873, and on the 13th of that month, at Mott Haven, now a fragment of this city, but then independent of it, he made his American debut. He remained with Howes for almost two seasons, and for a time was with L. B. Lent. On Dec. 11, 1872, the Imperial Brazilian Hippodrome and Great California Circus was established in the buildings known as National Hall, 1224, 1226 and 1228 Market Street, Philadelphia. Almonte was trick-clown with this show also, while Pete Conkling did the orthodox jesting. It promised to be a permanent institution in Philadelphia, but a lease of the building could not be got, and the season had to close on Jan. 4, 1871. Almonte returned to England, and for a season was with the Hengler Brothers. While there he was engaged for John H. Murray's Railroad Circus. Sailing from Liverpool on March 12, 1874, in company with Fredericks, the great globe-performer, with Miss Louisa Fredericks, the equestrienne, and with John Cottrell, the trick-clown, he reappeared in America at Newark, N. J., on April 6th. Leaving Murray's Circus after the season of 1874-75, he joined Springer's Circus-lodon, with which he remained but a few months, for on Sept. 23, 1875, he sailed from here for South America with Chiarini's Circus. It is supposed that in South America, where so many of Chiarini's people have laid their bones, he contracted malaria, as otherwise it is not easy to account for the array of diseases that carried him off. His first intimation of serious illness was when some of the members of the London show headed by Charles W. Fish, the rider, with John H. Murray's horses, and with James M. Nixon as director, reorganized and opened at the Bowery Theater, this city, early in January last. It was a cold night, and Almonte had no sooner struck the ring than he was chilled to the bone and had to leave it. The season just entered upon was the second of his association with Barnum's show, which he had joined in 1876-7. He was a tumbler, as well as a clown, but not a rider. His funeral took place from 121 Third Avenue, on Sunday, April 14, under the direction of the Equestrian Benevolent Association, of which he was vice-president.'

A YOUNG Philadelphian won the lovely daughter of a wealthy merchant upon representing that he was making $100 a day. They were married, and it has since been discovered that he does make that handsome sum, but it is in the mint, where his salary is but $14 per week.

THE first umbrella appeared in England in the year 1777; but history does not inform us when the first umbrella disappeared, or who carried it off. Almost any man can tell about what time the last umbrella disappeared.

AN extensive assortment of SPRING STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of C. MURMANN, 402 Kearny Street and 910 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of last season, and superior articles for sale.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warerooms opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

Select, Very!

My Arabeller,
No ripe and meller,
And, good-as-all,
Can't she love a feller?
Her eyes are black,
And pink her smeller,
And, goodness!
Can't she hug a feller?
Her cheeks are red,
Her hair is yellor,
And, goodness!
Can't she kiss a feller?

In a trial at Winchester, a witness failing to make his version of a conversation intelligible by reason of his fondness for 'says I' and 'says he,' was taken in hand by Baron Martin, with the following result: 'My man, tell us now exactly what passed.' 'Yes, my Lord. I said I would not have the pig.' 'And what was his answer?' 'He said he had been keeping it for me, and that he—' 'No, no; he could not have said that, as he spoke in the first person.' 'No, my Lord; I was the first person that spoke.' 'I mean, don't bring in the third person; repeat the exact words.' 'There was no third person, my Lord; only him and me.' 'My good fellow, he did not say he had been keeping the pig; he said, "I have been keeping it." I assure you, my Lord, there was no mention of your Lordship at all. We are on different stories. There was no third person there, and if anything had been said about your Lordship, I must have heard it.' The Baron gave in.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from hotel employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danleffs' Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

The attention of our lady friends and the fair sex of San Francisco is directed to an event of much importance to them, namely The Spring Opening of the MILLINERY of MME. CONSTANT, at No. 314 Sutter Street. A new style of French Pattern Bonnets has just been received, which require to be seen and tried on to be appreciated, as no description could do them justice.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, generally known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines square) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. For list of papers and further information call on our address.

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Richie's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Decker Brothers' PIANOS

The DECKER BROTHERS' Grand Pianos used by the Musical Congress at their Grand Operatic Concerts and Musical Festivals, recently given at the American Academy of Music, were remarkable for their superior quality of tone and extraordinary power. Finer instruments in every respect we have never heard.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co., Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is a soft and sympathetic that sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

"School for Scandal" was given here last evening with the principal character assumed by Miss Augusta Dargon. Very seldom has any actor or actress been gifted with the great talent of being equally excellent in both tragedy and comedy. It is usual for Melpomene and Thalia to claim the whole worship of their respective devotees. Garrick was one most notable exception to the general rule, while Mrs. Siddons would head the list of those whose talent and devotion were singular. After seeing Miss Dargon as 'Mary of England,' we were surprised at her complete transformation into the character of 'Lady Teazle' last evening. Her versatile ability deserves better recognition at the hands of our patrons of the legitimate drama. Harry Edwards was 'Sir Peter Teazle' true to life—the very picture of the Knight himself. Nothing finer in acting could be wished than the scenes between him and 'Lady Teazle.' Bishop made an excellent and most laughable 'Crabtree,' and Miss Car y, as 'Mrs. Candour,' sustained the character in a clever and vivacious manner.

Altogether the piece was well cast and admirably played. 'East Lynne' will be given at matinee and 'Lucretia Borgia' at evening performance to-day.

Grand Opera House

"Evangeline" for the last time at the matinee this afternoon. Between the acts, Sol Smith Russell will repeat his lecture on the goose, with sage and ingenuities, and which, with his other specialties, will be henceforth a feature at the future performances of the Evangeline Company. A most laughable grand burlesque pas de deux entitled "The He-males," will be given this evening by the premiers danseuse Mrs. Knight and Russell. First performance of "Conrad, the Corsair," to-night.

Bush Street Theater

Another crowded house last evening—every seat taken, and money refused at the box office. The prospects are that the Minstrel Company are booked for a most successful run. Matinee performance this afternoon.

Emerson's Opera House

A matinee performance of "Joshua Whitcomb" will be given this afternoon, and the evening performance will as usual be seen by the elite of San Francisco society; many of whom recognize in the pictures of the comedy, familiar reminiscences of their early days.

Baldwin's Theater

The Salisbury Troubadours, who arrived yesterday from Australia, will open here on Monday evening. "A Celebrated Case" will be given by the Union Square Company this evening.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

THE Tronbadours are domiciled at the Palace.

JOHN McCULLOUGH is playing in Detroit, Michigan.

JOSH HART's startling play of "Chicago" will be brought out at Haverly's Theater on Monday evening.

310,000 a year is the rate at which Mora, of New York, disposes of the photos of footlight celebrities. We wait to hear from Riemann.

"CUSTER'S LAST CHARGE," painted by Weilenbek, of Philadelphia, price $1000, may be seen at Amos Currier's, 225 Kearny Street.

A NEATLY bound volume, containing the choruses to be sung at the May Festival, has just been issued from the printing house of Sterrett & Co.

CHAS. R. THORNE, Jr., will star in "St. Marc," a play presented to him by Mrs. Danvenport, on account of his peculiar fitness for the lending role.

MISS ENO WAINSWORTH will make her debut at the farewell benefit tendered to Mrs. Mary Banta, at Platt's Hall, on Tuesday evening, May 7th.

NELLIE McHENRY, of the Troubadours, just arrived from Australia, was so overjoyed on reaching terra firma again, that she danced a regular "break-down" on the steamer-wharf where the passengers landed.

McKEE RANKIN and wife (Miss Kitty Blanchard) left New York for 'Frisco last Tuesday, consequently they arrive here on the 28th inst., and will domicile at the elegant apartments prepared for them at the Baldwin.

TRACY TITUS, the former husband of Mrs. Jas. A. Oates, and the late partner of Manager Locke, of the Bush Street Theater, arrived by the Australian boat. Now ye gods and managers get ready for an accounting.

THE Western people do not take us kindly to the Polish actress Moljeska as they did East. She played in St. Louis last week against Kate Claxton, and created anything but a furore—in fact, her houses were continually papered.

MISS ADA GRAY, the English actress lately from Australia, plays to-night in Salt Lake City. Oliver Doud Byron closed an engagement there on the 17th, and was followed by F. C. Bangs on the 19th, for one night only, in readings from Shakespeare.

OFFENBACH's new opera bouffe, "Maitre Peronilla," will be produced simultaneously in London, Vienna, Milan, Brussels, Lyons, and Marseilles. What's the matter with the Paris and New York managers—as for San Francisco there is no stray cash at present around here.

A COUPLE of grangers meeting in front of the Speaking Telephone Company's office, on Sansome Street, yesterday, and discoursing the prospective rise in wheat and other matters, talked so loud that the clerk at the Butchertown end of the line commenced talking back to them.

THE Salisbury Troubadours arrived last night per "City of Sydney" from Australia, and will open Monday night at Baldwin's Academy in

"Gaily the Troubadour Put down the light,"
and the manifold nonsensicals of "Patchwork."

LONGFELLOW's "Hanging of the Crane," cost Robert Bonner $20 a line. The Footlight poet asks us to mention that he will furnish copy for less money, at ten seconds' notice, suitable for any occasion and on any subject, from the hanging of Crane or Runk, or any other man, down to the immortality of the soul, or the Chinese invasion, or any other heroic subject; enclose ten cents for sample.

KATE CLAXTON and her Two Orphan Combination played to splendid business last week in St. Louis. Our talented young friend, Miss Carrie Wyatt, the former popular juvenile of the California, is with Miss Claxton, playing 'Marianne, the Outcast,' and judging from the extremely complimentary tone of the St. Louis press, her emotional talents appear to have taken a strong hold upon our Western friends.

WHEN our young friend, Katie Mayhew, played in "Miss," in Sacramento, a few months since, a "queer" genius named "Metkiff" made himself more notorious than popular by the way he enacted 'Yuba Bill.' He recently turned up at one of the variety theaters with a new California play, called "A Vision of Gold," of which he claimed the authorship. It now transpires that the play is a disguised version of Miss Mayhew's play, and the manner in which it came into Metkiff's possession can easily be surmised.

A COUPLE of footlight celebrities, whom for the nonce we will designate as Bob and Jack, whose knowledge of Shakespeare and good whisky is considerably more than their acquaintance with the unrevised version of the Bible, were bantering each other a short time ago about their relative intellectual capacity; at last to test the matter Jack offered to bet Bob a new hat that he could not repeat the Lord's prayer. Robert accepted and commenced:

"When I lay me down to sleep,
I pray Thee, Lord, my soul to keep,
If I should die before I wake,
I pray Thee, Lord, my soul to take."

Jack at once, like a man, acknowledged the loss of the wager and they adjourned to Hermann's.

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

OAKLAND, April 26, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—Last evening we had the finest concert of the season, that of Henry Heyman. He had a crowded house and the floral presentations were something beautiful, especially the one to the beneficiary, in the shape of a harp, being four feet high. A pleasant feature of the evening was the piano performance of the Herold Brothers on two Decker Bros. grand pianos, which were remarkable for their pure and sympathetic tone. To-night we have "Saratoga," by a company of Oakland amateurs. Next Monday, the second concert of the series of the Schmidt Quintette; and on Tuesday evening next Miss Mary E. Wadsworth gives an operatic and dramatic entertainment at the Germania Hall, which promises to be one of the finest affairs of the season. She will be assisted by Miss Alice Kingsbury, Miss Eva Wadsworth, Messrs. Koppel, Mancusi, and other eminent musicians, and we expect a large immigration of lovers of music from San Francisco.

AN artist in this city has only to seat himself with his feet elevated on the window-sill, to create an impression on passers-by that his office has been provided with inside blinds. —Ex.

THE first ambition of Edison, the inventor of the telephone, was to be a tragedian. Just think what would have been lost to the world of science, and how little in all probability gained to the world of art, had he yielded to his youthful desires. —Ex.

ALMOST the first anecdote recorded of the famous Colly Cibber is that he made some blunder that angered Betterton, who brusquely inquired who he was and what was his salary. Being informed that the name of the youth was Cibber, and that he received none, Betterton said: "Put him down ten shillings, and forfeit him five"—a remarkable instance of conscientious punishment. —Ex.

THE most beautiful Indian girl, according to all accounts, now living, and one who by reason of her beauty, intelligence and spirit, has attained to a unique influence, which is acknowledged among the warriors and defended by twenty fiery brothers and cousins, is Etisca, the "White Forehead of the Uncapapas." Etisca is Sitting Bull's niece. She is only fifteen years old, straight as an arrow, lithe as a serpent, soft as a dove, and eyed like a fawn. Her gaiety is incorrigible. At the battle of Rosebud, where Custer was overwhelmed, and when she was a mere child, she laughed incessantly in the midst of the carnage, riding her pony like a sprite. —Ex.

A Student's Adventure

When the train passed through Franklin the last time on its way to Columbus, there was a studious young man on board. He was reading a book. The book was green; fourteen inches long, ten inches wide, and four inches thick. The conductor had to neck the young man and shake him out of the middle of a chapter to get his ticket. Then the studious young man dived back into the chapter, a thousand fathoms deep. And so it was that when it stopped at Franklin, and started again, and passed the creek, and stopped at the water tank, and started again, and passed on even out of sight of the college, the young man aroused and looked forth, and commenced with himself.

And he said unto the brakeman, "Was it not Franklin through which we just passed?"

And the brakeman swore unto him, saying, "Yen bet yer boots."

And the young man smote upon his breast, saying, "Stop her; stop her."

But the brakeman lifted up his voice and said, "Nay, not so."

And the passengers, when they saw the distress of the studious young man, were moved to mirth, and said one to another, "Ha! ha! ha, ha!"

And there was weeping and wailing, and it came to pass that when the young man, multis cum lachrymis, had sought the conductor, he pulled the bell-cord with great wrath, inasmuch that the engineer threw her clear over, and looked back to see whom he had slain, and recked not that he had mixed the passengers all up with the backs of the seats. And they said unto the young man, "Climb."

And he clomb.

And they handed out unto him his baggage, his changes of raiment, his extra cloak and his wittily effects, to wit, viz:

One russet valise; one black bag; one pasteboard box, medium; one pasteboard box, small; one hat box; one package book; one bird cage; two earthen pots containing house plants, to wit, respectively, one geranium, stalky, but leafless, one hyacinth, in bloom; one paper parcel, one overcoat; one roll of music; one paper bag, said to contain refreshments; one umbrella, large.

And it was three miles back to town, and no house was near, neither was any man in sight.

And the train passed on, and they wot not how in thunder he ever got back to Franklin, neither knoweth any man even unto this day. —Ex.

Aerial Navigation

THE Scientific American informs us that the time when aerial navigation will be within the reach of man is near at hand. Mr. Breray, the Secretary of the British Aeronautical Society, delivered an interesting lecture on the subject at the Grimsby Mechanical Institute, a short time ago. Having explained the rudiments of the science, and shown the progress it had made, he noted the singular fact that, although air is so much lighter than water, it possesses the power of supporting bodies much heavier than itself, while water only supports bodies of about its equal weight. "If man could get sufficient surface," he says, "he could surely get sufficient wind power for propulsion. Steam was at first thought of as the question, on account of the cumbersome method of generation; but now that it can be applied with light weight, it is hoped the question is very near solution. May," Mr. Breray states, "are now working at the problem in secret, partly from fear of ridicule, partly from want of protection by patent." He illustrated the different methods of flight by models. His birds "swooped down" upon the heads of the audience in quite a natural manner. The birds, too, rose and fell in graceful motion as they traversed the air from the platform to the end of the room, or, swerving to the right or left, bobbed their heads upon the side walls. One large model of an albatross came to grief upon a gas pendant, just as it was bending its flight into the regions of the upper air. —Ex.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Anna's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are such as to make of those in the establishment on Center St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from hotel employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons also by moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and sent in the latest Parisian style.

The attention of our lady friends and the fair sex of San Francisco is directed to an event of much importance to them, namely: The Spring Opening of the MILLINERY of MME. CONSTANT, at No. 314 Sutter Street. A new style of French Pattern Bonnets has just been received, which requires to be seen and tried on to be appreciated, as no other shop could do these justice.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, generally known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $400 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Rich's FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

Messrs. Sherman, Nyce & Co.
Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg Cary Opera Company feel it to be a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

—FOR— WASHING AND SHAMPOOING

No Housekeeper Should be Without It!

The best thing known for washing flannel, superior to anything for cleaning silk and velvet, the most cleansing for the body, for healing eruptions of the skin; when used as a shampoo, will cleanse the scalp and prevent the hair from falling out; when mixed with starch used for glazing shirts and other linens. By washing shelves or cupboards with this solution, ants and cockroaches and other insects will be driven away. Borax is the best thing known for curing rheumatism.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Miss Augusta Dargon will appear this evening as 'Meg Merriles' in 'Gny Manneering'; the present will be the last week of her engagement. On Saturday evening she will be the recipient of a farewell benefit. Miss Katherine Rogers will appear on Monday, May 6th, in 'Jauc Shore,' with new scenery by Voegtlin, and the old favorites, Alice Harrison and Tom Keene in the cast.

Grand Opera House

'The Corsair' was brought out on Saturday evening to a full house. The piece is interspersed with many lively airs and choruses, which were given in a first rate manner. The Female Dancers and the specialties of Russell and Knight received immense applause. Miss Catherine Lewis gave the Grotto Drinking Song in brilliant style. The present week will be the last of the Evangeline Company. A special matinee will be given on Thursday afternoon for the benefit of Mr. Geo. S. Knight, and on Friday evening the most attractive bill of the present season will be given at the complimentary benefit of Mr. Charles S. Walton, when Miss Annie Pixley and other volunteers will assist.

Bush Street Theater

The Haverly Minstrels give a change of programme this evening; some more original sketches from their extensive repertoire will be given during the present week. They have met with a most flattering reception and their really excellent performances have awakened quite a revival in public taste for burnt cork minstrelsy. Secure your seats early if you wish to make sure of them.

Emerson's Opera House

The present will be the last week of 'Joshua Whitcomb' at this theater. On May 6th & 7th the company will appear at Dietz Opera House, Oakland; on the 8th and 9th, at San Jose; on the 10th and 11th, at Stockton; commencing on Monday, May 12th, at Sacramento, for one week; on the 20th and 21st, at Marysville; 22d, Nevada City; 23d and 24th, Grass Valley; 25th, Reno; thence to Virginia City, Elkins, Salt Lake, Ogden and Denver. Their success in San Francisco has been unprecedented.

Baldwin's Theater

Salisbury Troubadours will open here this evening.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

The Red Stocking Blondes appear this evening at the Adelphi Theater.

Miss LILLIE BARR will have a benefit to-night, at the Metropolitan Temple.

NICK ROBERTS' Inimpy-Dampty Company appear to-night in Virginia City.

The next Herold Matinee will be given on Wednesday afternoon, the programme for the occasion will be found under Amusements on opposite page.

A CONCERT will be given this evening at the Metropolitan Temple in compliment to Miss Lillie Barr, pupil of Mrs. Fabbri. Tickets at Sherman, Hyde & Co's.

MR. TOM MAGUIRE renewed his lease of Baldwin's Theater for five years last Saturday, with Mr. Cazauran as acting manager, and Mr. Geo. Chipman as Treasurer.

The sale of tickets for the May Festival commences to-day at Sherman, Hyde & Co's. The name of the celebrated contralto, Anna Drasdil, has been added to the list of soloists.

At Germania Hall, Oakland, to-morrow evening, Miss Mary E. Wadsworth assisted by Mrs. Mary Banta, Miss Eno Wadsworth, Signor Mancusi and others, will appear in a grand operatic and dramatic entertainment under the patronage of the ladies of Oakland.

ELLIE WILTON accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Bogart, left yesterday for Paris. The FOOTLIGHT appreciates the compliment contained in the following few lines received from her: 'I wish to keep posted on S. F. Theatrical matters and will feel obliged by your kind remembrance of me in sending the FOOTLIGHT daily.'

At the benefit announced for Friday evening in compliment to Mr. Charles S. Walton, Treasurer Grand Opera House, in addition to the full cast of the company in 'The Corsair,' Messrs. Russell and Knight will introduce their peculiar specialties. Mr. M. B. Curtis will give his laughable imitations, and Miss Annie Pixley has volunteered and will render some of her most select vocal items.

Acting under the advice of Signor G. Mancusi, the eminent music teacher of this city, Mrs. Mary Banta proceeds to Europe to finish her course of musical tuition at the celebrated Conservatory of Milan. During her journey eastward she is under engagement to sing at Denver, Colorado, at a concert to be given under the auspices of the Maennerchor of that city. Her farewell benefit is announced for Tuesday evening, May 7th, at Platt's Hall.

A California Item

The Oroville (Cal.) Mercury tells of a little country schoolmarm who harnesses her own horse, drives to school every morning and home at night; says she can dance divinely, is pretty and smart, and challenges the Quincy editor to find an equal, to which the National comes back as follows: 'Our schoolmarm stands five feet ten in her st—gaiters, and is prettier than an Arabian colt. She is smarter than anybody, and always makes the School Superintendent's arm tired cutting notches on his stick to tally the points she makes on examination day. She can ride bare-back the cussedest manning that was ever foaled, and can dance anything from the dance of death down to a square double-shuffle on a cedar puncheon. She can sing psalm tunes like a ten-octave angel, or beat any sport in the State at seven-up. She can ride snow shoes with nine-second 'dops' on 'em, and come through the winning posts while the Sacramento Valley woman would be getting ready to fall down. Now, if you really want to gamble on schoolmarms, wait till the snow gets off and bring along your stock. We'll send you home so fearfully broke that you'll have to spar your whiskey for six months to come.' We are going to send for that girl and get her a school in Philadelphia. We just want her here, in case General Wagner tries any more capers with the salaries. Imagine him taking off ten per cent. of her salary.—Phila. Ev. Bulletin.

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

WELLINGTON, NEW ZEALAND, March 30, 1878.

Mr. Lytton Sothorn will not leave New Zealand much heavier in pocket than when he came into it. He has played with moderate success in Dunedin and Christchurch, but in Wellington (where he has been at the Theater Royal for the past week) he has been what theatrical people term 'a frost.' And yet persons who are capable of pronouncing a judgment upon his acting, say that he is the best 'Lord Dundreary' that has ever yet appeared in New Zealand. That opinion I thoroughly endorse, and I only regret that he has so much reason to find fault with the people of Wellington for not giving him a generous and well merited support. Mr. Sothorn has also displayed considerable attainments in his assumption of 'David Garrick,' still he was allowed to play it to comparatively empty benches. Mr. Sothorn leaves Auckland for San Francisco on April 30th.

Mr. J. L. Hull and company are now performing at the Queen's Theater, Dunedin.

Cooper & Bailey's Circus opens here on April 12th. They have been doing an enormous business in all the New Zealand towns where they have already appeared. Crowded audiences await them in this city.

Messrs. H. E. Walton and Sam Howard, with a fair stock company, are at present performing in Napier.

Miss Florence Colville (Mrs. W. Hoskins) has gone to Sydney, and practically retired from the stage. Mr. Hoskins is advertising for a new company with which to re-open the Theater Royal, Christchurch.

Mr. W. C. Dillon has taken the Wellington Theater Royal for a three months' season. He has secured an excellent stock company, amongst whom is Mrs. Walter Hill, who left America when the war broke out and has not since revisited it.

Rockfeller's U. S. Minstrels have been drawing good houses in Dunedin.

I hear that Mr. De Lias, of Auckland, expects a new company from America by the April mail boat.

There is some talk of Mr. Geo. Darrell (at present in Sydney) trying to become lessee of the new theater in this city.

'Ben Allah' is touring in the South. He in no way tries to disguise the fact that he is a Yankee, and as a blowist and nasal organist, his equal is not in New Zealand. The genuine American, I take it, is not a man to make himself so ridiculous.

PALSTAFF.

PLUNDER

'JOHN,' said a stingy old fellow to his hired hand, 'do you know how many pan-cakes you have eaten?' 'No, do you?' 'Yes, you have eaten fourteen.' 'Well,' said John, 'you count and I'll eat.'

'Knew you did,' said crafty Philip.

'That when maiden kissed would be, Then with accents soft they sweetly Liss their words in accents free.'

Back the answer came, a golden

Mine of wealth in every word:

'Yeth,' the danc'd gently murmured,

'Yeth, dear Philip, tho I've heard'

MAUD DELISLE's last 'tumble' was down an elevator in a first-class Louisville hushery where she was stopping. The rope broke just as Maud stepped on to the machine from her sky parlor in the seventh story, and away they went, Maud, elevator and all, down, down, down to the cellar below. Strange to say, Miss Delisle escaped with many bruises, but with perfect limbs, no bones having been broken. Owing to this accident, dates for two weeks ahead have been canceled.

JOHN T. RAYMOND has been talking to a newspaper reporter about 'The Gilded Age.' This is what he said: 'Oh! I bought it first of Dinsmore, of the San Francisco Golden Era. Twain heard of it, and then I bought it of him and began to look around and see who else wrote it. Then I rewrote it myself and bought it of myself, and then began to play it. You know Twain wrote it twice. I didn't like the first, and he rewrote it, and then I took a whack at it. I paid a heap of money for that play, and now it's paying me. I knew it was a good thing from the start, and after I had bought it from the association that had an interest in it, and gathered up the loose shares around, I began to realize something on it.'

BULLETIN of the London Theaters, March 23d:—Haymarket, Miss Neilson, 'The Lady of Lyons.' Lyceum, Henry Irving, 'Louis XI.' Adelphi, Carl Rosa Opera Company, Princess, Miss Heath, 'Jane Shore,' 216th night. Vaudeville, 1027th night of 'Our Boys.' Royalty, Kate Southey, 'La Belle Helene.' St. James, Ada Cavendish, in 'New and Old Comedies'—her farewell engagement, prior to her departure for America. Strand, burlesque, 'Dorn' and 'Diplomacy.' Criterion, 322d night of 'Pink Dominoes.' Folly, Comic Opera, 'Les Cloches de Conville.' Royal Court, 'New Men and Old Acres.' New Grecian, 'Green Rushes' and Pantomime, 'Roley Poley.' Queen's, 'Neville Moritz,' in Shakespeare's Tragedies. Globe, Mr. Toole in 'A Fool and His Money' and a 'National Question.' Britannia, 'The Cobbler's Daughter,' 'The Waterman,' and 'Blind Man's Buff.' Alhambra, 'La Fille de Madame Angot.'

Too Late to Mend

Macready once met an actor of the name of Pannecort, who spoke warmly of favors received from the tragedian. The rest of the company complained of Macready's insolent and grumbling propensities, as they had appeared when they had met him.

'He never uttered an unkind word to me,' said Pannecort. 'I played the 'round' of all the second parts to him—'Iago,' 'Ulric,' 'Macduff,' etc.—and not a syllable of fault-finding ever escaped his lips. He had a first-class opinion of me, I know.'

This was, of course, highly satisfactory to all parties, and more especially to the stage manager, on whom devolved the task of 'casting' the pieces in a way that would be not only conducive to their being well received by the audience, but agreeable to the London star. The morning arrived. Macready stalked on to the stage. The prompter placed a chair for him at the prompt table, and Macready entered at once into a conversation with the stage-manager.

'How are the pieces cast?' asked Macready.

The stage manager began to turn over his papers, and hurriedly placed one or two thin, narrow slips beneath the eye of the great man.

'These are some of the casts,' he said. 'No,' broke in Macready, impatiently pushing them from him, 'I'm not particular as to who plays the minor characters, but I should like to know who is my 'Iago,' 'Ulric,' 'Macduff,' etc.'

The stage manager's face brightened. 'There, I think we can please you. We have a gentleman you have played with before.'

'O, indeed. Where did I meet him?'

'At Bristol.'

'At Bristol? When?'

'Two years ago.'

'Bring my book of engagements,' said Macready to his agent.

The volume was produced.

'Bristol, two years ago,' mused Macready, as he turned to the pages. 'Why,' he said, starting suddenly up as his eye fixed upon the entry, 'it was the worst company I ever performed with. Pannecort—Pannecort! Is he my second?'

'Certainly,' replied the manager.

'D, heaven help me!' answered Macready, striding up and down the stage.

'Why,' said the other following him, 'he said he was a favorite of yours.'

'A favorite?'

'Yes; he said that while you found fault with everybody else, you did not once find fault with him.'

'With him—no! With the others there was some hope, but with him none.'—Ex.

The Vokes Family

An English paper tells the following story relative to the Vokes Family: 'The last time the Vokeses were in Paris was just before the siege. They were almost the last people to leave Paris; and, indeed, they had a very narrow escape from being shut in. It will be remembered that they were performing at the Chatelet when the news arrived of the disaster of Sedan. The sisters were dispatched by the night mail on Wednesday, and as the railway people would not take Mr. Fred Vokes' celebrated dog, they had to tie its legs, wrap it in a shawl, and pass it on as somebody's baby. Mr. Fred Vokes was himself compelled to wait for funds to take home the hundred ballet girls. On the Thursday, the order was issued that all foreigners should quit the city, and it was solely owing to the mere accident that Mr. Vokes happened to meet Mr. G. W. Moore, who had returned from his 'recuperation in Switzerland' and who at once advanced the money, that the troupe got off at all. In Mr. Moore's kindness began a close friendship, the happy result of which was a family alliance, Mr. Vokes becoming Mr. Moore's son-in-law.'

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, generally known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.
 An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. one-sixth cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes. Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Rich's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars, etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ARGUMENT

Patchwork is an extravaganza in the general sense of the term—like "Topsy," it "grows" sure—while its lack of motive or pretension is the most enjoyable thing about it. The impression that the artists are having a bit of fun, without knowing that anybody is looking on, the main object is fun in its finest qualities and most objectionable features. The plot is as follows: A wealthy gentleman indulges an eccentricity by giving a private manumote, and while the guests are at supper, the servants of the house appropriate the dresses used on the occasion, dress themselves according to their several fancies, and proceed to act, sing and dance as their inclinations suggest. Among the principal incidents of a special nature may be mentioned: Mr. Salebury's life-like imitation of Joseph Jefferson as "Tip Van Winkle"; Miss Corelli in a grand Operatic Scene, "It was a Dream," and "Petit Oiseau"; Mr. Gourlay's glorious mottoesong "All that glitters"; Miss Nellie McHenry in "Pretty as a Picture"; Mr. John Webster as "Gaily the Troubadour," and the Troubadours' "Grand Mock Tragedy," founded upon the (lost) Scene, from Shakespeare's "Hamlet," introducing the melancholy bond Dane "a la Fechter"—The Queen—The Ghost—Polonius and the supernatural light—A King of Shreds and Patches—Put down that light

Mesars. Sherman, Hyde & Co.:
Gentlemen—The artists of the Kallogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is a pure and sympathetic, that sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

'Meg Merriles' adds to the estimate already formed of the ability of Miss Augusta Dargon. It is one of her best characters. "Guy Mannering" will be repeated this evening, and Boucicault's comedy "London Assurance" will be given to-morrow evening. Miss Dargon will be the recipient of a benefit on Saturday night, which will be the termination of her present engagement. This is the last week of Mr. C. B. Bishop, who joins Baldwin's company next Monday. Miss Katherine Rogers will appear on Monday evening supported by Miss Alice Harrison, Messrs. Keene, Mestayer and other members of the California Theater Company.

Grand Opera House

"Conrad, the Corsair," is an improvement on "Evangeline," as it gives each member of the company a better chance to display their special talent. The 'Lone Fisherman' has been transformed into 'Bibbante,' the Corsair's Lieutenant, who does a large share of the business and does it well. His song, "Upon the Seas," with chorus, is one of the best things in the extravaganza. Nothing could exceed the burlesque of Golden's 'Irish Slave Merchant.' Miss Webster gives the title role life and dash, with the spirit of a pirate, and she is pretty as a picture. The 'Medora' of Miss Lewis is another successful addition to her repertoire. The specialties of Messrs. Russell and Knight, introduced between acts, are received with immense applause, and the He-male ballet is quite beyond description.

At Walton's benefit, on Friday, Miss Annie Pixley and Mr. M. B. Curtis will add to the attractions of "The Corsair," in making the benefit worthy of the occasion.

Bush Street Theater

An entire change of programme was presented last evening by the Haverly Minstrels, and the novelties introduced indicated unusual amount of solid talent possessed by the company. Thatcher and Richmond have resigned their end positions in favor of Rice and Cushman, who are doing as entertaining as their predecessors. The new sketches and songs given are fully equal to those of last week, and the rush still continues, with prospects for a further continuance.

Emerson's Opera House

Full houses are still in order during this, the eighth and last week, of "Joshua Whitcomb." Saturday evening will positively be the last performance at this place of amusement, as the company are billed for Oakland for next Monday and Tuesday evenings. Secure your seats, if you have not already seen the best American comedy at present on the stage.

Baldwin's Theater

The Salsbury Troubadours were welcomed last evening by a crowded audience, who appeared to receive much amusement from the extravagant fun introduced in "Patchwork." The eccentric and innumerable situations in which Gourlay gets mixed up require to be seen to be enjoyed. The vocal part of the business is done in a charming manner. Nothing better could be desired than "Pretty as a Picture" by Nellie McHenry, and "All that Glitters," by Gourlay. The stage is set and furnished with exceedingly good taste. The legend "Dum vivimus vivamus," being conspicuously displayed in the decoration of the setting. This theater seems to have struck a rich lead since Magnire got hold of it.

Metropolitan Temple

The Sixth Herold Matinee, of the present series, will be given to-morrow afternoon. The selections are gems of classic music. Mr. Oscar Herold will recite Beethoven's Piano Concerto 1st movement in C Minor, accompanied by orchestra. The solo violinists, Messrs. Henry Heyman and Robert Uhlig, are underlined for Langer's Grossmutterchen Idyl. Tickets for sale at Gray's music store.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

FANNY DAVENPORT is sweet thirty-five.

"PINK DOMINOES" has run for 12 months at the Criterion, London.

FOREPAUGH'S Circus will pitch its tents May 5th, at Virginia City.

"THE BABY'S GOT A TOOTH," is the title of a comic song just published in London.

THERE was quite a rush yesterday at Sherman, Hyde & Co's music store in securing choice seats for the May Festival.

FRED ZIMMERMAN, who brought Cazenue out here about a year ago, has assumed in conjunction with John T. Ford, the management of the Broad Street Theater, Philadelphia.

THE English Crown jewels have been sent to the Paris Exposition; they are valued at a million and a half pounds sterling. The celebrated Koh-i-noor and Kandavassy diamonds are part of the collection.

THE old Californian and eccentric comedian, Harry Courtaine, will be one of the reorganized company at Baldwin's Theater. Bishop, of the California, and Grimmer, of the Grand Opera House, will be part of the addition to "The Danites" cast.

NINA VARIAN is receiving considerable attention from the San Francisco youths. The young lady's age has been ventilated through the medium of the press as being seventeen years; and that fact, together with good looks and style, has captivated their juvenile hearts.—Boston Society.

At Germania Hall, Webster street, bet. 6th and 7th, Oakland, this evening will be given the dramatic and operatic entertainment of Miss Mary E. Wadsworth, assisted by talented artists. Miss Eno Wadsworth will make her debut, and Signor Mancusi and Mrs. Mary Banta will take part in the entertainment.

FRANK LAWLER will return to San Francisco next Friday, bringing with him the members of the California Theater Company, who left here some little time ago to play "A Trip to the Moon" and other kindred plays in Chicago. But not meeting with the success anticipated, they disbanded at St. Louis and return. We welcome them home.

WILLIS & SKYMOUR, of Wellington, New Zealand, are getting up a grand panorama, painted on six thousand feet of canvas, of New Zealand scenery. A lot of Maori curiosities will be exhibited with it, and "they have resolved to reserve a space for the display of the most important business premises that meet the eye wherever the tourist wends his way"—this beats circus advertising.

No extra charge for reserved seats for the benefit of Mr. Charles S. Walton, at the Grand Opera House on Friday evening. In addition to the full cast of the company in "The Corsair" with the He-male ballet and Russell and Knight specialties, for this occasion Miss Annie Pixley has volunteered and will join in rendering the benefit a deserving tribute to the popular beneficiary. Secure your seats early.

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

BUFFALO, April 21, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—At the Academy of Music the past week things theatrical have been very lively. Miss Genevieve Rogers appeared as the 'Heroine' in Whittier's poem of "Maud Muller" the first three days of the week, and the latter part of the week was occupied by Janussek, who appeared in three of her great characters—'Brunhild,' 'Catherine of Russia,' and 'Lady Dedlock' in "Cheaney World." Large and appreciative audiences greeted this truly wonderful actress.

Miss Zoe, at the Variety Theater, drew immense audiences to witness the sensational drama of the "French Spy."

W. H. W.

Dr. Doran's Testimony to the Genius of Kean

When the curtain rose on the 7th of January, 1827, in Drury Lane Theater, Edmund Kean faced a house, crowded in every corner from pit to gallery, that proclaimed with fit uproar the general delight at his return to the city of his birth. If the riot of gladness displeased any individuals of the assembly, they had the prudence to feign concurrence with an overpowering sentiment, and to conceal a disapproval that would have exposed them to serious peril, had it been revealed by hiss or murmur. On the actor's part, there was no reluctance to render the fittest acknowledgement of such a generous reception. Indulgence had irreparably broken his fine constitution; and the torture of sharp griefs and fierce resentments had so worn and fretted his nerves that only the very thinnest partitions divided his wit from madness. But never had he shown himself a nobler or more perfect actor—in voice, countenance, bearing, gesture, art, artifice—than he was on that triumphant night. And amongst the many who regarded him with a satisfaction qualified with amazement, and the few who caught with critical exactness and delight every note and pause and thrilling cadence of the actor's melodious voice, was a very young man—indeed a man so young that he might almost be styled a boy—who thirty-seven years later wrote upon an eloquent page—"I shall not soon forget that January night, 1827, on which he reappeared at Drury Lane in 'Shylock.' A rush so fearful, an audience so packed, a reconciliation so complete, acting so faultless, and a dramatic enjoyment so exquisite, I never experienced. Nothing was heeded, indeed the scenes were passed over, till 'Shylock' was to appear; and I have heard no such shout since as that which greeted him. Fire, strength, beauty; every quality, of the actor seemed to have acquired fresh life." The writer adds: "It was all deceptive, however. The actor was all but extinguished after this conclusive but seemingly natural effort." When those last words were being penned, no living person has a better right than their author to put them on paper; for no one then living had followed the great actor more closely, step by step, from that night of triumphant reappearance till it was manifest to competent observers that he would never again charm a critical audience even for a single minute.—Temple Bar.

DURING the three weeks' season of opera at Booth's the receipts were close upon $36,000. The largest night was when Kellogg, Cary and Roze sang in "Mignon," the house being $3,400. The smallest night was when Roze sang in the "Ballo in Maschera," $983. Mr. Strakosch share was 65 per cent., and J. C. Duff, 35; therefore giving the first $23,400, and the latter $12,600. Both made money. Miss Kellogg is ahead on the whole season about $30,000, and Strakosch the same.—Ec.

First Nights in Paris

"The first performance of a new play possesses many attractions. Then vanity is called upon to solve a problem which cannot be mastered unless vanity has power—a theater can hold only 800 people; it has 500 good seats; there are upward of 5000 applicants for them; be one of those 500. Again, all spectators of the first night are so many jurymen who have the fate of the piece and oftentimes of the managers in their hands—power is pleasure. These first performances, on the other hand, have their drawbacks. If you must, you pay $20 for a seat which to-morrow night you could get for $1—maybe for nothing. It is not altogether agreeable to throw away $19 these hard times. Then you may find your seat occupied by somebody who will not move. If you complain at the box-office you are told there was some mistake; two tickets were issued for the same place and they offer to return one dollar. 'But I paid $20 for it.' 'That's none of our business; we sold it for one.' Or you may occupy a seat sold to somebody else, who may, knowing his skill, like to 'go out,' so if you do not budge you will have swords and coffee next morning. Now there are more agreeable things in Paris than to pay $20 for a one dollar seat, to listen to a play, meanwhile conscious that you have a duel on hand, and to return home next day so spitted by cold steel that the surgeon shakes his head—or with your feet foremost. Life for a life may be, but life for a first performance—excuse me, please! Then the play may be so stupid that you gape until you dislocate your jaw, and you know that the only way to cure this is to let the surgeon deal you a blow on the month with all the strength he can muster—and brawny surgeons are sent for in these cases. Again, the chances are you do not catch a word of the first act; slam, slam, slam, go the box-doors, alkis rustle, men walk in—all the first act seems like a pantomime. Besides, you are fatigued with all the parts of the play which drag, and which are pruned away before the second performance. Moreover, the actors never play well the first night. They are nervous, uncertain, tentative, and require constant prompting, so that it seems as if you heard echo playing, for you first hear the prompter and then the actor. Further, first performances keep you out of bed until morning, and then you go to bed as ill-humored as hungry people always are, for when the curtain drops every eating-house is closed; whereas, all subsequent performances end early enough to allow you to carry a roast pheasant and a bottle of champagne to bed with you. Bed is reached by midnight, and, as you blow out the candle, you think this world is, after all, a very pleasant place. Furthermore, the chances are you will find your new hat looking like chaos, and get instead of your brand-new overcoat a worn, shoddy garment, and you will feel like unpacking breast and brain with sourous but ungentlemanly expletives. Nevertheless, these disagreeable chances are universally dismissed from the mind, just as travelers by rail discard the memory of collisions, running off the track, broken bridges, broken axles, and the other ills of traveling."—Letter from Paris.

Authors and Actors

Speaking of "Kip Van Winkle" and "Solon Shingle," a recent writer says: "Joe Jefferson copied his part from his half brother, Charles Burke, who was the creator of many character parts, but who, poor fellow, never made any money from his creations. It was Burke, also, who created 'Solon Shingle,' a part that John Owens made piles of money out of. Thus it is the man that makes the gold watch never wears one: the man that invents seldom reaps the benefit of his own originality. Poor Burke died young, and his greatest misfortune was that he was born too soon. Had he lived at a latter day, when actors are pictured in windows, and flattered in the papers to the full of their bent, he would have made a fortune. Jefferson and Owens reaped the harvest Burke had sown."

THERE is a keen competition between two lines of steamers running from Glasgow to Dublin, and the fares have been reduced to fifty cents for each journey. It is thought the rivalry will reach the light it did some twenty years ago, when the two companies not only carried the passengers for nothing, but one gave each male person a glass of Irish or Scotch whisky, according to his nationality.

ADVERTISERS
WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, generally known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.
An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-foot bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 130 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Riche's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ARGUMENT

Patchwork is an extravaganza in the general sense of the term—like "Topsy," it "grows" sure—while its lack of motive or pretension is the most enjoyable thing about it. The impression that the artists are having a bit of fun, without knowing that anybody is looking on, the main object is as fun in its finest qualities and most objectionable features. The plot is as follows: A wealthy gentleman indulges an eccentricity by giving a private masquerade, and while the guests are at supper, the servants of the house appropriate the dresses used on the occasion, dress themselves according to their several fancies, and proceed to act, sing and dance as their inclinations suggest. Among the principal incidents of a special nature may be mentioned Mr. Salsbury's life-like imitation of Joseph Jefferson as "Hipp Van Winkle," Miss Corelli in a grand Operatic Scene, "It was a Dream," and "Pettis Offensu," Mr. Gourlay's glorious motto song "All that glitters," Miss Nellie McHenry in "Pretty as a Picture," Mr. John Webster as "Gaily the Troubadour," and the Troubadours, "Grand Mock Tragedy," founded upon the Cleopatra Scene, from Shakespeare's "Hamlet," introducing the melancholy londe Dane "A la Fechter"—The Queen—The Ghost—Polonius and the supernatural light—A King of Shreds and Patches—Put down that light

BORAX WATER

—FOR—

No Housekeeper Should be Without It!

The best thing known for washing Flannel, superior to anything for cleaning silk and velvet, the most cleansing for the body, for healing eruptions of the skin; when used as a shampoo, will cleanse the scalp and prevent the hair from falling out; when mixed with starch is used for glazing shirts and other linens. By washing shelves or cupboards with this solution, ants and cockroaches and other insects will be driven away. Borax is the best thing known for eradicating rheumatism.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.

Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Bonifant's comedy, "London Assurance," with Miss Dargou as 'Lady Gay Spanker' will be given this evening. At her benefit on Friday evening, she will appear in "Henry VIII," as 'Queen Katherine.' On Saturday evening Mr. C. B. Bishop will make his last appearance as 'Ragged Pat' in "Ireland as it Was." The "Trip to the Moon" party will arrive to-morrow evening from the East.

Grand Opera House

"The Corsair" is meeting with much better success than theater-goers were pleased to bestow on "Evangeline." The entire acts absurdities of Messrs. Russell and Knight are strong features in the entertainment. The prospect of Walton's benefit, on Friday, bringing out one of the largest audiences of the season, is promising. "The Corsair" will be continued during the present week.

Bush Street Theater

The Minstrels still continue their career of success. They are playing to full houses every evening, and their performance is of the kind that wears well. Physicians having patients that require a little healthful excitement can send them here with a certain prospect of getting all they want, for the fun of the end men is sure to excite the risible faculties of the most dyspeptic. Matinee this afternoon.

Emerson's Opera House

Next Monday our Oakland neighbors will have a chance to laugh at the funny sayings of our amusing friend "Uncle Josh," whom we are sorry to part with, and who does not leave us for want of appreciation and patronage. A special matinee will be given this afternoon and the last on Saturday. The eight weeks' season of the Denman Thompson Company has been one of the most successful ever given in San Francisco.

Baldwin's Theater

The Salisbury Troubadours are drawing well. Their work is an admirable combination of melodramatic sketches and light humor given in a rapid and decided manner bringing in play the special points of each member of the company. Gourlay is one of the best comedians we have seen. McKee Rankin is supervising the production of "The Danites," on the scenery of which, Dayton and his assistants have been busy for the past two weeks, and which promises to be something more than usually good.

May Festival

The sale of seats on Monday and Tuesday was an immense success. Nearly all the boxes were sold at $50 each, and there was also a large number of season tickets sold. Monday's sales aggregating nearly five thousand dollars. We attended a rehearsal of Mr. Jackson's Society last evening, and were more than pleased with the manner in which they sang the difficult choruses selected for the occasion. This society shows careful training, and will be a great help to the Festival Chorus.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

McKEE RANKIN and party arrived last night.

JAS. C. WILLIAMSON opens next Monday night in Boston.

MISS ALICE DENNING is playing to moderate houses in Portland, Me.

THE Paris Exhibition opens to-day. The FOOTLIGHT representative will be on hand.

MAFERONI has been well received in New York, where he played on Monday evening.

DAVE ANDERSON leaves for the East this morning, under engagement to support Booth.

TO-MORROW Mr. J. H. McCabe, the veteran theatrical agent, will celebrate his three score and tenth year.

It is rumored that at one of our principal theaters lady ushers will be introduced. We shall go there every night.

Boston Society tells us that "the mule is an intensely dramatic quadruped, and may be depended upon to make a hit."

A FAREWELL benefit will be given Master Leopold Liechtenberg, to take place at the Metropolitan Temple, at an early date.

A DRAMATIC company, consisting of Miss Annie Pixley, Miss Mattie Moore, Messrs. Harry Gates, and others, is being organized for a provincial tour.

THE last concert of the present series of Herold Matinees takes place this afternoon at the Metropolitan Temple, Fifth Street. Seats may be secured until 1 p. m., at Gray's.

THE Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, in noticing the exhibition of the speaking telephone in Washington, remarks that it is nothing unusual for a creature without brains there to talk.

CHARLES EDMONDS and A. D. Bradley join "The Danites" company at Baldwin's on Monday. During the provincial tour of the Union Square Company Mr. Charles K. Bacon takes the place of Charley Goodwin as Assistant Treasurer.

THE concert at Germania Hall, Oakland, last night was the most brilliant of the season. The quantity of bouquets showered upon Miss Wadsworth, and the other lady artists who volunteered, was in amount sufficient to start a florist in business.

CAPTAIN GOODSELL of this city, the enthusiastic collector and connoisseur of Cremona violins, is engaged in the compilation of a work embracing a synopsis of what has already been published concerning the construction and mechanism of the violin, to which will be added many original ideas that have occurred to him during his many years daily acquaintance with master instruments.

At the farewell complimentary benefit tendered to Mrs. Mary Banta, at Platt's Hall, Tuesday evening next, the Germania Zither Club, comprising twelve members, under the direction of Mr. Jacob Moeser, have volunteered, also, the accomplished vocalists, Misses Grace Plaised, Mary and Eno Wadsworth, and Master Sam Plaised, the young California pianist, will take part in the entertainment. The property is that the concert will be the most attractive of the season. A very hand some photo of Mrs. Banta is on exhibition at Sherman, Hyde & Co's.

"The Carson City Morning Appeal" gives the following notice of Miss Georgie Woodthorpe, now traveling with the Crosby-Mueller Dramatic Company, who will play in Oakland about the 8th current: "This little actress (Miss Georgie Woodthorpe), whose girlish appearance places her low in the teens, made a pronounced success on Thursday evening last (April 18) as 'Ophelia.' We are informed that it was her first appearance in this character, and stage-fright, which affects older heads than hers, was perceptible in the earlier portion of the play; but she got over that as the play progressed, and in the mad scene gave a better bit of acting than the leading woman of the California Theater did during the last engagement of Booth. This compliment is given to Miss Georgie as a simple act of justice, and not to flatter or turn her young head."

KEITH's latest contribution to Art, a view in the Sierra Nevada near the head waters of the American River, is now on exhibition at the rooms of the S. F. Art Association. Neither photograph nor printer's ink will ever be able to convey a true conception of this picture of nature. The transparent atmospheric effect is beyond the photographer's skill, as well as the correct distribution of lights and shadows. No pen description can justly express the majestic features of the distant mountains, their summits lost in mist and their wrinkles furrowed with snow, as they frown from the background of the canvas, in strong contrast to the patch of flat meadow by the river-side, covered with green verdure, and the camping place of an Indian party in the foreground. The picture itself wants to be seen to be judged, and as the rooms of the Art Association are well filled with the works of our resident artists, a visit there will be well repaid.

M. JACQUES OFFENBACH contributes the following to the Paris Figure in regard to the three great queens of bonfire: During the last Exposition, Mlle. Schneider was driving in her caleche through the avenue expressly reserved for none but royal personages, when she was suddenly halted by the picket of the National Guard. "Who are you, and what are you doing here?" asked the officer of the Guard. "Do you not know me? I am the Grand Duchesse of Gerolstein." "The Grand Duchesse! Present arms! Your highness may pass." The officer made no mistake in saluting her, for she was a sovereign who owed her crown to her talents, and not to her birth. She came to Paris very modestly, very timidly; but it was easy to discern in her clear spiritual eye the presentiment of her brilliant future. Her bright sparkling face and magnificent figure captivated me from the start, and she was at once engaged at a salary of $10 a month. Together we made our first success in "Violoneux—Rose de St. Flour." She then emigrated to the Varieties, from there to the Palais Royal, and back again to the Varieties, where commenced a series of triumphs beginning with "La Belle Helene," and closing with "La Grande Duchesse."

THE dress worn by Leonidine Leblanc, in "Joseph Balsano," is said to be an exact copy of one worn by the great Du Barry herself. It is white, covered with garlands of roses, and so gorgeously trimmed with diamonds and pearls as to almost realize the fabulous stories in the "Thousand and One Nights." The dress itself cost $2,100, and it is ornamented with $50,000 worth of diamonds and $10,000 worth of pearls. Her fan, which was made expressly for her, is the handsomest ever seen in Paris. It is a well-known fact that every actress connected with the Odeon Theater is the owner of at least one dog, and they always accompany their fair owners to rehearsal. At the last grand dress rehearsal, Leonidine Leblanc appeared accompanied by an enormous bull dog, who at once spread terror and consternation through the emble-poodles, etc. When confronted with by the members of the company for exhibiting such a pet, she replied: "The dog is not for myself, but for my canine friend to suppose I am going to be a good girl without my protector?" So Monsieur Bull Dog is now a regular member of the company.

Old Abe and his "Little Clark"

Among the many anecdotes which are told in the Sucker State, of Lincoln and Douglas, is one relating to a period of their lives when they were totally unknown outside of a few counties in the Sangamon Circuit, where they both practiced. Those were in the days of the iron horse had snorted on the prairies, or even wet his whistle in Chicago. Lawyers rode their own steeds, while traveling the circuit, and Lincoln and Douglas were frequent companions, for though ever antagonistic on political questions, they were personally of congenial temperaments. Lincoln was then, as up to the time of his death, a rough, tall, ungainly man, while Douglas, upon commencing the practice of law, was a dapper little fellow, who would not weigh more than one hundred and ten pounds. Being considerably the elder, Abe generally led off in conversation, at places where the parties stopped at farm-houses or taverns. Besides, he had been longer in the State and knew the people better. Well, one bitter cold night, about sandown, in December, this pair rode up to a farm-house in McLean county. They could go no further, for, in addition to the polar air, the snow was being furiously driven into their faces. The cabin where they stopped contained but one room, eighteen feet square, which served for parlor, dining-room, kitchen and sleeping room for Mr. Bailey, wife, and three little children. Old Abe knew Mr. B. and wife, having stopped at his house before, but Douglas was a stranger. In the early days of the West, it was usual for people to get acquainted without the formalities of an introduction. The farmer and his wife were mighty glad to see you, Mr. Lincoln, and shook hands with him warmly, but rather looked with indifference, if not contempt, upon Douglas. Without intending a pun, I will observe that small men, in a new country, are generally estimated low. Ere long, an ample supper was spread in the cabin, to which the lawyers did ample justice. After an hour's conversation between Lincoln and the master and mistress of the house—Douglas remaining very reticent—Mr. Bailey said to his wife: "I reckon, mother, it's about bed-time; will you just fix up the sleepin' fixens fur these ere men." So Mr. B. went to the other side of the room to prepare for the slumbers. There was but one bed vacant in the room, for the trundle bed was occupied by the three sweetly sleeping children. The lady was engaged in this work for probably half an hour. Old Abe watched her movements closely, and he observed a narrow bed was being made in one corner of the room, which he fancied would be occupied by himself. But what would become of Douglas? The future leader of the Democracy, during this time, appeared to be studying the features of the huge hickory fire which roared up the chimney. The labors of the lady were now completed, and coming to her husband she said: "The sleepin' fixens is all ready now, John." "And how have you ranged matters, Hanner?" remarked her husband. "Wy, Mr. Lincoln sleeps in that ar bed on the floor, an' this ere little clark o' hizen, I reckon, kin turn inter the trundle-bed, wid the children—he won't take up much room." And the "little clark" did sleep with the children, warmly and snugly, while old Abe nearly froze in his bed on the floor. (C. R. in New York Mercury.)

A Work of Art

Gustave Dore is about to reveal to the public another phase of his singularly original and creative talent. He is now at work behind closed and guarded doors on his contribution to the Exhibition. It is a colossal vase, some sixteen feet in height, of a flask shape, and covered with figures in full relief, representing "The Triumph of the Vine." Over the whole surface of the vase swarm nymphs, satyrs, children, intermingled with fruits and flowers, and strange shapes of insect and animal life. It is a wild and graceful fantasy, a mass of animated figures, a throng of strange, visionary beings and accessories. Yet in the whole there is neither crowding nor confusion. Fair nymphs sit poised upon the slope of the vase, chubby children climb and swing amid the trailing garlands, and satyrs skip up its sides with all the agility that their goat-hands can lend them. Around the base cluster child forms at play with colossal types of insect life. One plump little fellow lies on his back, hanging to his breast a gigantic fly that is half as large as he is himself. Two naked archers are contending with an equally huge spider, and one little fellow, in no wise daunted by the repulsive aspect of his adversary, is pushing the creature away with his dimpled foot. Another holds a field mouse by the tail, and uses all his best efforts to keep his captive from escaping. And—prettiest fancy of all—one charming archer lies asleep with a colossal butterfly hovering above him, and just in the act of kissing his baby lips. It would take a volume to describe all the figures—the fruits, the flowers, the varied imagery—where with this gigantic vase is literally covered. It took all the creative force of Dore's talent, and all his unexampled rapidity of execution as well, to bring this remarkable work to such a point of perfection in so short a time. What will be his destiny? For only a sovereign or an arch-millionaire could afford the possession of such a work, or own a hall sufficiently large to give it a fitting home. The present model is in plaster, cut in bronze, the work will be worth some twenty thousand dollars.—May No. Appleton's Journal.

"MY DEAR," said an editor in startling tones, after awaking his wife in the night, "I have swallowed a dose of strychnine!" "Well then, for goodness sake lie still, or it may come up!"

ADVERTISERS

Will find the list of 110 PAPERS, generally known as "Patent Outsides," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, act in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Rich's FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ARGUMENT
PATCHWORK is an extravaganza in the general sense of the term—like "Topsy," it "grows" sure—while its lack of motive or pretension is the most enjoyable thing about it. The impression that the artists are having a lot of fun, without knowing that anybody is looking on, the main object is fun in its finest qualities and most objectionable features. The plot is as follows: A wealthy gentleman indulges an eccentricity by giving a private masquerade, and while the guests are at supper, the servants of the house appropriate the dresses used on the occasion, dress themselves according to their several fancies, and proceed to act, sing and dance as their inclinations suggest. Among the principal incidents of a special nature may be mentioned Mr. Salsbury's life-like imitation of Joseph Jefferson as "Tip Van Winkle," Miss Cereilli in a grand Operatic Scene, "It was a Dream," and "Petite (tiscant)," Mr. Gourlay's glorious motto song "All that glitters," Miss Nellie McHenry in "Pretty as a Picture," Mr. John Webster as "Gaily the Troubadour," and the Troubadours' "Grand Muck Tragedy," founded upon the Cleopatra scene from Shakespeare's "Hamlet," introducing the melancholy blonde Dana "a la Percher"—The Queen—The Ghost—Polonius and the supernatural light—A King of Shreds and Patches—Put down that light

No Housekeeper Should be Without It!

The best thing known for washing Flannel, superior to anything for cleaning Silk and Velvet; the most cleansing for the body; for healing eruptions of the skin; when used as a shampoo, will cleanse the scalp and prevent the hair from falling out; when mixed with starch is used for glazing shirts and other linens. By washing shelves or cupboards with this solution, ants and cockroaches and other insects will be driven away. Borax is the best thing known for curing Rheumatism.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.:
Gentlemen—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

"Deborah" will be given this evening. Miss Dargon's benefit terminates with the present week. To-morrow evening she will receive a benefit, and appear as 'Katharine,' in 'Henry VIII.' Voegtlin is busy on the scenery for 'Jane Shore,' to be produced on Monday.

Grand Opera House

This week will close the present season here. McDonald has transferred his lease and rights to the Nevada Bank, and no announcement has yet been made of future business. At young Walton's benefit to-morrow Curtis will give some of his inimitable imitations, and the amount of talented volunteers who will appear, assures a performance of more than usual attraction. Walton is no relation to Miss Minnie, although his good looks and politeness has secured him as much popularity with the fair sex as the California favorite, Miss Minnie Walton, enjoys from the masculines. "The Corsair" to-night.

Bush Street Theater

The Haverly Minstrels this evening and during the week. Matinee on Saturday. The present engagement is the most successful so far that this theater has enjoyed for some time. Richmond, Thatcher, Welch, Rice, Carter, and the other members of the company are in the front rank of their special profession.

Emerson's Opera House

"Joshua Whitcomb" to-night, and for the last time on Saturday night.

This theater will be continued open next week. A new company of Swedish vocalists take possession on Monday.

Baldwin's Theater

The Troubadours are doing a fine business. Seats for the opening night of "The Danites" are selling rapidly, and a brilliant audience will no doubt welcome McKee Rankin and company. Miss Jean Burnside, a young and handsome Eastern actress, will play the part of the 'School-mistress,' one of the principal characters in the cast. The scenery will be the finest ever seen at Baldwin's. Tom Maguire told Dayton to spare no mud, and to pitch in and go ahead.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

Miss KATY MAYHEW left for the East this A. M.

W. J. FLORENCE has crossed the Atlantic forty-seven times.

As exhibition of the phonograph will be given this evening at the Grand Opera House.

The Evangeline Company play in Virginia City for one week, commencing next Tuesday.

A COMPANY of Swedish vocalists will follow the Denman Thompson Company at Emerson's.

MR. AND MRS. W. H. TILLA and Miss Lotta Chissold left for Victoria yesterday, under engagement to J. M. Ward.

'THE LONE FISHERMAN,' Mr. Harry Hunter, will be the recipient of a benefit at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening.

MISS LIZZIE INGLES has made an impression on the Sandwich Islanders. She returns to San Francisco by the next steamer.

MISS ADELAIDE STONEHAM is en route from New Zealand to San Francisco. East Indian and Australian dramatic notices make favorable mention of her.

It is rumored that Modjeska practices daily with a pistol, and has no scruples about choice of target. Dramatic critics had better make a note of this.

MR. BOCCICAUTI, with a good deal of London Assurance, thinks that if Shakespeare was now alive he could write no better play than "The Shaugrann."

MARY ANDERSON goes to Paris in June. She made over $14,000 out of her Southern and Western tour. Her father was a Confederate Colonel and was killed in battle.

THE success of the May Festival is now assured. All the boxes have been sold, and the sum realized from sale of reserved seats has been much beyond the most sanguine hopes of the management.

CHARLES R. THORNE, Jr., about whom a good many conflicting reports have been circulated lately, still holds his position as leading man of the Union Square Theater Company, New York, where he will appear next season.

A GRAND concert will be given at Pacific Hall this evening, tendered to Mrs. Hall Pettinos. One of the numbers alone, the "Angels' Serenade," by Miss Jovita Ferrer, with violin and guitar accompaniment, is sufficient of itself to be worthy of a visit.

EMILY SOLDEN and company were, at last accounts, playing in the New Opera House, Adelaide, Australia, under the management of Jim Allison; Kelly and Leon were at Newcastle, N. S. W.; Mrs. Scott Siddons at the Queen's, Sydney, in "Our Boys."

This afternoon a complimentary benefit will be given Mr. George S. Knight at the Grand Opera House, Miss Annie Pixley, and Miss Catherine Lewis have volunteered, also Val Vose, the ventriloquist, Harry Gates, Sol Smith Russell and many others will unite in giving a grand olio entertainment.

JARRETT & PALMER leased Booth's Theater for the months of September, October, November and December next. The opening attraction will be Genivieve Ward, an American lady, who for some time successfully sang upon the operatic stage, and who has since won fame and distinction in tragic roles upon the dramatic stage in England.

JOHN McCULLOCH began an engagement at the Grand Opera House, N. Y., April 22d, acting 'Spartacus' in "The Gladiator." The supporting company includes J. F. Weelock, Harry Langdon, J. L. Mason, Mason Mitchell, George Becks, M. F. Jordan, Russell Bassett, E. D. Tannehill, Edwin Price, Charles Dade, H. Victor, W. Greer, R. Pritchard, A. Wright, Misses Marie Prescott, Stella Boniface, and Little Nellie Mason.

Is Paris jokes on the approaching exhibition are in order. A widowed mother, of peunions habits, with an only son, is reported to have called on a physician in reference to her boy's health. She described his symptoms, among which was want of appetite. The doctor said it was only the lassitude of Spring. "Let me treat him, and I will give him a stomach to devour all before him." The widow thought a moment. "Provisions will be so dear when the Exposition opens! It is better to let him remain as he is."—Exc.

A Modern Michael Angelo

The French painter, Gerome, known on this coast through the photographic reproduction of his works, will be represented in the Paris Exposition, and one of his sculptured groups is thus spoken of by a writer in the London Daily News:

"Another work of peculiar interest for the great exhibition will be 'The Gladiators,' a colossal group in bronze, by M. Gerome, who for his talent in painting has this month been promoted to be Commander of the Legion of Honor, a rank attained by a few living artists. He will exhibit his painting of 'Pere Joseph,' which received the Medal of Honor at the Salon a few years since, and 'St. Jerome,' which has been much admired at the exhibition of the 'Mirlitons' this Spring, and four charming Eastern scenes. Mr. Gerome's collection, like that of other artists who have a world-wide reputation, will suffer from the fact that many of his best works belong to private galleries abroad, and that their possessors will not consent to expose their treasures to the hazards of sea voyages, and to six months' danger in a world's fair. For his new profession as a sculptor, M. Gerome is peculiarly fitted by the severity of his previous studies and by natural gifts. He finds here a field for the beauty of line, firmness of modeling, anatomical precision and archæologic knowledge which has ever characterized his paintings. His 'Gladiators' in bronze will be a group seven feet in height. The scene in Rome, at the time of the Emperors, represents the close of a contest between two gladiators in the arena. The conqueror, a proud giant, accented in the armor of his nation, stands with his foot on his victim's throat, in one hand his shield, in the other a knife, awaiting the decision of the spectators, to whose mercy the conquered man is appealing. His unlucky opponent, who has fallen to the ground, came to the contest on rather unequal terms, for, belonging to the class called Receles (net throwers), his only weapons of attack were a net and a trident. He bears neither helmet or shield, and if unsuccessful in throwing his toils, is quite at the mercy of his adversary. The poor fellow does not, however, mean to die without a struggle. One hand is raised in supplication toward the crowd, the other clutches at the ankle of his enemy to save his throat from the pressure of his heel. His knee, too, is nervously braced against his conqueror's leg, to prevent his advancing. The modeling of the breast of the sufferer is peculiarly admirable. The lines of the group, as seen from every point of view, are flowing and harmonious. Doubtless the city of Paris will purchase for one of its squares a work so carefully done and so successful."

CHARLES LECOCQ, the celebrated opera bouffe composer, gives the following brief but pointed account of himself: "I was born June 3d, 1832, in Paris. My first musical instrument was the lute, which, without regret, I abandoned for the piano. I gave music lessons, at one and two dollars a lesson, during a portion of my life. I detest this occupation. I owe it to myself to say I never taught anything to my pupils. The war and La Commune drove me to bring out my works at Brussels, to which I owe my reputation and my fortune. Those who think that Cantin was my Mæcenat are mistaken. The only theater managers who felt confidence in me are Busnach, who brought out my Fleur de The, Humbert, who brought out my 'Cent Vierges,' La Fille de Madame Angot, and 'Gracie-Girofla,' and Victor Koning, who is now playing 'Le Petit Duc.' I am a man of a gentle character, but sometimes fly into a most violent passion. I am devoted to my home, my cats, and to grave music. I have always on my piano Bach, Mendelssohn, Hummel, Wagner. I rarely go to the theater. My favorite theaters are the Grand Opera House and the French Comedy. It annoys me to hear my pieces called operettas—a word which has no sort of meaning. My tendency has always been to write opera comique. I hold business matters in aversion, and do not understand anything about them. One of my tortures is to hear my music played. I cannot bear to see the performance of one of my works. I do not like gaming or traveling. I am rather fond of the pleasures of the table."

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES, only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

Across the street from the California Theater you can find a first-class FRENCH RESTAURANT open after theater hours. M. Hubert has the reputation of being one of the best caterers in this city.

FINE CARPETING, in elegant designs, and rich furniture in every variety of style, will be found at the extensive warehouses of Messrs. C. M. PLUM & CO., on Market Street, next building to Palace Hotel.

Actors and Artists and Musicians visiting Oakland, will find the headquarters of the profession at the CRYSTAL PALACE SALOON, No. 463 Ninth street.

Social Peculiarities of Boston Society

The banquet business is not the only theatrical nuisance. There are persons in every audience who prefer the charms of conversation with friends to that provided on the stage; who slam doors, or leave them open so a draught can blow upon unoffending spectators; who chew tobacco and use the floor for a cuspidore; who make a dozen people rise after each act, in order that they may have a chat in the lobby; who take a drink or smoke between the acts, and come back redolent of cloves, coffee and cigarette smoke; who keep time with the orchestra on the back of your chair, and who put on their overcoats at just the right time to prevent you of a view of the final tableau. But we don't suppose it will do any good to call attention to these little social peculiarities.

PLUNDER

MISS ELIZABETH HENON, it is asserted, is about to go abroad to attend school for a couple of years in a French convent. She will then resume her profession.

It is stated that Lawrence Barrett will give a private representation of "A Confidential Presentment" at Cohasset, Mass., the coming Summer, supported by Mrs. T. B. Aldrich, as the heroine.

An enthusiastic Indiana editor wrote after the convention "The battle is now opened," but, alas! the intelligent compositor spell "battle" with an "o," and his readers say they have suspected it all along.

EDWIN BOOTH played "Hamlet" in the Pittsburgh Opera House under the glare of two locomotive headlights. The manager had not paid his gas bill, and the meter had been removed. In this dilemma the auditorium was lighted with kerosene lamps, and the stage in the way indicated.

WALES and his royal mamma have had a little misunderstanding. During his last stay in Paris he visited the office of the Figaro at night time. Some opera-bouffe ladies, headed by Mlle. Theo, were present, and a collation was served about 8 o'clock in the morning. The manager of the Figaro proposed the toast of the Queen's health. Mlle. Theo gave a signal for applause, and responded to the toast. Subsequently he seems to have received a serious intimation that the august old lady did not care about her health being drunk in this kind of society. The courtesy which the Prince has shown to Mlle. Theo has gained for him the name of "Theo-philie."

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street.

A correct understanding of Book-keeping is an absolute necessity to any one in business. A visit to the PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE, on Post Street, opposite Union Square, convinced us that the method of tuition adopted and in daily practice by the teachers and students of that institution cannot be excelled, and that anyone who passes a course of instruction there and fails to be thoroughly conversant with the principles and practice of the science of accounts had better give up all idea of ever becoming a successful merchant.

GEORGE E. BUTLER . . . Manager

Distinguished Party

We clip the following from the Suspension Bridge Journal:

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 28, 1878.

Editor Journal—A number of our distinguished revivallists, including myself are intended on going to Paris at the opening of the Exposition to give the people one of our glorious revivals. The following are the names of those who will conduct the same:

J. J. McBride.

Dr. Mary Walker.

Moody and Sankey

H. W. Beecher.

Mrs. Van Cott.

Bob Ingersoll.

George Francis Train.

Lucifer B. Hayes.

This company will leave this country on the 4th of July, by a special chartered U. S. war ship; and I would say those wishing to accompany them can procure tickets at No. 246 Main street. The revival will continue for about three months in which time it is earnestly hoped Dr. Mary Walker will have considered which style of dress she will don in her future private life. On our departure I will write again.

I remain yours hopefully,

J. J. McBRIDE.

U. S. A. C. C. B. M.

Woeffer—"How do you identify this handkerchief?" Hitties—"By its general appearance and the fact that I have others like it." Counsel—"That's a proof, for I have got one just like it in my pocket." Hitties—"I don't doubt that as I have had more than one of the same sort stolen."

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

The "P. CENTEMER" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast.

A very extensive selection of all kinds of BROOMS, BRUSHES and FEATHER DUSTERS may be found at 410 Sutter Street. The brothers LEVENSON have opened a place of business there, and offer their merchandise at the most reasonable rates.

STEVENOT'S BORAX WATER is being extensively used in families for cleaning, as a substitute for Ammonia. For sale at all groceries.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, as long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from wait employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

The leading piano manufacturing companies of the United States are advertising patrons of the FOOTLIGHT. Their business cards will be found in our columns.

When You Require GLOVES For THE OPERA, visit the Danleffs Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order and cut in the latest Parisian style.

For the ladies of San Francisco, MME. CONSTANT has just imported a large assortment of FRENCH PATIEN BONNETS of the latest Parisian Summer fashions. No other Millinery establishment on the Pacific Coast has direct consignments of French Pattern Bonnets made there. Mme. Constant, 314 Sutter Street, is the only importer.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

Go to the "P. CENTEMER" KID GLOVE STORE, No. 3 Kearny Street (entrance on Eddy) and select your Gloves.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, generally known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICH'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars, etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ARGUMENT

Patchwork is an extravaganza in the general sense of the term—like "Topsy," it "grows" sure, while its lack of motive or pretension is the most enjoyable thing about it. The impression that the artists are having a bit of fun, without knowing that anybody is looking on, the main object is fun in its truest and most objectionable features. The plot is as follows: A wealthy gentleman indulges his eccentricity by giving a private masquerade, and while the guests are at supper, the servants of the house appropriate the dresses used on the occasion, dress themselves according to their several fancies, and proceed to act, sing and dance as their inclinations suggest. Among the principal incidents of a special nature may be mentioned Mr. Salsbury's recitation on costume, entitled the "Traump." Miss Corelli in a grand Operatic melody of all nations. Mr. Gourlay in one of his original creations. Miss Nellie McHenry in "I hope I don't intrude." Mr. John Webster as "Truly the Troubadour," and the Troubadours. "Grand Mock Tragedy" founded upon the Closet Scene from Shakespeare's "Hamlet," introducing the bewitching blonde Dame "La Fechter"—"The Queen." The latest Polka-dons and the supernatural light—A King of Shreds and Patches—Put down that light.

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.

Gentlemen: The artists of the Kellogg Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

The Farewell benefit tendered to Miss August Dargon takes place to-night. Shakespeare's tragedy of "King Henry VIII." has been chosen for the occasion. Miss Dargon will enact the role of 'Queen Katherine,' and Henry Edwards will play the part of 'Cardinal Wolsey.' Theatergoers desirous of showing their appreciation of the legitimate drama, and of one of its chief devotees, advance and secure seats for Miss Dargon's benefit this evening.

Grand Opera House

This evening "The Corsair" will be given for the benefit of Charles S. Walton, Treasurer. In addition to which a numerous array of volunteers will appear in specialties between acts. We anticipate a crowded house, and trust that the financial result will exceed the hopes of the beneficiary.

Bush Street Theater

More novelties by the Haverly Minstrels are promised for next week's programme, showing the resources of the wardrobe and repertoire of the company. They are receiving a full share of public patronage—and deserve it—for their's is a very select and entertaining collection of burnt cork comedy and negro minstrelsy.

Emerson's Opera House

A performance of "Joshua Whitcomb" will be given here on Sunday evening, being the last in this city. The company play in Oakland on Monday and Tuesday, at Deitz Hall, where seats for both evenings have already been nearly all sold.

Baldwin's Theater

"Patchwork," and "Woman's Rights," are placed on view by the Salsbury Troubadours continue to make happy large audiences every evening. Their engagement, which has been very successful, terminates this week to make room for Joaquin Miller's "Danites," to be produced on Monday in magnificent style.

May Festival

The banquet of artists for the May Festival will include all prominent Pacific Coast vocalists, together with the Eastern soloists. Attractive numbers in each programme will be given to them, and such a rare combination of musical talent must produce a fine effect.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

FRANCIS W. FITZ departs Eastward on Sunday morning.

HARRY WILMER will assume the orchestral baton at Baldwin's on Monday evening.

VAL VOSE's ventriloquist tricks were very cleverly done at Knight's benefit yesterday afternoon.

AN amateur dress rehearsal of "Girofola" will be given to-night at the Florence House.

THE phonograph was silent at the Grand last evening. What is it going to be anyhow—a burlesque or honest?

THERE will be a performance, positively the last in this city, of "Joshua Whitcomb," at Emerson's, on Sunday evening.

DEITZ HALL, Oakland, will be jammed on Monday evening. Seats for "Uncle Josh" were sold before the tickets were printed.

AN electric light has been placed in position at Baldwin's Theater. It was in working order last night, and illuminated a large section of Market Street.

A GRAND concert, in aid of the funds of the Church of the Advent, will be given this evening at Platt's Hall. The Schmidt family will be the principal performers.

PROFESSOR MARTIN has decided to leave out Emperor Norton and take a Post-reporter on board his balloon "Hercules" on his Sunday aerial excursion from Woodward's Gardens.

THE magic lantern views to be exhibited this evening by Mr. Hatchings, at the rooms of the Art Association, give a better idea of the grand beauty of California scenery than anything ever shown in this city.

CARPENTERS commence work to-morrow at the pavilion preparing for the great Musical Festival at the end of the present month. It is probable that an additional day's performance will take place after the season of three days has been given.

A SQUAD of the Metropolitan Police in regulation uniform will appear on the Bush street stage on Monday evening. Manager Locke had better send an invitation to our Board of Supervisors to be present and see how the thing works.

THE Athletic Minstrels, a new company organized by J. J. Bailly and George Orr, late of the Acme troupe, will give their first grand entertainment at Platt's Hall on Wednesday night, May 29th. As there are a good many talented and versatile performers in the company a good entertainment may be reasonably expected.

W. O'DALE STEVENS writes from Fredericksburg, Virginia, that Campbell's Circus, to which he is attached, is having a successful season in the South. Miss Linda Jeal, who travels with the company is considered the best hurdle rider at present in the business. She has improved greatly since her appearance at Woodward's Gardens, and while there she was considered by Manager Williams the best general female performer in the profession.

ROSSINI's widow, who died the other day, left a fortune of nearly $150,000 in money and jewels, which, in accordance with her will, will be devoted to founding almshouses for French and Italian vocalists. Some time before her death she sold the posthumous fugitive pieces of her late husband to Baron Albert Grant for $10,000, but the Baron paid much too dearly for them, as they have been found to possess little or no merit. Rossini himself left a fortune of over $250,000, which he devoted in his will to the foundation of a free Academy of Music in his native town, Pesaro. The beautiful spot of ground near the Bois de Boulogne, on which Rossini's residence, half mansion and half villa, stands, now belongs to the French Government, the composer having consented to accept it as a gift from the State, saving his pride by the payment of a nominal price, only on condition that after the death of himself and his wife it was to revert to the Government.—Ex.

A LADY spent the best part of a week in a registry office in London, enduring a variety of snubbing from women, who turned up their noses at her ample wages and her moderate work. At last she was taken pity upon by a person who consented to preside over her kitchen. "You live on a terrace, ma'am?" said Mrs. Cook, mollified. "I have refused six boxes of situations because 'street' and 'place' sound so vulgar for one's address. But 'terrace' will look pretty at the top of my letters."—Ex.

A STROLLING theatrical company was at a dinner table. A waiter approached one of the company and said, "Soup?" "No, sir," replied the guest, "I am one of the musicians."—Ex.

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

CHICAGO, APRIL 25, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—Modjeska began a two weeks engagement at Hooley's last Monday night in "Camille," to a good house; same bill all week and probably next week also. "The Exiles" is on its third and last week at McVickar's; attendance decidedly light. Next week "Our Aldermen." Kate Claxton and Company at Adelphi, in "Two Orphans," to poor houses. Next week Josh Hart's panorama of Chicago. Dr. Palmer, of Detroit, has a very queer "Uncle Tom" party at the New Chicago Theater this week, attendance rather light. Coliseum full every night. It has been raining nearly constantly all week and the wet weather has hurt all the theaters more or less. Modjeska receives high praise from our local critics, but the weather has been against her and her houses have not been what they should.

McVickar's travelling party, with John Dillon as star, returned to the city yesterday. On account of the star being too elevated on Tuesday night, the performance was stopped and the company disbanded.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL., April 26, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT: The dramatic season is nearly over here. Lectures and readings are all in vogue at present. Prof. Cunnock, Professor of Elocution, in the North Western University, at Evanston, Ill., gave a reading in Durley Hall. It was well attended and the reading good. Rev. Hodgeman, of St. Louis, has been giving us a series of lectures on the "Nebula Hypothesis." With all respect to the reverend gentleman, yet it is the opinion of all who have heard him, that he is somewhat "cracked."

Mrs. Hobart gave a reading, or perhaps lecture, on "George Eliot," in the Public Library Hall last Tuesday. It was very fine and well received.

Mrs. Darity, of Boston, gave an elocutionary reading in Durley Hall last evening, for the benefit of our public library. Owing to the rain it was not very well attended. The reading was the best that has been given in this city this season.

John Dillon was advertised to appear in Durley Hall last Thursday evening, in "All the Rage," but he came not. About noon the news reached Bloomington that John had relapsed into his old habit, and consequently would not appear. The facts are as follows: John Dillon was advertised to play in Peoria, Ill., on the 23d and 24th. Tuesday evening he came upon the stage under the influence of liquor, but was able to proceed with the play; after many failures and much prompting, John blundered through his part, and the play closed with a very dissatisfied house. Wednesday evening the house was again filled, but John Dillon was so intoxicated that to proceed with the play seemed madness, still the manager thought that Dillon would rally and at least be up with his lines. John began a course of profanity and outrageous conduct that the management called the house and disbanded the company. The company passed through the city on their way back to Chicago. Peoria is very indignant over their treatment.

Ann Eliza Young lectures soon in Durley Hall.

Haverly's New Orleans Minstrels in Durley Hall, May 2d.

Park Theater Company soon, as well as "The Danites."

The Olympic Stock Company play "A Celebrated Case" in Durley first of the month.

Respectfully Yours, NEMO, JR.

"WILLIAM," began a Second street woman the other morning as she laid aside the daily paper, "what is this new metric system proposed by Alexander Stephens?" "It is a very wise measure indeed, my dear," he replied. "Suppose you want a new dress, costing $1 per yard?" "Yes," "Under the metric system you write to you father in Wisconsin for the money to buy it with. The money comes, you take half of it and buy me a pair of pants, and then you use the rest in purchasing fifty-cent dress goods. It is a very good measure, very good." "And they propose to make it a law, do they?" "They do." "Well, sir!" she exclaimed, showing a red spot on each cheek, "when the metric system comes into practice in this family divorce will follow, and Alexander Stephens is a fool, sir, a fool!"—Free Press.

GERMANIA HALL, Oakland, is one of the best in the State for Dramatic or Musical entertainments.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" in Virginia City

THE Virginia Chronicle of April 27th thus notices the branch of the Grand Opera House Company's performance at Piper's.

"'Uncle Tom's Cabin' was presented last night to one of the largest audiences that the theater has held for a long time. It is wonderful to see what a vast improvement has been made upon the old threadbare drama. It seems like a new thing entirely, and the audience last night were held contented in the theater till nearly midnight. The play reproduces scenes of twenty years ago—scenes which now only exist in the memories of those who witnessed them, and which are not likely to be again witnessed on American soil. It impressed the audience as a faithful reproduction of Southern life. The old plantation at sunset, with the groups of rollicking negroes dancing on the sward and merrily singing their joyful songs, was a novel and pleasing picture, and of course brought down the house. The cast was a particularly strong one. Little Zoe Tuttle, a child barely eight years old, enacted the part of 'Eva' in a style that was something extraordinary, and the death scene, with the sorrowing slaves grouped around the bedside and singing the 'Rock of Ages,' was a marvelous piece of dramatic and musical effect. Little Zoe is as self-possessed and graceful in her poses and movements as an actress of twenty years' experience. Mr. Billings, an old favorite with Comstockers, got a round of applause as soon as he made his entrance. He played 'Uncle Tom' and 'George Harris' in splendid style, making the former part very effective. The 'Papay' of Miss Deaves was the best ever seen here, combining all the extraordinary eccentricities of the everlastingly wicked original with some splendid dancing. J. O. Barrows sustained the double role of 'Phineas Fletcher' and 'Legree,' the brutal slave owner, in fine style. F. LeChir, the lawyer whose name was Marks,' furnished much amusement, but but the intrusion of this character at the auction rather mars the effect of the scene. Miss Jean Clara Walters was a very effective 'Cassy.' Between the second and third acts John Leach introduced some Chinese variety business, which by its naturalness and quaint humor fairly convulsed the house. Several persons in the audience last night were willing to bet money that Leach was really a Chinaman. His appearance was one of the hits of the evening. The matinee this afternoon was packed."

"Uncle Tom" will be repeated this evening, and don't forget that there are fifteen genuine darkeys in the cast."

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's No. 135 Montgomery Street

A correct understanding of book-keeping is an absolute necessity to any one in business. A visit to the PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE, on Post Street, opposite Union Square, will give you that the method of tuition adopted and its daily practice by the teachers and students of that institution cannot be excelled; and that anyone who passes a course of instruction there and fails to be thoroughly conversant with the principles and practice of the science of accounts had better give up all idea of ever becoming a successful merchant.

MORRIS' theatricals are the latest novelty in Paris. American managers have been importing theatricals for some time past.

OMAHA has noticed that when her river is muddy her milk and beer are the same, and she calls it a curious disposition of Providence.

McKee, the whisky ring man, is said to be the author of the line, "With all thy faults, I love thee still." He composed it one day while gazing abstractedly at an illicit distillery.

As exchange says, "A beautiful example of 'force of habit' is to see a drop of Murphy fill his glass with water, and dreamily blow the froth off the innocent water before drinking."

THE Count Johannes is declared to be the prince of guys. At a recent performance in Philadelphia, a choice bouquet was thrown to him on the stage. The Count kissed his hand, smiled, and went to pick it up; but just as he was about doing so, a string that was attached to it was pulled, and the Count dropped nothing. After indulging in a few comic oaths, he retired in confusion.

she leaned alone upon the fence
And then she gave a sigh,
And for his footstep down the lane
She waited patiently
And presently he came to view
And then she felt a yell
A heavenly howl of joy she howled
And her bosom swelled a swell.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place of excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Streets, opposite Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are not far behind those in the city's most famous Commercial Hotel. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from waiters, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth Street, induced the restaurant proprietors to attract their patrons by also meeting Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon a visit to a visit.

The leading plate manufacturers of the United States are advertising patrons of the FOOTLIGHT. Their business cards will be found in our listings.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, generally known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed, superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Riche's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBICK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ARGUMENT

PATCHWORK is an extravaganza in the general sense of the term—like "Topsy," it "grows" and while its lack of motive or pretension is the most enjoyable thing about it. The impression that the artists are having a bit of fun, without knowing that anybody is looking on, the main object is fun in its finest qualities and most objectionable features. The plot is as follows: A wealthy gentleman indulges an eccentricity by giving a private masquerade, and while the guests are at supper the servants of the house appropriate the dresses used on the occasion, dress themselves according to their several fancies, and proceed to act, sing and dance as their inclinations suggest. Among the principal incidents of a special nature may be mentioned Mr. Salsbury's recitation in costume, entitled the "Trump." Miss Corelli in a grand operatic melody of all nations. Mr. Gourlay in one of his original creations. Miss Nellie McHenry in "I hope I don't intrude." Mr. John Webster as "Gaily the Troubadour," and the Troubadours "Grand Mock Tragedy" founded upon the Closet Scene from Shakespeare's "Hamlet," "Introducing the melancholy blonde Dane 'la Fechter'—The Queen—The Ghost—Polonius and the supernatural light—A King of Shreds and Patches—It's down that light

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.

Gentlemen,—The artists of the Kellogg

Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and

pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

PUBLISHERS' ANNOUNCEMENT

In addition to theatrical and dramatic notes, THE FOOTLIGHT will hereafter contain a brief synopsis of local events of public interest; also a weekly resume of dramatic news, published in Saturday's edition.

It will be in the hands of carriers at 12 M., daily, for delivery to subscribers within the business section of San Francisco, at the low price of 25 cents per month; and will be mailed to country and outside city subscribers every Wednesday and Saturday (six numbers); price, 50 cents per month, or $3.00 per annum, payable in advance.

The Herold Benefit

The programme of concerted selections to be rendered by a grand orchestra, at the complimentary benefit tendered Professor Rudolph Herold, on Wednesday afternoon next, at the Metropolitan Temple, Fifth Street, will be found under Amusements on third page. It will be seen that the pieces chosen for the occasion embrace those that were received with the greatest favor during the series of matinee concerts, the last of which was given on the 1st of May. No musical director who has ever made a residence in San Francisco has made more earnest endeavors to elevate public taste in music, and therefore those lovers of the divine art in our community who have benefited by that education, and combined pleasure with instruction while attending his matinee performances, ought to make it a special duty of directing attention to his coming benefit, so that the occasion will be one of financial success, and a merited recognition of Professor Herold's many years of labor in advancing the musical education of the people.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

At the matinee to-day Miss Dargon will appear, by special request, as "Mary of England." The evening performance will embrace "Ireland as it Was," and "The Honeymoon." The two principal characters in the former will be taken respectively by Miss Dargon and Mr. C. B. Bishop, being the last appearance of both at the California. Tom Keene and Alice Harrison will be in their old places again on Monday evening.

Grand Opera House

"Conrad, the Corsair" this evening, with the specialties of Messrs. Russell and Knight between acts. To-morrow evening a farewell benefit will be given "The Lone Fisherman" of "Evangeline," Mr. Harry Hunter, when a host of volunteers will appear.

Bush Street Theater

The minstrel performance here still continues in popular favor. "The modern School of Acting" gives Welch and Richmond a chance to introduce many of their witticisms, and the entire performance is one continuous run of funny sayings and doings. Next week more new sketches will be brought out. A matinee will be given this afternoon.

Emerson's Opera House

"Uncle Joshua," we will have to say good-bye to you to-morrow evening sure, and we will always think of you as a most amusing character, and wish you success in your future travels.

Baldwin's Theater

Salsbury Troubadours to-night. McKee Rankin and company in "The Danites" on Monday.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

MISS MAGGIE CHAMBERS will be one of "The Danites" company at Baldwin's.

WILLIAMSON and wife play an engagement in Philadelphia some time during the present month.

THE Swedish Lady Vocalists, under engagement at Emerson's, arrive this evening; also, Mr. Frank Lawlor, of the Bush Street Theater.

CHORSE, the agent of the Troubadours, started to Los Angeles yesterday morning to make arrangements for the company to play at that place.

THE last number received of the N. Y. Dramatic News heads the California theatrical review with a vignette engraving of Miss Ellie Wilton.

THE Crosby-Maeder Dramatic Troupe play at San Jose on Monday and Tuesday. Mr. John E. Owens is the star of the company supported by Miss Georgie Woodthorpe.

FOREPAUGH's show will perform at Virginia City on Monday and Tuesday. On the same evenings the Union Square Co. will be at Carson, opening at Piper's on Wednesday, the 8th.

THE "Kerry Gow" Combination, of which our old acquaintance Joe Murphy is the "boss," has cleared about $25,000 the present season. It is doubtful if any other traveling company has done as well.

It is more than probable that our esteemed friend, General Barton, who has recently returned from the East after a successful season with J. K. Emmet, will control the destinies of one of the Bush street theaters are long.

We have it on excellent authority that our fair friend, Miss Ellie Wilton, will return from Europe a year hence the bride of a prominent member of the stock fraternity, a widower by the way—of course we shall not abuse the confidence reposed in us any further than this announcement.

MANAGER HILL, of the Denman Thompson Company, is confined to his room at the Cosmopolitan Hotel on account of sickness. His visit to California was chiefly for the purpose of regaining health, in which we hope he may eventually be as successful as he has been in his business speculation.

THE eminent contralto, Miss Anna Drasdil, who has been engaged for the oratorio solos at the coming May Festival, is reputed by those who have had the pleasure of hearing her, to be the possessor of vocal powers in purity and volume greater than any other American contralto prima donna. We shall see whether her performance at the Pavilion will sustain this great reputation.

THE coming week will afford Mr. John C. Leach, the artistic impersonator of Chinese character, an opportunity of showing the superiority of local talent over Eastern, as he will play the "Chinaman" in "The Danites," a part in which Chas. J. Parsloe made an immense hit in the East. Mr. Maguire was so well satisfied of Mr. Leach's ability that he did not wish to bring Mr. Parsloe out to play it, although he is the original.

THE N. Y. Dramatic News of April 27th mentions that "Charles Levy died last week in this city. He was well known as a theatrical agent, having been identified with Strakosch, Wachtel, Maretzek, etc. Last year he was the agent of the Soldene Company and this year he was the traveling manager of the Oates Company. Mr. Levy was a victim of consumption. It is noteworthy that the Oates Company has lost two of its prominent members this year, in M. Predigam, the orchestra leader, and Mr. Levy."

THE number of talented artists who will congregate at Platt's Hall, on Tuesday evening next, as a farewell compliment to Mrs. Mary Banta, warrants us to believe that the concert will be one of the best of the season. The performance of the German Zither players will be a pleasing number in the programme, and the Wadsworth Sisters, Misses Mary and Eno, will grace the occasion by their presence. Sam Fabian is underlined for a piano solo, and Miss Gracie Plaisted will be present. Secure your seats at Sherman, Hyde & Co's.

MULLER'S FLORESCOPE will show the animalcule in a drop of water. Price $1.00. Call and examine and you will be convinced. Muller Agent, 135 Montgomery Street.

A list of newly published and popular volumes which Messrs. A. ROMAN & Co. have just received will be found on first page.

HEADLIGHT'S WEEKLY GOSSIP

Theatrical business this week has been at some of our theaters somewhat dull. At the Bush Street, where the Haverly Minstrels have captivated our theatergoers, the house has been crowded every night, and Manager Locke has good reason for feeling happy as he has secured one of the best minstrel companies ever seen on this coast. George Thatcher in his drolleries, as it is called on the bills, is very good but seems to be studied too much and has none of the sparkling humor Harry Richmond possesses, who, by the way, is creative and not imitative. The man with the bump is very good as far as it goes, but to call it the greatest feature in the Minstrel business is drawing it a little too far. The California Quartette, well drilled and well schooled in their vocalism, present some sterling songs. Taken altogether this is a good company.

Across the way Denman Thompson is in his last week and still playing to fair houses. He will leave us next Monday, and we can only say, "Come again Uncle Joshua, we shall be always glad to see you."

The Swedish Lady Quartette will appear at this house next Monday, and warble some of their sweetest songs for which they are famed, and as they are said to be rather handsome, a good house will no doubt greet them.

At the California Theater business has been quiet during the present week. Miss Dargon, fine actress as she is, has been playing to poor houses, which is a severe reflection on our aesthetic taste—but sperro meliora. Miss Katherine Rogers will open at this house next Monday night, in "Jane Shore," supported by the regular company, augmented by the prodigious members who returned from their Eastern trip, where they failed to make the impression anticipated.

Little Alice Harrison is glad to be back in San Francisco, as San Francisco is glad to have her back. Alice will not go with the Rice Evangelical Company, but like a sensible girl prefers to stay with us.

At Baldwin's Theater, the Troubadours have made it lively and drawn good houses: they are amusing and entertaining, and present a chaste programme. Their advance agent has gone to Los Angeles, and may arrange for the appearance there of the company. Next Monday night McKee Rankin will open with his great play of "The Danites," with which he has made barrels of money wherever played. It is said to be full of stirring situations and spirited acting, and of the Buffalo Bill style, only more refined. McKee Rankin will be supported by Miss Kitty Blanchard (his wife) and a well-selected company of local talent. Miss Jean Burdette, an Eastern actress of some repute, will also make her first appearance in California, and as the play has been under constant rehearsal for the last two weeks, great things are expected therefrom.

This theater will no doubt be the society theater of San Francisco for no matter what the attraction may be, people will go if only to see the theater. Maguire struck a bonanza when he secured this house, and Tom deserves it, for he has done more than anyone else in California in securing star performers for public amusement. On Monday the orchestra will be re-organized with Harry Widmer as chef, and the entr'acte musical selections will thus become one of the features of the house.

Yours truly,

HEADLIGHT.

FERRANDI ROSSNATT, the tenor robusto, who was to have sung with Strakosch this season, but remained in Australia, has sent on his contract for next season, and it has been accepted. Reports about the tenor are remarkably favorable. Mr. Strakosch and Miss Kellogg have signed a contract extending their copartnership another year. Cary remains in the company. Frapoli is doubtful, now that Rossnatti comes.—Ex.

IN 1846 Jefferson boarded with the widow O'Brien in Baltimore. He was considered a careful young actor, was playing second parts at a salary of $7 per week, and made $2.50 extra by painting scenery.—Ex.

A correct understanding of Book-keeping is an absolute necessity to any one in business. A visit to the PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE, on Post Street, opposite Union Square, convinced us that the method of tuition adopted and in daily practice by the teachers and students of that institution cannot be excelled, and that anyone who passes a course of instruction there and fails to be thoroughly conversant with the principles and practice of the science of accounts had better give up all idea of ever becoming a successful merchant.

Reception Dress in London

A LONDON correspondent, referring to the recent court reception at Buckingham Palace says: "Such a display of naked arms, bosoms and shoulders was never beheld by daylight before. The corsage of la Jeune d'Arc is scarcely decent, so tightly is it made to fit the figure, and the skirt so strained over the stomach that the whole of the outline is as clearly defined as when an artist's model stands before him in wet drapery. The one novelty was the introduction of the Jardiniere—small basket either of very fine wicker-work or gilt or silvered filagree. It is made flat on one side, so as to lie quite close to the wearer, and is filled with cut-flowers, which hang gracefully pendant over the edge on the other."

This is ahead of the Telephone. The "Florescope" will show a living wonder in a drop of water. Price $1.00. The trade supplied, MILLER, 135 Montgomery Street.

OLD TABLEWARE PLATED to look as good as new at the S. F. Gold and Silver Plating Works, 634 Mission Street.

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

six-month cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best natural watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes. Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to F. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHURBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ARGUMENT

Patchwork is an extravaganza in the general sense of the term—like "Topsy," it "grows" sure—while its lack of motive or pretension is the most enjoyable thing about it. The impression that the artists are having a bit of fun, without knowing that anybody is looking on, the main object is fun in its finest qualities and most objectionable features. The plot is as follows: A wealthy gentleman indulges an eccentricity by giving a private masquerade, and while the guests are at supper, the servants of the house appropriate the dresses used on the occasion, dress themselves according to their several fancies, and proceed to act, sing and dance as their inclinations suggest. Among the principal incidents of a special nature may be mentioned Mr. Salsbury's recitation on costume, entitled the "Tramp." Miss Corelli in a grand Operatic medley of all nations. Mr. Gourlay in one of his original creations, Miss Nellie McHenry in "I hope I don't intrude." Mr. John Webster as "Gaily the Troubadour," and the Troubadours' "Grand Mock Tragedy," founded upon the "Lost Scene, from Shakespeare's "Hamlet," introducing the melancholy blonde Dame "a la Fechter"—The Queen—The Ghost—Polonius and the supernatural light—A King of Shreds and Patches—Put down that light.

BORAX WATER

No Housekeeper Should be Without It!

The best thing known for washing Flannel; superior to anything for cleaning Silk and Velvet; the most cleansing for the body, for healing eruptions of the skin when used as a shampoo, will cleanse the scalp and prevent the hair from falling out; when mixed with starch is used for glazing shirts and other linens. By washing shelves or cupboards with this solution, ants and cockroaches and other insects will be driven away. Borax is the best thing known for curing Rheumatism.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co. Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Closed during the present week, will be re-opened on Monday.

Grand Opera House

The "Evangeline" season closed here last evening, and no announcement has yet been made of what is to follow. We are authoritatively informed that the statement made regarding the transfer of lease of this theater is entirely without foundation. The present lessee continues in possession, and no change is contemplated in present management.

Baldwin's Theater

"The Danites," that much-heralded dramatic masterpiece of Joaquin Miller, our poet, will be produced with much splendor of scenery this evening, by McKee Rankin and a selected company. From what we have already seen of it behind the scenes, we should judge it to be another success scored to the credit of Manager Maguire. The orchestra has been re-organized, and Harry Widmer assumes the baton to-night.

Bush Street Theater

Many novel and comical sketches will be added to this evening's programme. Thatcher and Billy Rice will be the extremes in the first part. New vocal selections will be given by the California quartette, and new banjo solos by Carter. At the end of the first act the Minstrels will be transformed into a company of New York policemen. The uniforms to be worn will be of the pattern now under consideration by our Board of Supervisors for drapery for our guardians of the peace.

Emerson's Opera House

A new company of Swedish vocalists succeed Denman Thompson here. Mr. Emerson again resumes control, and we trust that the present company will deserve and meet with as much success as "Joshua Whitcomb."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

THE TROUBADOURS have gone to Los Angeles.

BILLY EMERSON plays at Hooley's, Chicago, this week.

THE Methodists of Baltimore are after Colonel J. J. Red hot.

"To-morrow evening a matinee performance," etc.—N. Y. World.

THE SCHMIDT QUINTET will perform at Germania Hall, Oakland, to-night.

A HOST of volunteers are promised from Oregon and Nevada to assist at the May Festival.

MISS BUCKLE's farewell concert will be given at the Metropolitan Temple, this evening.

THE Denman Thompson Company play at Dietz Hall, Oakland, this and to-morrow evening.

THE engagement of Miss Katherine Rogers at the California has been postponed on account of sickness.

THE California Theater will remain closed this week. Many important changes will have been made before it re-opens.

SILVER is getting so plentiful in San Francisco that some of the shopkeepers are nailing fifty-cent pieces on their counters for ornaments.

FRANK GARDNER, of the London Circus, challenges the jumping fraternity to turn double somersaults over elephants with him for $1000.

TOM KEENE and Alice Harrison, with the rest of the California "Trip to the Moon" party, switched off at Denver, and may visit the Black Hills before they return here.

THE Maine church people have discovered a new way of raising the wind. "Hug" parties have succeeded "Mum" socials. Ten cents a "hug," or three for twenty-five cents. Old maids and mothers-in-law barred out.

ONE of the London journals makes fun of the United States' double-barrelled system of nomenclature, and thinks that womanly modesty should be content with plain Mistress instead of Mrs. General, Mrs. Senator, etc.

Napoleon and Madame Recamier

How very small and contemptible this great fighting man could be, is exemplified in his conduct to Madame Recamier, which even exceeded in baseness his persecutions of Madame De Stael. The first time his eyes fell on her she incurred his jealous anger. It was in the Court of the Luxembourg on the occasion of the great reception given him by the Directory to celebrate his Italian victories. While Barras was delivering a long oration, she rose from her seat to obtain a better view of the hero of the day. Clad in simple white—her invariable costume—her wonderful beauty immediately attracted all eyes, and a murmur of admiration ran through the assembly. Bonaparte glanced sharply around to ascertain the cause, and his eyes fell upon that lovely form. Indignant that even a woman should for an instant distract the admiring gaze from him he cast upon her a glance so stern that she sank back upon her seat overwhelmed with confusion. From that hour he became her enemy. Being present at the trial of General Moreau, he demanded so angrily, "What was Madame Recamier doing there?" that she was counselled by her friends, if she had any regard for her safety not to attend a second day. Yet the jealous despot was no more insensible to her charms than were other men. It was at a ball given by Lucien that she met him for the second and last time. She observed his eagle glance following her every movement, and presently Fouche came up to her and whispered in his bold, insolent way, "Madame, le premier Consul vous trouve charmante!" After supper Napoleon himself addressed her brusquely with, "Why did you not come and sit by me at supper? You should have done so; it was your place." The great Mogul, or the Sultan of Turkey could scarcely have been more dictatorial to a female subject. Through his vile agent, Fouche, he made overtures to her to take the post of Dame du Palais. "He has never yet," said Sir Pandarus, "met with a woman worthy of him, and no one knows what would be the love of Napoleon for a pure-minded woman. She would assuredly obtain an influence over him which would be most beneficial." But Juliette Recamier's virtue was proof even against the allurements of this modish Zenghis-Khan, and she shrank from all his advances; thereby, of course, incurring his deadly hatred, which became more or less extended, even to those who frequented her salons. Hearing that three of his ministers had been seen there, he demanded angrily, "Since when had the council been held at Madame Recamier's?" and forbade them thenceforth to appear there. He said openly that he regarded as a personal enemy every person, whether French or foreign, who visited her. N. Y. Hour Journal.

A Wisconsin editor illustrated the prevailing extravagance of people nowadays by calling attention to the costly baby carriages in use, while, when he was a baby they hauled him by the hair of his head.

Anecdote of Balzac

When he brought "Quinola" to the Odeon, in 1842, and declared his intention of reading it himself, the foyer was crowded with the members of the company, including Madame Dorval, who, not being comprised in the cast, came simply out of curiosity. The first four acts were listened to attentively, and notwithstanding the obscurity of the plot and the total absence of harmony in the details, produced a great effect, partly due to the author's manner of reading, and partly to the flashes of genius which every now and then startled the audience, and caused the incongruities of the drama to be temporarily forgotten. At the end of the fourth act Balzac rolled up his manuscript, and to the consternation of all present coolly announced that the fifth was not yet written, but that he would tell them what it was likely to be. "What does he mean?" whispered Mme. Dorval to me. "Who ever heard of a fifth act being told. He must be mad." "Not in the least," I said; "it is only his way. I should not have been surprised if he had improvised the whole piece instead of an act; he is quite capable of it." "Content yourself," murmured the actress, "such a thing was never known, and he must break down." And so, unfortunately, he did: during the first two or three scenes he was tolerably intelligible, but from that point he began to flounder, and long before he had arrived at the denouement he and his hearers were completely lost in a maze of exits and entrances, jumbled together without rhyme or reason, and terminating in the most hopeless and irretrievable confusion. "What did I tell you?" said Madame Dorval, rising from her chair, while the rest of the assembly, bewildered and disheartened, were one by one leaving the room; "there is matter enough in those five acts for twenty plays, but your friend has made a fatal mistake; he has put all his eggs into one basket!" Temple Bar.

SAYS A German paper: "In Frankfurt, Wiesbaden, Bingen and Dillenburg, societies have lately been formed for abolishing the prevailing custom of removing the hat as a sign of greeting. Such a Bowing Reform Society was organized the previous year in Frankfurt, in the hall of the Erlanger Hof. It consists of five superior officers, whose terms of office last but a quarter of a year, and has already many members. The Reform meets with general favor. The fashion of not merely lifting, but removing the hat entirely from the head when meeting any acquaintance on the street, whether gentleman or lady, and without regard to season or weather, is considered not only absurd but burdensome and unhealthy."—Ex.

THE production of the opera entitled "The Queen of Sheba," which was in rehearsal at the Covent Garden, in London, England, has been forbidden, "because it is contrary to good morals to reproduce on the stage characters mentioned in the Old Testament." If the names of the characters are changed to conform to this requirement, no objection will be made to the production of the work.—Ex.

PLUNDER

It is really the fact that jaunty English girls are now raising the hat by way of acknowledging a bow, the same as the gentlemen do. The hat used is the little round felt Oxford, which looks well on top of a pretty young face.

SHE stepped out of the cars a few minutes, leaving a book on the seat, but on returning went to the wrong seat and inquired of a placid old lady: "Are you sitting on 'That Husband of Mine'?" "Good gracious! No!" exclaimed the old lady, jumping up and scanning the seat with rigid scrutiny.

JONES, the pink of politeness, having forgotten to take formal leave of Mr. and Mrs. Tompkins at their last tea party, returns to do so. The other guests have gone, and Jones is somewhat disconcerted to discover his host and hostess embracing each other, crying out with enthusiasm, "Thank goodness, it's all over!"

M. Flotow himself attended the rehearsal of his new opera, "Alma," and modified some melodious passages to suit Mile. Albani's voice. The work has been brought out brilliantly, and is successful. M. Flotow, who is a venerable man, with thick-lined features and German simplicity of manners, was hardly able to speak from sheer joy when the performance was over. He said that Mile. Albani's perfect representation of "Alma" made this opera "the crowning glory of his life."

A microphotograph of the Lord's Prayer containing 300 letters, not larger than a dot, is enlarged so that it can be read distinctly by MULLER'S FLORESCOPE. 145 Montgomery Street.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 100 PAPERS, generally known as "Patent Outlines," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 100 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines high) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $10—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-elled; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Peaches, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Rich's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.:

Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Closed during the present week, will be re-opened on Monday with Miss Katherine Rogers in "A Wife's Penance." General W. B. Barton is now lessee and a complete overhauling and reconstruction in all departments will be accomplished prior to re-opening. Judging from General Barton's successful record as a manager there is little doubt about the California regaining its popularity.

Grand Opera House

Closed during the present week.

Bush Street Theater

The Haverly Minstrels have been and are doing a first-class business here. The new sketches introduced last night are quite up to the standard of their amusing predecessors. Harry Richmond's original burlesque of "Custodians of the Peace" was uproariously received. The vocalism introduced throughout the entire program is of the most pleasing description, and the dancing harpist is nightly encored. The funnyisms of the Minstrels are indescribable, and must be seen to be appreciated.

Emerson's Opera House

The Swedish Lady Graduates of the Royal Conservatory of Music, Stockholm, gave their first performance here last evening. They were well received, and prove to be excellent vocalists. As they continue here during the week, further notice will be given concerning their performance.

Baldwin's Theater

The elite of San Francisco society assembled within the walls of this elegant Temple of Muses last evening to welcome the first production of Joaquin Miller's drama, "The Danites," with McKee Rankin and Miss Kitty Blanchard as principals in the cast. For a first production, it was a complete success. The piece is full of life and action; from the rising to the falling of the curtain the interest never flags. The character differs from anything ever before offered at Baldwin's. It is about as far removed from "Saragosa" as it would be possible for a playwright to place it. Both are pictures of American society—one approaching refinement, the other barbarism. The scene of the drama is laid in a mining camp of California. The drop painted by Dayton for the first act shows the majestic outlines of the Sierras, the snow lying in furrows on the mountain gorges, and the grand features of the mountain region brought out with fine effect. 'Sandy,' a miner (McKee Rankin) saves 'Nancy Williams' (Kitty Blanchard) from the pursuing Danites—the destroying angels of that blight upon our civilization, the Mormon religion—and the future dread of 'Nancy,' of death by violence at the hands of the Danites, is the theme around which the drama is woven. Carrying out her desire to escape detection, she assumes male attire, and appears throughout the rest of the drama, until the finale, as 'Billy Piper.' Her sex is discovered by 'The Widder' (Miss Annie Pixley), who comes to the mining camp as a schoolmistress, and marries 'Sandy.' She also discovers the love of 'Nancy Williams' for her husband, and it is in the expression of this love on different occasions that the poetic passages of the drama occur. The jealousy at last awakened in the heart of 'Sandy,' upon discovering his wife in the arms of 'Nancy,' gives occasion for the display of intense passion, which accomplished in fine style by McKee Rankin. The Danites are eventually disposed of, according to the formula of Judge Lynch, the proper sex of 'Billy Piper' is made apparent, 'Sandy's' jealousy dispelled, 'Captain Tommy' (Miss Chambers) and 'Banker Hill' (Miss Corcoran) made decent members of society by their marriage to the 'Judge' (C. B. Bishop) and 'Lumber Tim' (Harry Courtaigne), and the curtain falls on the miners with their families at the 'Forks' made happy.

The scenery of the fifth act is the most realistic view of the California Alps ever seen on any stage in this city. Dayton has succeeded well in his effort and the enthusiastic call before the curtain was richly deserved. The perspective effect produced by the drop of the third act was of the most natural character, and the scenery and stage setting throughout the whole piece are most artistic work.

McKee Rankin and Miss Kitty Blanchard have made a most favorable impression. C. B. Bishop was never cast into a character in which he appeared to better advantage than that of the 'Judge,' although it was overdrawn, but not more than we suppose dramatic license is entitled to. Annie Pixley surprised us by her quiet rendering of the 'School-ma'am.' It was difficult to think of her as the 'Topsy' of 'Uncle Tom.' Harry Courtaigne made all that was possible of 'Lumber Tim.' Stage Manager Brown had not much to do as the 'Barkeeper of the Flowing Wilderness,' but that little was done well. Leach's 'Chinaman' and Grismer's 'Parson' was well taken.

"The Danites" will run for some time to full houses.

ONE of our morning contemporaries blunders in giving credit to Voeglin for "The Danites" scenery. Our modest friend George Dayton, whom Jim Fiske used to call "Moonlight" Dayton, is the scenic artist at Baldwin's.

GENERAL BARTON has succeeded John McCullough as lessee of the California Theater. The management still remains in the hands of Barton Hill. A thorough renovation of the house and reconstruction of stock company will be made prior to re-opening.

THE farewell concert tendered to Mrs. Mary Banta takes place this evening at Platt's Hall. The programme selected for the occasion will be found under Amusements on third page. We anticipate a large audience in compliment to the fair beneficiary.

JARRETT & PALMER have leased Booth's Theater from the Onkes Ames estate for four months, commencing September 1. They will first introduce Genevieve Ward, the tragedienne, who has made a sensation in Europe. After her, Irving and other celebrities.

THE St. Louis Evening Post thus reviews Modjeska's "Camille":—"A human soul struggling for its own redemption, is the key-note for Modjeska's 'Camille.' It differs from all others, and is greater than all others, past or present, inasmuch as it is conceived and worked out on a higher plane. Modjeska has forever silenced those who claim that 'Camille' is necessarily an immoral play, for in her hands it becomes a truth-teacher with an ethical purpose, and the teaching is not limited to the one frailty or sin presented."

As many San Franciscans will no doubt visit Paris during the Exposition season, the following clipping may be of some interest to them:

"Half the inhabitants of Paris avoid domestic life altogether, sleeping in lodgings and eating in restaurants, of which there are a great variety. The most common establishments in Paris are the eating-houses, from the soup-house up to the 'swell' restaurant. The former is nominally a lunch-house, where beef broth is the chief dish, and very capital broth it is too; but all of these broth-house-furnish in addition a certain variety of fish, meats and vegetables, with wine, at a lower proportionate rate than at a regular restaurant. The grade of these houses naturally depends upon the quarter of the city in which they are placed. The groceries are ostensibly cheap milk shops, where one may, in the morning, get coffee, tea, or chocolate, with a steak or an omelette. The customer, on entering, calls for three cents' worth of coffee, for example, and an omelette with three or four eggs, as he may prefer. The first-class cafe offers its customers only coffee and rolls, but adds the perusal of the daily papers. The restaurant differs, in turn, from all these, because offering full meals at all hours, and, in addition, regular breakfast and dinner, at 11 A. M. and at 6 P. M., respectively. The price of the regular meals is invariably posted in gilt letters on the street window panes, and a stranger with limited funds can walk down a street and find a restaurant suited to his means, merely by studying the prices on the windows. Whatever the quality of the food, however, the cooking is always admirable—savory and served hot. The custom of feeling the waiters is an intolerable nuisance; but as it is by the fees that hotel and restaurant waiters are paid, he who disregards this Medo-Persian law of custom will be made to find out his mistake; he is a marked man, and will wait long, on returning to a restaurant whose customs he has disregarded, before he receives attention, and is then served with cold victuals and treated with studied disrespect. We hope that this custom will never be followed in our own country."

PLUNDER

TONY PASTOR's traveling troupe were all arrested at Baltimore on the 23d of April, on a bogus bench warrant, served by bogus deputy sheriffs, but the troupe were unaware of the character of the warrants, and the deputies serving the same. Tony Pastor's troupe are a very wicked and mischievous set of fellows, entirely ignoring aspiring genius, and unmindful of the rights of men who are stage struck. On the above date, a young embryo M. D. demanded a rehearsal of his histrionic talents, and Tony's men put him through. He was denuded of his garments worked up in the most artistic style, and instructed to climb scenery, jump over precipices, and contort himself into a thousand shapes. His performances were fully appreciated until he discovered the wickedness of Tony Pastor's troupe, when he immediately proceeded to a lawyer's office and demanded satisfaction in a judgment for dollars and cents. The manager being notified, responded, smoothed the matter over, but to carry out the "goak," introduced bogus deputy sheriffs behind the scenes last night, and put the Pastor troupe in a tremor of affright.—Ex.

"CLIPPING from an Eastern exchange: "The Sheriff went out with a jury in San Francisco recently and returned to the court-room in about two minutes. In the meantime a notorious burglar, under indictment, climbed over a railing in full view of scores of people, quietly walked out and has not since been seen."

"Do you know," remarked a rather fast Newark youth the other day to a stammering friend, to whom he was slightly indebted, "do you know that I intend to marry and settle down?" "I do—don't know anything about it," was the reply; "but I think you had b-b-better stay single and settle up."

"But one thing is impossible," says the clown of the London Circus. "What's that?" says the ring-master. "Why, for a poor girl, who works for five dollars a week, to pay six for board" (Stewart's Hotel), and the remark brings down the house.

This is ahead of the Telephone. The "Florescope" will show a living wonder in a drop of water. Price $1.00. The trade supplied, MULLER, 135 Montgomery Street.

The "P. CENTEMER" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast.

A correct understanding of book-keeping is an absolute necessity to any one in business. A visit to the PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE, on Post Street, opposite Union Square, convinced us that the method of tuition adopted and in daily practice by the teachers and students of that institution cannot be excelled, and that anyone who passes a course of instruction there and fails to be thoroughly conversant with the principles and practice of the science of accounts had better give up all idea of ever becoming a successful merchant.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and sent in the latest Parisian style.

For the ladies of San Francisco, MME. CONSTANT has just imported a large assortment of FRENCH PATTERN BONNETS of the latest Parisian Summer fashions. No other Millinery establishment on the Pacific Coast have direct consignments of French Pattern Bonnets made them. Mme. Constant, 314 Sutter Street, is the only importer.

Go to the "P. CENTEMER" KID GLOVE STORE, No. 3 Kearny Street (entrance on Geary) and select your Gloves.

Theaters in Paris

I never suffered more discomfort than in a French theater. In saying this, I say a good deal; the Parisian play-houses, as a rule, are everything they should not be in regard to the comfort of the audiences. The seats are narrow; there is no room for your knees; and the ventilation is provided for on the principle of "accidentals." You get what air you can by the occasional opening of the door, and make the best of it. In half an hour you are as faint as a fish that has been living too long in an aquarium without a change. The French do not seem to mind it; they defy suffocation, but they dread a cold, and they are such inborn culinary artists that even the breath of heaven must be cooked and warmed before they consider it fit for use. I said just now that I was on another planet while looking at this drama, and I am confirmed in the belief by the fact that the place seemed to be without an atmosphere, and the regular denizens consequently without lungs. This outburst made me forget the play, but I need say nothing of it to those who have read the book, while nothing I could say would serve to give those who have not an idea of the number and variety of the incidents. The acting was thoroughly conventional from first to last, a circumstance for those to bear in mind who expect to find every piece of French playing the perfection of the art.—Paris Letter.

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the Valley—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 133 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Rick's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.:

Gentlemen—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We heartily commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

General Barton, assisted by Messrs. Barton Hill, T. Maguire, Jr. and Frank Lawlor are actively engaged in getting things straightened out and put in order for the re-opening of the California. Miss Rogers sends word from San Rafael that her health is improving, and the prospects are that she will be able to appear on Monday evening.

Grand Opera House

Closed during the present week.

Bush Street Theater

The succession of novelties brought out by the Haverly Minstrels, speaks well for the talent and staying quality of that company. One of this week's sketches, the "Custodians of the Peace," has a first-rate effect and is the best yet given us, and must have required a great deal of patience and drill to learn to execute the movements and club exercise introduced. If our Supervisors conclude to decorate our officers with fac-simile regimentals, they might do worse than hire Billy Rice as drill sergeant. Minstrel matinee this afternoon.

Emerson's Opera House

The Swedish Vocalists here deserve much better patronage than they have as yet received, and the management would do well to stir up public notice a little regarding them.

Baldwin's Theater

As we anticipated, "The Danites" may be placed to the credit of Maguire's management as another success. McKee Rankin has no cause to complain of his reception, and Kitty Blanchard has, as 'Billy Piper,' made a most favorable impression upon those who have had the pleasure of seeing and hearing her in that character, and her success is more complete being of a purely intellectual character.

The attendance last night was even greater than on the opening night, and the drama was given in the same careful manner. The entr'acte selections by Widmer's orchestra are rendered with excellent taste and execution. Harry Widmer's musical discourse has evidently affected the understanding of the Post's dramatic compiler, as he writes in glowing terms about "The Danites" as a melodrama.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

GAS STOCK will soon be at a discount if Baldwin doesn't quit his experiments.

JULIUS HINCHES will perform a violin-cello solo at the Herold benefit this afternoon.

TONY FRANK, the leader of Forepaugh's band, died on Sunday afternoon in Virginia City.

BARNUM's name is hired by the month. The great Humbug does not own five cents worth of the show.

'JOHN WHITCOMB' will fire 'Bill Johnson' through a photographer's skylight in San Jose to-night.

THE misunderstanding between Miss Catherine Lewis and Manager Rice has been amicably settled.

THE Union Square Company open in "A Celebrated Case" at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, this evening. The Rice Evangeline troupe are playing "Conrad, the Corsair," at National Guard Hall.

"MR. WHITNEY essays two styles, 'wide as the poles asunder.' His magnificent voice was exactly suited to the calm, sustained grace of the first, while the crisp clearness and rapidity demanded by the second were marvelous," is what a Scotch critic wrote about the coming Basso of the May Festival.

At St. Petersburg, recently, George Rignold in "Henry V." drew poorly, which riled His Majesty to that extent, that when he was charged extra for his horse by the railroad company, he determined to ride from Titusville to Oil City, a distance of seventeen miles. It rained all the way, the mud was up to his horse's knees, and it took His Majesty all day to make the journey. He arrived just at night, maddly, tired, wet, sick and hungry, and, as usual, took his revenge by killing three snipes, and was heard to exclaim: "What in 'ell took me through this blasted country of barbarians I can't tell for the life of me tell!" St. Petersburg is in the oil region.—Ex.

MARIE ROZE has captured New York and Boston in spite of some of the critics who insisted that she is not great because unable to sing as high as Kellogg and as low as Cary all in the same breath. It is enough for Roze to know that the interest has everywhere—this Winter—centered upon her charming self. She has a fine voice, a handsome face, and a sweet temper—which latter, by the way, is a novelty in her line of business.—Ex.

A CHINESE legend says that the feet of every pair to be united in wedlock are from infancy tied together with an invisible thread of silk.—Ex.

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

PHILADELPHIA, APRIL 27, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—A thoroughly enjoyable week dawned upon us with the advent of Easter, the banishment of the sackcloth and ashes of the Lenten season, and the appearance of charming Spring weather exercised a reviving effect upon amusements, which have seldom deserved better support; for our managers met the holiday time half way with excellent attractions, and universal satisfaction was the result.

At the Chestnut Street Theater, last Monday night, a large audience witnessed the first production, after long and careful preparation, of "Louis XI." At the Arch Street, the anxiously expected "Celebrated Case" was presented, with Chas. R. Thome, Jr., and the Union Square Co. Southern began a limited engagement of five nights and a matinee at the Walnut St. (his farewell to America), playing "Dundrigny," "Garrick," and "The Crushed," in which latter, by the way, he was even better appreciated than at first, for the boys have beheld the noble Count Johannes in the meanwhile. The Museum struggled along in the third and final week of the "Two Orphans." At the National, Dominick Murray took the boards as "Willy Reilly." Fox's American brought E. J. Goodrich to the front in a terrible melodrama entitled "Just His Luck," that fairly enraptured the blood of the gods. While at the Grand Central, which has for a short period been in what they were pleased to term "a moral way," the irresistible one, Fanny Louise, etc., Buckingham made her re-entrance, with her fiery untamed steed, to the delight of the students of the female form divine (that expression is very hackneyed, but it is also very apropos). Simmons and Slocum's minstrel barlesque, "The X-iles," and besides, with drums beating and banners waving, P. T. Barnum descended upon us with his great-moral-show-and-grand-aggregation-of-heaven-only-knows-what-all-under-our-canvas, and here he has been all the week, showing to tremendous business; to-night he folds his tents and starts on the road.

The grand spectacular historical drama of "Louis XI." is likely to have a lengthy run at the Chestnut. Our one stock theater has surpassed itself in the production of this play. We are accustomed to see things well done at this house, but even the habitude was surprised at the really superb manner in which it was mounted and costumed; and also at Mr. W. E. Sheridan's powerful, faultless delineation of the title role, which gains him a call before the curtain at the end of each act. If Sheridan continues in the way he has been going this season, you can mark him as "the coming man." With the drama (the same version that Henry Irving is now performing in London) you are doubtless acquainted; suffice it then, that the cast, embracing Mr. Wm. D. Gemmill as 'Nemours,' Miss Glover as the 'Dauphin,' Miss May Davenport as 'Marie de Comine,' and the entire company is in the main everything that could be desired, while the scenery by Gontcher, Burdedge, and Mutt Morgan, especially the exterior of the Castle of Plessis les Tours, in Act I, and the Throne Room, exterior of the Chapel of Our Lady of the Woods, and the Audience Room, in Acts 2d, 3d, and 5th, are triumphs of art.

Southern closed last night his very satisfactory engagement at the Walnut. To-night the Hess English Opera Company sing "The Chimes of Normandy." An excellent rendition of Rossini's "Stabat Mater" was given on the 23d inst. by our own hard working and effective chorale society, "The Cecilian," at the Academy of Music. The solo parts were taken by Mrs. Osgood, soprano, Mrs. A. H. Darling, contralto, and Messrs. Simpson, tenor, and Myron W. Whitney, bass. Conductor, Michael H. Cross. Mrs. Osgood, who comes home from England with a good reputation to take part in the Cincinnati festival, has a very graceful presence, and secured the sympathy of her audience at once; she has a clear, fresh, sympathetic voice, not remarkable in power, but exceedingly sweet and refined.

[The rest of our correspondent's letter signed MORAET will be published in FOOTLIGHT to-morrow.—ED. FOOTLIGHT.]

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from mint employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

Jacques Roses and Violets

AN old florist in Fourteenth street, who is a keen observer of many things as well as of the flower market, says that the run on Jacques roses and violets was due to the two actors, Montague and Rignold. Both of them were playing about the same time, one at Wallack's and one at Booth's Theater, in this city, about four years ago. Montague, in the play of "Shaughraun," wore a small knot of violets with his uniform suit in the courtship scene. Rignold used to come on the stage in the fourth act of "Henry V.," in the scene where he wows the "most fair Catherine," with a deep red Jacques rose in his button-hole. There was a war, as every one knows, among our society girls between the admirers of these two mashears. So each faction wore the flower of its favorite. The old florist laughed as he related how the demand for Jacques and violets became greater than the supply by large odds, as to raise the price of Jacques to seventy-five cents and a dollar a bud, and violets to fifty cents and a dollar a bunch. "Yes," he went on to say, "I've seen two pretty girls meet in this place who did not know each other. One would ask for a Jacques rose, and the other for a bunch of violets; and their eyes would flash with defiance at each other as they took possession of and paid for their flowers. Some of the ladies carried it so far as to look angrily at each other as they passed on the street with their rival flowers pinned on their jackets or in their bosoms."—Sun.

This is ahead of the Telephone. The "Florescope" will show a living wonder in a drop of water. Price $1.00. The trade supplied, MULLER, 135 Montgomery Street.

THE "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast.

The latest thing in gents' appendages is the SPIRAL SPRING NOVELTY, for sale at Messrs. CARMANY & CROSSETT, 25 Kearny Street.

A correct understanding of Book-keeping is an absolute necessity to any one in business. A visit to the PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE, on Post Street, opposite Union Square, convinced us that the method of tuition adopted and in daily practice by the teachers and students of that institution cannot be excelled; and that anyone who passes a course of instruction there and fails to be thoroughly conversant with the principles and practice of the science of accounts had better give up all idea of ever becoming a successful merchant.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

For the ladies of San Francisco, MME. CONSTANT has just imported a large assortment of FRENCH PATTERN BONNETS of the latest Parisian Summer fashions. No other Millinery establishment on the Pacific Coast have direct consignments of French Pattern Bonnets made them. Mme. Constant, 314 Sutter Street, is the only importer.

Go to the "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVE STORE, No. 3 Kearny Street (entrance on Geary) and select your Gloves.

The leading establishment on the Pacific Coast for ALL STYLES OF ENGRAVING, will be found at 120 POST ST. The proprietors, Messrs. Geo. M. Wood & Co., are prepared to execute orders for dies, monograms, visiting cards, etc., at the most reasonable rates. A large assortment of fine stationery always on hand.

E. BUTTERICK & Co's Spring Patterns, the most reliable, stylish and popular. Agency 124 Post Street. Send stamp for Catalogue.

Mrs. Bancroft

Mrs. Bancroft commenced her career in the provinces when she was very young. There is a story extant which shows that even then the talent she displayed was great. Some little time before his death Charles Keable went to a country theatre to witness the performance of Miss Glynn in "King John." He was very thoughtful and quiet during the performance, and was not moved to applaud until the scene between 'Hubert' and 'Prince Arthur' was played, after which he watched the personation of the young prince with deep interest; and when the little actress in her death-bed scene exclaimed:

"O! my uncle's spirit is in these stones—Heaven take my soul, and England keep my bones!"

the old actor stood up in his box exclaiming, "By Heavens, that girl will be a great actress!" The girl was Marie Wilton, now Mrs. Bancroft.

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICH'S FARMER HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.:

Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Closed during the present week.

Grand Opera House

Closed during the present week.

Bush Street Theater

The Haverly Minstrels still continue in popular favor, and their entertainment is of such a nature that families who attend do not have their delicacy offended by the broad allusions which are usually part of a minstrel performance. Richmond's sketches and sayings are brimful of wit and humor, and the vocal part of the programme is, as a whole, better than anything we have had in that line since the days of Wambold and Morgan. Amateurs will be given on Saturday.

Emerson's Opera House

The Swedish vocalists and Mr. Christian Krause, violinist, will give a change of programme this evening.

Baldwin's Theater

"The Danites" is a success, crowded houses every evening. Joaquin Miller was very fortunate in finding McKee Rankin and Kitty Blanchard to interpret his chief characters, and they could not have arrived here at a better season to insure a triumph.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

The Masonic Board of Relief picnic today at Woodward's Gardens.

The California theater and Grand Opera House are closed during the present week.

The Chicago Post is now edited by Miss Frances E. Willard, of the Blue Ribbon Brigade.

Miss Cary will sing at the Cincinnati Festival next Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

The Olympic Club will hold their Spring games and picnic at Badger's Park, on Saturday, the 18th.

Miss Nelson has recovered and made her re-appearance as 'Juliet' at the Haymarket, London.

At the debut of Miss Ada Ward, in New York, S. W. Piercy played 'Claude Melnotte' to her 'Pauline.'

The costumes worn in "The Sleeping Beauty" are beyond the descriptive power of fashion's vocabulary.

CARRIE WYATT is travelling with the Kate Claxton Combination, and appears as 'Marianne,' in "The Two Orphans."

It is reported from New York that Pond has arranged to bring Rev. Henry Ward Beecher to San Francisco in August next.

PROF. HENOLD was presented with a laurel wreath and a large basket of choice blossoms at his benefit yesterday afternoon.

An advance of fifty per cent. was made in admission prices during the first week's engagement of Modjeska, at Hooley's, Chicago.

A GRAND rehearsal of the May Festival chorus, under the direction of John P. Morgan, took place last night at the Metropolitan Temple.

JOHN BROUGHAM remembers hearing the salutes fired in London in honor of Wellington and Waterloo. We would be happy to hear from Miss Susan B.

THE necklace worn by Modjeska in "Camille" has risen in value; the paragraph who first took note of it, started it at $10,000 and now it's up to $10,000.

ON account of the continued illness of Miss Katherine Rogers, it is not likely that she will be able to appear at the California theater on Monday evening. The opening of which will be thus necessarily postponed.

THE singing of Mr. Whitney was the grand vocal performance of the evening. His magnificent voice, refined delivery, and artistic repose told grandly. Such power and control are rarely found in combination.—Naudiech (Eng.) Paper.

DURING a temporary retirement of Miss Sara Jewett from the Union Square Theater, Bijou Heron assumed the part of 'Adrienne,' in "A Celebrated Case," and agreeably surprised the audience and her fellow actors with the manner and method of her rendition.

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

CHICAGO, MAY 1, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—Madame Modjeska has made a positive hit, and the theater has been crowded at every performance. She appeared in "Camille" twelve times and the press and public have both been loud in praise of her fine acting and elegant dressing. She has "captured the town" and her engagement has been the success of the season at Hooley's. As there has been a very general desire on the part of the public to see her in something else, she will play "Adrienne," on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. From here she goes to Milwaukee for three nights, thence to Buffalo and Brooklyn. At McVicker's, "The Exiles" closed its three weeks' run on Saturday night, and this week the company are playing the latest New York success, "Our Aldermen." It is taken from the German, and has been adapted and localized by J. B. Runion of the Tribune, and is not exactly a success; the houses have been light. "After Dark" will be the next production, and it is expected to run that until the close of the season, May 25th. Manager McVicker has made up his mind this city will not support a comedy theater and will play stars next season.

At Haverly's Kate Claxton closed a very poor week's business on Saturday night and has gone to Milwaukee. This week Josh Hunt's "Chicago" holds the boards to fair business, with Sam Devere, Larry Tooley and Hannah Birch in the cast. The panorama and fine scenes are very good and met with approval when the piece was produced at the Academy in this city several years ago. The play is well advertised, and the upper part of the house is full every night, but there is "room for a few more" down stairs.

Mad. Rentz' Minstrels are at the New Chicago this week and have been drawing good houses.

At the Coliseum, Niles and Evans, the Lanes, the Hamilton children, Capt. Bogardus and his son, and Geo. W. Thompson in his Dutch play "Jaep," have constituted the attractions, and the house has been full every night. Next week the place will be closed and the Company will play at the New Chicago.

Billy Emerson's Minstrels will occupy Hooley's next week. The company is said to be a strong one. They have been drawing fine houses in neighboring cities and will probably do a big business for a week or two, as Emerson is a great favorite here.

A CONTEMPORARY, speaking of Mrs. Rosby's recent fall from her horse, while acting "Joan of Arc," at the Standard, says the ill-natured have made unfair use of it, by saying, "She has fallen off in her acting."

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

PHILADELPHIA, APRIL 27, 1878.

BUT the event of the week in amusement circles was P. S. Gilmore's farewell concert on the 25th, which passed off in a blaze of glory. Those whom the name of the popular leader failed to draw, that of "Hayes" succeeded in doing, for it was known that His Excellency and suite who are in the city, would honor the house with their presence, and the Academy was literally jammed. The programme was choice and popular, comprising, among other numbers, Beethoven's "Leonora," Overture No. 3, Kontzky's "Awakening of the Lion," and Liszt's "Rhapsodie Hongroise No. 2," with solos for cornet and saxophone, by Lefebvre and Bent, the cavatina from "La Traviata," by Miss Juliette Fenderson, and Verdi's "Celeste Aida," (wittily sung) by Mr. Tien Wilson; also, a military drill by the Lincoln Light Guards between the parts. The appearance of the President about 9 o'clock, bowing and smiling at the front of his box, which was liberally decorated, was the signal for a hearty outburst of applause from the people, and poor Lefebvre, who was just getting his fine work in on that saxophone solo, abruptly retired, for the band made a break from Savari's "Reverie" into "Hail to the Chief," without a moment's warning. Geo. Hartman entered soon after, the party leaving at 10 to call on "Louis XI."

This concert closed the ninth season of Mr. T. B. Fugli's "Star Course" of lectures and concerts (20 in all). Mr. Fugli has every reason to feel proud of the success he has achieved in this enterprise, the raised and brilliant entertainments he gives deserve and receive Philadelphia's best support. May 6th, he opens at the Academy, for one week, with Jarrett & Palmer's "Grand Uncle Tom's Cabin Organization"—being the said organization's "farewell" prior to their departure for Europe—(evidently this is the year of Exodus; everywhere the cry is "Eastward, ho!")

Herman Linde, the German elocutionist, begins to night, at the Academy of Fine Arts, a series of recitations, from memory, of Shakespeare's plays, himself sustaining all the characters.

Chas. Vivian, the lightning change artist, came to grief here last week through the non-payment of his hotel bill, and was placed in duress vile until friends came to the rescue. He tells a pathetic story, and has evidently been shabbily treated.

Henry Miller, of the Winter Garden, has gained a point over the Mayor, in compelling the latter to issue a license for the Garden.

Wm. P. H. Covert, the amateur actor and news dealer in the Continental Hotel, died last Thursday, aged 35. He was well known to the profession.

Thos. J. Hemphill, formerly connected with the Walnut and Arch St. Theaters, died on Tuesday.

It is reported that Delchanty and Hengler have leased the Museum for next year, intending to convert it into a variety theater.

We are to have a new Summer Garden at 8th and Vine Sts., "The Arcade," R. Gorman & Co., Managers.

Jesse Williams, leader of the Arch St. orchestra, sails for England May 11, to remain.

Monday next, 29th, the Strakosch Opera Troupe at the Academy for one week. Tony Pastor at the Walnut one week. "A Celebrated (Hard) Case," burlesque, at Simmons & Slocum's. Marie Wellesly at Fox's. John Thompson at the National. The French Comedy Company for a week only, at the Eleventh St. Opera House. No change at the Chestnut and Arch; and at the Museum, some more of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Isn't it about time that "Uncle Tom" was laid away forever? When can we say of him requiescat in pace? HOBART.

MANAGER McVICKER, of Chicago, after an interval of many years, felt that he would like to repeat an early attempt at playing "Falstaff." About half a dozen people came to see it. With characteristic pertinacity he put on the posters, the next day, the following announcement: "In consequence of the fact that nobody came to the theater last evening to witness the above performance, the manager takes pleasure in informing the public that it will be repeated to-night." And play it he did until he conquered an audience.

Amusing and instructive—MULLER'S Celebrated FLORESCOPE. Power, 100 diameters, 10,000 areas. Price, $1.00. The trade supplied. 135 Montgomery Street.

An extensive assortment of SUMMER STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of C. HERMANN, 402 Kearny Street and 310 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of last season, and superior articles for sale.

A correct understanding of book-keeping is an absolute necessity to any one in business. A visit to the PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE, on Post Street, opposite Union Square, convinced us that the method of tuition adopted and in daily practice by the teachers and students of that institution cannot be excelled; and that anyone who passes a course of instruction there and fails to be thoroughly conversant with the principles and practice of the science of accounts had better give up all idea of ever becoming a successful merchant.

Salutations

With us the usual modes of salutation consist in shaking hands, removing the hat, or curtsying, accompanying the action with the words, "How do you do?" or "How are you?" Hand-shaking takes its rise in the ancient custom of enemies seizing each other by the right or weapon hand to guard against treachery, while treating of a truce. The removal of the hat is a relic of the old custom of putting by the helmet when no danger was to be apprehended, as if one would say, "I dare stand unprotected in your presence." Women formerly knelt before men of rank to plead for mercy, and later to acknowledge inferiority. From this we get the curtsy.

The negro kings on the African coasts salute each other by snapping the middle finger three times.

In Oklaheite they rub noses, a custom common with many savages.

The inhabitants of Carimne, when they show particular attachment, open a vein and present their blood to their friend to drink.

The Japanese remove a slipper, and the natives of Arracun their sandals in the street and their stockings in the house.

Philippine Islanders take a person's hand or foot and rub it over their faces.

Laplanders smell of the persons they salute.

In the Straits of the Sound they raise the left foot of the person addressed, and pass it over the right leg and then to the face.

The usual words of salutation in Cairo are: "How do you sweat?" an absence of perspiration being, in that climate, an indication of fever.

The Dutch say, "May you eat a hearty dinner," or "How do you sail?"

Greenlanders use no salutations, believing all men equal, and none deserving of any especial mark of respect.

The Spaniards say, "How do you stand?" and the French, "How do you carry yourself?"

And most absurd of all, young ladies kiss, in public and in private, at Philharmonic rehearsals, and in the parlor, in church and at home; no place is too sacred, no street too public. But while osculatory refreshment indulged in by two of the fair sex seems sweetness wasted on the desert air, he is a hardened wretch who can witness the operation and not have his heart filled with the most wicked envy.—EX.

PULTRITATION.—"Phairest Phlora," billed an amorous youth, "phorever dismiss your phears, and phly with one whose pherver phancy is phixed on you alone. Phriends—phamily—phather—phorget them, and think only of the phelicity of the phuture! Phew phellows are so phatidious as your Pher-phund, so phleigh not phondness if you pheel it not. Phorego phroble, and answer phinally, 'Phlora.' "Oh, Pherdinand, you phool!" she cooed.

The leading establishment on the Pacific Coast for ALL STYLES OF ENGRAVING, will be found at 120 POST ST. The proprietors, Messrs. Geo. M. Wood & Co., are prepared to execute orders for dies, monograms, visiting cards, etc., at the most reasonable rates. A large assortment of fine stationery always on hand.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from mint employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying a visit.

A Mixture of Titles in Rhyme

From N. Y. Clipper

"The Lady of Lyons" went "On! on a Lark"
To flirt with "Clancarty," "Alone," "After Dark"
But in "The Swiss Cottage" she met with "Jane Eyre"
"Bamborough" "The Shaughraun" and "Robert Massare."
"Poli Pitter" "The Merchant of Venice" held tight, While "Henry the Fifth" squeezed "The Woman in White"
"Onr Gal" and "Our Bachelors," seeking for "Fun."
Sent "T. dles" for "Money" to "Danbey & Son"
"The Wife" made "An Awkward Arrival" right here,
And asked for "The Loan of a Lover" from "Leah."
Their "Love" they did "Imag" until they both heard
"The Kates" and "Mignon" pounced "Richard the Third."
"Camille" and "Hunchba" over-se with "The morae."
Grew weary of "Marriage" and longed for "De verse."
After "Chan pagne and Oysters," "Duke Turpin" was found Olaf "Under the Gauntlet," on "Deltan" Ground."
Of "Naval Engagements" "Tom Tringle" did talk
Till he met with "Musette" in "The Streets of New York."
"Jane Shore" had a "Dred" of "The Drunkard" she vowed,
Who with "Nick of the Woods" bowed "Wid Oslis" in the crowd.
Two Orphans" with "Selody's Daughter" did mix
And got "Michael Erie" in "A Regular Fix."
"Othello" and "Hamlet" for lodgins did wait

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land, to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

DRAMATIC RESUME
California Theater

A succession of stars will appear at the California, commencing on Monday week with Lawrence Barrett as 'Hamlet,' followed by Joe Jefferson, George Rignold, Wallack's Company in 'Diplomacy,' Crane and Robson in 'Our Bachelors,' and by the time this programme has been gone through, the management will doubtless have engaged a further succession of the best talent that money and energy can secure. It is announced that Mr. Frank Lawlor is associated with General Barton as lessee, and as that gentleman has an extensive business experience, and of most pleasant address, it augurs well for the success of the new regime. Mr. J. T. Maguire will assume the responsible duties of Treasurer, and Mr. Barton Hill will continue to direct theatrical business. We trust that General Barton will succeed in raising this theater out of the 'sleepy hollow' in which it has lately fallen.

Grand Opera House
Closed during the present week.

Bush Street Theater

The minstrel performance here continues to be well patronized. The vocal numbers are rendered with precision and good execution, showing excellent taste and careful rehearsal. New programme next week. Matinee to-morrow.

Emerson's Opera House

The Swedish Lady Vocalists this evening.

Baldwin's Theater

Dayton's beautiful scenery in 'The Danites,' has received more applause than anything ever before shown in this city. The Stockton Cadets have been invited by Manager Maguire to be present this evening and witness Joaquin Miller's California drama. The success of Miss Kitty Blanchard as 'Billy Piper,' and McKee Rankin as 'Sandy' is unqualified.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

THERE is no danger of a Chinese actor ever losing his cue.

OPERA BOUFFE is not "sacred" music, at least the Mayor of Boston says so.

THE audience at Baldwin's call out Dayton, the scenic artist, twice every night.

AN ingenious actor is busy perfecting a portable telephone to be pinned to his ear.

BEVERIDGE is the name of a Philadelphia lawyer. He is very popular there during the hot season.

MISS JEFFREYS-LEWIS and Miss Elsie Moore were in "naughty Pink Dominoes" last week, at Hooley's, Chicago.

"FOREST AND STREAM," is the title of a painting exhibited in a gallery in Boston, by Jefferson, the actor and artist.

"NOTHING will be worn this summer by the fair sex, except longitudinal striped hose," is the latest item of fashion gossip.

A NEW act was introduced in the Workingmen's drama on Wednesday night, clubs were trumps and Kearny was enched.

JOHN WILSON, of the California Theater Company, and family have gone to rusticate for a season and enjoy themselves in the country.

JOSH HART's realistic and startling play of "Chicago," now running at Haverly's, Chicago, will be produced at one of our leading theaters soon.

THANKS to Edison's latest invention, dramatic reporters will soon be able to use their pockets instead of their heads in carrying home a new play.

"BE TRUE MY LOVE," and the "Moonlight Schottische," are the latest contributions to musical literature issued from the house of Kohler & Chase.

EDWIN F. THORNE and wife (Jennie Murdoch), late of the Grand, are at the Park Theater, New York, supporting James Lewis in "The Big Bonanza."

THE McDowell sisters, Fannie and Kate, formerly of the Evangeline Combination are visiting their home in Indianapolis, preparatory to visiting California.

MISS BLANCHE CORRELLI of the Troubadours, has been confined to her room the past few days by severe indisposition. Her place in the Troubadours has been temporarily filled by Miss Helen Grayson, a young actress of this city.

"It never rains but it pours," has been illustrated this week in Virginia City. Forepaugh's Circus, the Union Square Company, from Baldwin's, and the Rice Evangeline troupe from the Grand Opera House, have all been candidates for the silver dollars of the Virginians.

IN the large store under office of Tax Footlight there is now on exhibition one of the finest collections of tropical plants ever seen in this city. Those who wish to get some very choice specimens of the rarest sorts of flowering plants, ornamental shrubs and tree ferns, suitable for garden or conservatory will find them offered for sale to-day at 11 o'clock, at 328 Sansome street, corner Sacramento.

"A CELEBRATED CASE" was played in Philadelphia with Charley Thorne as 'Jean Renaud,' and the following support: Ida Vernon, Maud Harrison, Fanny Morant, Matt Lingham, and J. B. Polk, the latter two formerly of the Grand, of this city. A private correspondent there, who witnessed the play during its run at Baldwin's, gives Jas. O'Neill's 'Renaud' the preference, as the most artistic performance.

GEORGE, the Count Joannes, in a letter to a New York paper describing a visit to Mount Vernon, says that when he entered the chamber in which Washington died he "sat down in the old arm-chair and wept—proud of my tears." It is a little late, perhaps, to cry about Washington's removal to a better world; but all genuine emotion deserves respect. The Count also mentions that when he gazed into the sepulchre and remarked: "Dead!" echo promptly responded "Dead!" This seems so singular under the circumstances, that the facts may be regarded as warranting a Congressional investigation. The Count evidently believed that echo would make a remark of some less distressing nature.—Phila. Evening Bulletin.

THE Art correspondent of the Phila. Evening Bulletin, writes from Rome, under date April 13th, as follows: "The German Exposition, now open at the Palazzo Caffarelli, Campidoglio Hill, is of use to show the difference between respectable mediocrity and genius. With the exception of a beautiful Egyptian picture of the Pyramids by Mr. Welsch, an artist of renown, the other pictures are of the dead-end level—respectable wall decorations for painfully genteel parlors, nothing more. The flame of le sacre feu burns on the summit of Monte Pincio, undoubtedly; not a spark of the sacred fire, however, is to be detected on the Capitoline Hill; but beauty and grace and loveliness seem to have deserted the Altar of Genius."

OF Mrs. Billings' debut in St. Louis, the St. Louis Republic says: "Mrs. Helen Ames Billings, who is known only to a few of our music-loving people, sang the air in Ambrose Thomas' 'Hamlet,' which is entitled 'The Mad Scene.' Miss Neilson made this difficult air and scene so famous both by her acting and vocalization, that it is certainly an ambitious undertaking for any lesser luminary in the musical firmament. But Mrs. Billings' singing was fairly an equal surprise and delight. Unaided by any of the scenic accessories of the play, she gave this weird and thrilling composition with such vivid appreciation of the composer's thoughts, such tenderness, beauty, and dramatic power, that all hearts were touched. As an encore she sang an English song, 'Esmeralda.'"

Opera in Philadelphia

What promises to be a brilliant, though brief, season of grand Italian opera was inaugurated, last evening, at the Academy of Music, by the Strakosch Italian Company. The house was crowded by a large and fashionable audience—the finest one that has been seen at the Academy since the close of Lent. The opera was "Mignon," and the performance was an unusually good one, the cast including Mlle. Roze, as 'Mignon,' Miss Kellogg, as 'Falina,' and Miss Cary as 'Frederico.' The 'Mignon' of Mlle. Roze was a pronounced success, the artiste singing the score with fine effect, and acting with great dramatic fervor. This prima donna is earnest in everything she does, and there is a true feeling displayed in her acting which is rarely seen now-a-days on the operatic stage. In the fourth act, last evening, particularly, Mlle. Roze gave evidence of the possession of this gift, and the audience was not slow in appreciating it, there being a liberal amount of applause to reward her for her effort.

MISS Kellogg, of course, sang the brilliant music of the part of 'Felina' delightfully, and the florid 'Polonaise' was, as usual, enthusiastically encored. Miss Cary made a dashing 'Frederico,' and her singing was excellent. Mr. Geo. A. Conly was never in better voice, but his acting was too constrained. Mr. Tom Karl and Mr. Gottschalk are to be credited with fine performances, while the contrary is to be said of the chorus. This evening Verdi's great work, 'Aida,' will be presented, and will serve to introduce to the Philadelphia public the new tenor, Signor Frapoli. On Saturday evening Mr. S. Behrens, the musical conductor of the company, will receive a benefit, and an unusually strong programme has been arranged for the occasion.—Phila. Evening Bulletin, April 30th.

M. RENAN, who is likely to succeed M. Claude Bernard at the French Academy, is reported to be engaged on a continuation of Shakespeare's 'Tempest,' in which Prospero, Caliban and Ariel are the chief actors.—Ex.

MR. CHAS. READE is announced to be adapting an entirely original play from 'Andria,' which is the same source from which Tom Taylor and Paul Merritt took 'A Brave Wife,' the new piece for the Olympic.—Ex.

Amusing and Instructive—MULLER'S Celebrated FLORESCOPE. Power, 100 diameters, or 10,000 areas. Price, $1.09. The trade supplied. 135 Montgomery Street.

A correct understanding of book-keeping is an absolute necessity to any one in business. A visit to the PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE, on Post Street, opposite Union Square, convinced me that the method of tuition adopted and in daily practice by the teachers and students of that institution cannot be excelled, and that anyone who passes a course of instruction there and fails to be thoroughly conversant with the principles and practice of the science of accounts had better give up all idea of ever becoming a successful merchant.

A Short Lecture on Love

From time immemorial love has been the theme of all novels, romances, and many other writings. No matter how the story might be otherwise arranged, through all its endless combinations there has run on thread—that of love; and almost always there has been one consummation—that of marriage. Bow Bells, itself—your peerless and beautiful queen—is framed on this model, and its every story has for its burden—love!

Now, why is it that it is ever the theme; that it so interests; that it will bear such endless repetition; that it never tires; and this all through epic, song, story, drama, and the romantic tale? Is it because of the intrinsic nobleness of the passion itself—is it from a ruling bias in our nature towards that passion—is it because of the ascending degree of the story, and its climax, as being a writing of the most artistic kind—or is it because of the sensibility of fair readers, especially, and that they are made up in a great degree of affection? This were a most interesting analysis, and the abundance of such writing and reading makes it also a most important one. I think its main points have here been hinted at; perhaps they all come in play in their several degrees. It is certain that this passion affords a ground for fine and skillful writing; that it excites the curiosity; that it engages the heart. Hence it has always lived; hence it always will live; for every such tale gives a little epitome of the life of man.

We then certainly cannot call such writing unnatural. Nor need it, of necessity, be dangerous. It is true that too fiery and immoral writers may kindle a flame that may destroy, and a taste that will corrupt. It is no less true that the imagination of the reader, his or her not unspotted heart, may taint and turn to death the intense, yet pure and lofty words of Milton, Keats, Swinburne, and other masters of Love's language and of love. Let writers consider, and take heed how they write; and let readers guard their hearts and their thoughts when they read.

The passion itself, of love, when pure, is most noble, and most worthy of the highest descriptive art. This it is that is the burden of God's message to man; of His Book; of the visit of our Savior to the earth; of His ever blessed and glorious gospel. Here is Love's climax; here its intensest flame; here its deepest and its purest story; here are none of its dangers, and all of its sweets. Touched by so pure a flame, following so divine a light, no writer can or reader can go astray.—Ex.

YOUNG ladies in Boston are cultivating a new industry. They buy fine, plain thread hose for $1 a pair, have them stamped, and embroider them with blue, pink, or cardinal silk, until they look as if they had cost $10 a pair. This is what is called adding to the value of raw material. Then they pay $12 for a pair of strapped shoes, to display the embroidery.—Ex.

MME. MARIE ROZE took the gold medal for both singing and acting at the Imperial Conservatoire, Paris. She was the only prima donna who succeeded in winning the gold medal for acting, and to do this she had to compete with the leading artists of the dramatic profession.—Ex.

For the ladies of San Francisco, MME. CONSTANT has just imported a large assortment of FRENCH PATTERN BONNETS of the latest Parisian Summer fashions. No other Millinery establishment on the Pacific Coast have direct consignments of French Pattern Bonnets made them. Mme. Constant, 314 Sutter Street, is the only importer.

Go to the "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVE STORE, No. 3 Kearny Street (entrance on Geary) and select your Gloves.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from mini employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

Ode to an Oyster

"Oh! gentle mollusk,
How sweet after dusk
With the girl that you love
To be gazing above
At Venus' phases
And Mars as he blazes
In your arm she reclines
And pensively pines,
While a moonbeam just tips
Her sweet, peachy lips,
And there lingers a mist
Of soft anarchy
'Round the spot you have kissed
Oh! who would destroy
Such loving employ,
And capsize Cupid's boy
Full-freighted with joy,
With no grain of amoy
Or drachm of alloy,
Either measured by Troy,
Or avoirdupois,
As the widowers so cry
'Oh! tell me, my boy,
In that sweet bol and bol
Shall we have oyster pie?'"
—Graphic

THE oddest compliment we ever heard of being paid at a city dinner was made, says the London Week, not by a citizen, but by a gentleman who ought to have been used to the sound of his own voice—the late Lord St. Leonards. While Lord Chancellor, he was dining with a city company, and in due course rose to respond to the toast of his health. Wishing to be particularly affable, and to show that he was not "above his company," he began his speech by remarking, in a stentorian voice, "Gentlemen, I am sprung like yourselves, from the dregs of the people."—Ex.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.:

Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg
Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sym-

No Housekeeper Should be Without It!

The best thing known for washing Flannels, superior to anything for cleaning Silk and Velvet, the most cleansing for the body, for healing eruptions of the skin, when used as a shampoo, will cleanse the scalp and prevent the hair from falling out; when mixed with starch is used for glazing shirts and other linens. By washing shelves or cupboards with this solution, ants
and cockroaches and other insects will be driven away. Borax is the best thing known for curing

DRAMATIC RESUME

The chief dramatic event of the present week was the production of "The Danites" at Baldwin's. On account of its being, we might say, of local parentage, a good deal of interest had preceded it, and the opening night was hailed with delight by lovers of theatrical novelty. The cast of characters was all that the most exacting author could desire, and the scenery and stage mounting could not have been better—and probably would not have been one-half as good—if Joaquin Miller in person had supervised the business.

The production of "The Danites" occurred at a most fortunate time for the management at Baldwin's; as the two other principal theaters, the Grand Opera House and California, have been closed during the week.

Miss Kitty Blanchard and McKee Rankin at once established themselves in public favor. It would be difficult to find others to fill the roles they assume, to do equal justice to the apparent conception of the author. The eyes of Kitty Blanchard alone express the hopeless love of "Nancy Williams" for "Sandy," and the terror of sudden and violent death at the hands of the pursuing Mormon fiends in human form, is most powerfully portrayed.

The picture of mining life has been overdrawn by Miller, but not greater than what poetic license may allow. The introduction of a schoolmistress in a mountain camp of rough men, where there are no children, occurs to us to be something unusual, but it serves to give variety to the plot, and is used by the author to develop one of the chief features in the drama. The company chosen to assist McKee Rankin and Kitty Blanchard in the production of "The Danites" was selected with most excellent judgment. As the "Judge," C. B. Bishop is simply immense, and in their respective characters the others are equally good.

Dayton, the scenic artist, has succeeded admirably in his illustrations; much of the marked success of the drama may be attributed to the magnificent and realistic views shown on the drops of the first, third and fifth acts. No better pictures of the mountainous mining region of California have ever been produced on any stage. Dayton has been called out twice every night to bow his acknowledgements, and did he not possess that sure sign of talent—modesty—he would have been before the public long ago. A perfect gem of a landscape of his, introduced in "A Celebrated Case," was much admired, yet it seemed never to occur to an audience, during the long run of that piece, to express their admiration by calling out the painter. To a true artist fame is dearer than gold, and the many hours of labor bestowed in the conception and execution of a scene that reaches the heart of an audience through its eyes, are all paid for and forgotten in the moment of one earnest round of applause. So, fair ladies of esthetic taste and lovers of art, in future spare not your hands in making happy the deserving artist.

The Haverly Minstrels, at the Bush Street Theater, have deservedly enjoyed a good week's business. Unlike the majority of burnt cork sketches, the wit and humor of this company are quite free from all broad allusions, and families will find here one of the best entertainments of the kind ever offered within the walls of a theater. The performance is of a class impossible to do justice to in words, it requires to be seen and heard to be enjoyed. Harry Richmond's original sketch, entitled "Epitaphs," which is the present finale, will be, by special request, continued next week; also, the most laughable burlesque of "Custodians of the Peace."

At Emerson's Opera House the really good lady vocalists from Sweden, have been unfortunate in not being in the hands of better management. The heading of their announcement was sufficient to prejudice the public against them. The names of Jenny Lind and Christine Nilsson being displayed in a manner to mislead.

The Grand Opera House and California have been closed during the week. Messrs. Barton and Lawlor have succeeded Mr. John McCullough as lessees of the latter, which will be re-opened on May 20th, with Lawrence Barrett as "Hamlet," and under the energetic management of the new proprietors, we may expect soon to see it regain its lost popularity.

On Wednesday, at the Metropolitan Temple, Professor Herold was the recipient of a benefit. The chief selections of former concerts were rendered in the usual excellent style of the Herold Orchestra. The attendance was not large, but quite appreciative.

Rehearsals for the May Festival continue, and the concert promises to be the great musical event of the season.

An entertainment will be given at Horticultural Hall, on Monday evening, by the Veteran Odd Fellows.

THE pupils of Herr Karl Formes gave a musical recitation at his residence, 222 Turk Street, last evening.

FOR the transposition of our State ("Niflorica") at Niblo's, the author was punished by the loss of $3,500.

A CONCERT for the benefit of the organ fund will be given to-morrow evening at the First Unitarian Church.

THE Dramatic and Musical Mirror has the unusual merit of giving credit for its clippings from THE FOOTLIGHT.

ONE of the Bohemians on the staff of the New York Times is a son of John T. Raymond, and is reported a clever writer.

MR. WILDER PEASE, a young gentleman of this city, possessing a remarkably fine tenor voice, will sing in the first part in Haverly's Minstrels, Monday night.

THE wife of Frapoli, the tenor of the Strakosch troupe, is one of the best contralto singers in the United States. Her lower notes are pure and of great volume.

OUR Oakland correspondent writes that "Josh Whitecomb" carried the town by storm, the seats and standing room for the three performances being all sold before the doors were opened.

THE St. Louis Globe-Democrat speaks thus in praise of Mrs. H. A. Billings, the soprano engaged for the May Festival:—"Her rendition of the hymn, 'I know that my Redeemer Liveth,' and the airs 'With Plaintive Voice' and 'Let the Bright Seraphim,' were exceedingly fine and charming."

BILLINGS & BARROWS intend leasing the Portland Theater for six months. These gentlemen have done remarkably well with the "Uncle Tom" party they took out from here, but have now contracted the managerial fever. The company will leave Wednesday morning and Miss Nellie Holbrook goes out with them.

It is said that $150 per week is the amount of the salary that Manager Rice, of the "Evangeline" party, has agreed to pay Alice Harrison, the Californian favorite. Her present contract expires in June, when she will at once join Rice's forces. Miss Harrison will be a decided acquisition to the troupe.—Phila. Mirror.

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS

The most absorbing topic of local interest is the so-called reform movement of the Workingmen. Carried out under the guidance of law, we heartily approve of a reformation in the working of our political system, and of restrictive measures being taken regarding the further increase of our Mongolian invaders. The present Kearny movement does not, however, appear to us to be able to accomplish that object, and the respectable leaders of the Workingmen's party appear to have themselves at last arrived at that conclusion. At a meeting in Horticultural Hall, on Wednesday evening, Kearny was refused admission, and with his clansmen he adjourned to the corner of Post and Stockton Streets, and held an open air convention. After the streets had for some time been obstructed by them, the police charged into the crowd with their clubs and dispersed it. The protection of persons and property is one of the chief attributes of law, and the sooner the majesty of law is established in San Francisco in a manner to satisfy capitalists that their investments in real property are secure against anything short of an earthquake, the sooner business will get back to its old channel.

We were reminded of the story of a convict breaking into jail, by noticing the appointment of "Sunrise" Harris to a position on the police force of this city. To the credit of the Commissioners, however, as soon as they knew that Frank Farrell was an alias of the mate of the Sunrise, the name was ordered erased from the payroll of the police force.

Hong He Sie and 549 of his countrymen arrived on the Gracie on Wednesday, and they report that the balance of their countrymen are all coming. "This glorious climate of California" agrees with Chinamen. In a few years more, at their present rate of increase, they will have possession of the best portion of this city, and as Judge Sawyer has decided that they are not eligible for citizenship, some reformer will probably then raise a cry of the iniquity of taxation without representation.

A movement is in progress to establish accommodation for sea bathers at North Beach on a grand and extensive scale. Plans of the contemplated structure are shown in some of our shop-windows.

The picnic season is now fairly inaugurated, and the streets leading to the ferry-boats are variegated with lunch baskets and calico dresses every Sunday morning.

Another exhibition of the "manly art" was given last night at the Hall of the Y. M. C. Association, this will probably be reported in religious papers under the heading of "muscular christianity"—the world moves.

THE Paris Geographical Society will send to the Exhibition a map of Africa 12 feet square, on which are traced the routes of 191 explorers, beginning with Mayeur, who traversed Madagascar in 1774, and ending with Mr. Stanley. Forty-two of the explorers are Frenchmen.

HEADLIGHT'S WEEKLY LETTER

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—As the Grand Opera House and California Theater have both been closed during the week there is nothing to report from that quarter, unless it be the change in management made in the latter, about which your readers have already been advised.

At Baldwin's McKee Rankin and wife (Miss Kitty Blanchard) have presented "The Danites" in most admirable style and succeeded in drawing fashionable houses. The play is one of considerable interest, giving us a good insight of life in the early days of California, when "billed shirts" were only seen on rare occasions. Miss Annie Pixley's acting of the "school-marm" was a pleasing performance and added much to the success of the play. Mr. Rankin as "Sandy," presented the uncut but true-hearted lover in a manly sort of way, without the sickly sentimentality usually attached to such characters, and as for Miss Kitty Blanchard as "Billy Piper"—well, she was "Billy Piper" and nothing else. The rest of the characters were all well maintained, without calling for any special comment.

At the Grand Opera House everything looks dark and gloomy—that is to say, from the outside—but inside the busy carpenter's hammer is heard all day long, making some necessary alterations prior to its re-opening, which I am informed will take place within a few weeks, as Manager Kennedy is now negotiating with a big Eastern attraction, with which he intends to build up the fortunes of this house. It is sincerely to be hoped that he may be right in his conjectures, as there is no harder working manager than Mr. Kennedy in this city. In September next we are promised a season of grand opera at this house, probably with Kellogg, who was in ecstasies with the house when she was out here—in fact, so much so that she preferred it to any other theater in the United States. Sirakosch most likely will also bring Anna Louise Cary along, as the unpleasantness (pretended or otherwise) between those ladies gives sufficient scope for newspaper items without costing a cent to the great maestro. "Business you know, my boy, business!"

At the Bush Street Theater, the same old story—crowded houses—which is, as the Frenchman calls it, "very pleasant" to Manager Locke and Mr. Haverly, and deservedly so, for the company is a good one in every respect, and the entertainment is a good one throughout.

The Swedish Lady Quartet have warbled some of their choicest songs at Emerson's Opera House, and although their singing is not of the very highest order, it has the happy faculty of pleasing, which is art itself.

This, dear Footlight, is all the news in theatrical circles, but when there is anything new or startling, I shall keep you posted.

HEADLIGHT.

A Musician's Caprice

The following is told of Paganini. An artist of no mean note in his prime was at the date of our story, some forty years ago, in great poverty, and deterred upon a concert to raise funds. Most of the great performers of the time—Paganini, Malibran, Blasis, Crivini, and Brabum—commiserating her low condition, willingly offered their services, but Paganini, known as the most voracious of mankind, gloomily refused to abate one penny of the sum he had covenanted to receive. This sum was twenty-five guineas, and for a single performance a large one at that day. A shrewd friend said to the lady: "Take your boy with you. Go to Paganini, perhaps that will soften him a little." The boy was a small, chubby specimen of humanity, and pilloried in huge frilled collar, duly washed combed, and made spruce, he was led to the "Old Ship" at Brighton where the scene of the incident, where Paganini was staying. They were ushered into the presence of the great violinist, who was gnawing a large and terribly underdone mutton chop. The mother, alluding so far as she delicately could to her large family and her small means, proceeded to count out sovereign by sovereign and shilling by shilling the fee insisted upon. The old man, with his grani, angular form, his black elf locks falling in weird confusion over his neck and shoulders, his cadaverous face and shaggy brows, his long, bony hands, the veins standing out like cordage, his amazingly large feet, and his neck scraggy, corrugated and disproportionately long, sat quietly and watched the operation. At last he roused his brows, and with spasmodic avidity swept the pile toward him. It was only five and twenty guineas. Of what moment would so paltry a sum have been to him who was then making, they said, fifteen thousand a year? When he had pocketed the money he concluded the consumption of his chop, drained a large cupful of black coffee, and wiped his lips on the table cloth. "A very nice little boy," he was good enough to say, "but times are hard and there is no merriment in the world. No never, no monish at all." The lady rose to depart. "Stop, little boy," he said, and beckoning the child with his skinny fingers, he continued, "Take this, it will buy you a cake." He thrust a crumpled piece of paper into the little one's hand and rushed into his bed-room. He had given a bank note for fifty pounds.—Dramatic and Musical Mirror.

It is human to doubt. Display a sign with the inscription, "Beware of paint," and nine men out of ten will draw their forefingers across the newly-painted surface to see if the sign is not merely "an invention of the enemy." The tenth man never learned to read.

A correct understanding of book keeping is an absolute necessity to any one in business. A visit to the PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE, on Post Street, opposite Union Square, convinces one that the method of tuition adopted and in daily practice by the teachers and students of that institution cannot be excelled, and that anyone who passes a course of instruction there and fails to be thoroughly conversant with the principles and practice of the science of accountancy had better give up all idea of ever becoming a successful merchant.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Race's Farm on Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.:
Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Box office will be open on Thursday for sale of reserved seats for "Hamlet." "Richelieu," "Rosendale," "Julius Caesar," "Merchant of Venice," and "David Garrick," will follow in succession during the week.

Grand Opera House

Closed during the present week.

Bush Street Theater

There are so many good songs and laughable sketches encored nightly since the Haverly Minstrels have taken possession of this place of amusement, that the manager has established a rule to permit of one encore only for each piece. Were the performers allowed to respond to the repeated calls of the audience, not more than half of the programme would be gone through with at the usual hour of leaving.

The vocal selections for the first part are all new for this evening. The "Custodians of the Peace" will be retained by general request, and the original and very funny sketch of "Epitaphs," which is full of dry wit, some of the poetic effusions being the very essence of confused nonsense "as it were."

Emerson's Opera House

The Swedish Lady Quartet will sing in English, Swedish and German this evening.

Baldwin's Theater

"The Danites" begins its second week with every prospect of a continuance of success. The price of admission to the balcony has been placed at 75 cents, reserved seats 25 cents extra, matinee prices to all parts of the house 50 cents, reserved seats 25 cents extra.

At Wallack's New York, "Diplomacy" is a big success. Rose Cogan and W. J. Montague are in the cast.

"DON'T TEASE ME" schottische has just been issued by the California Music Publishing Company, from the press of Geo. W. Hagana.

REPORTERS who ascend in balloons from Woodward's Gardens in future, had better learn to swim before they start. In crossing the Bay after all the ballast has been thrown out, their turn comes next.

It is reported that John McCullough has cleared $26,000 during the present season. It is reported that a few of the late members of the California theatre company wish to interview him anent unpaid salary account.

The Chicago Times, speaking of Mrs. H. A. Billings, who will appear at the May Festival, says that she is possessed of a rich soprano, which has been trained and developed by thorough and severe culture. Could she have known one tithe of the pleasure she gave, as in her artistic rendering of "With Verdure Clad," she brought picture after picture into the minds of her listeners, she would have felt repaid for all her devotion to her exacting art.

From an advertisement in the N. Y. Dramatic News "Marie Roze's private life has been most romantic. She has, perhaps, received more offers of marriage than any other artiste on the stage. Men in all positions of life, from the aristocrat to the merchant, have placed their hearts and their fortunes at her feet. In Brussels, Paris and London she has been inundated with written offers of marriage, but her unconquerable attachment to art led her to reject all addresses, until she married, in June 1874, Mr. Jules Perkins, of Boston, one of the greatest artists America ever produced. The union, which was the result of love and esteem, was but of brief duration, and six months after their marriage, Jules Perkins died at Manchester, after a few days' illness. Marie Roze is now the wife of Mr. Henry Mapleson, Jr., of Her Majesty's Opera, London."

In a recent interview with a reporter of the St. Louis Evening Post, Madame Modjeska thus gave her opinion of the European and American stage: "The American artistes are fine actors," said Modjeska "but the fault here is that the whole cast is not even; one star is considered sufficient. Now in Germany and France more attention is devoted to the minor parts, and every subordinate role is taken by a competent actor." "What do you think of the German and French schools?" was the next query. "I don't believe in schools; there is no progress in clinging to traditions; every great artist must conceive her character herself. Now, at the Theater Francaise, in Moliere's plays, they still follow tradition, and the result is sometimes ludicrous. The uniform motions and gestures are without animation and life. I think," continued Modjeska, "that in tragedy the Germans are unexcelled, and the French in comedy—it is in accordance with the emotional temperament of each people. Mme. Walthers, in Vienna, is the greatest German actress now living. Clara Ziegler was what you call a mammoth actress. There was something superhuman in her impersonations. Her Brunhilde for instance, in the 'Nibelungen.'"

The Ancient Drama

In the May number of Wide Awake, Mrs. Lillie thus interestingly discourses upon the earlier kind of plays: "Before the invention of printing, few people of the lower classes could read; and therefore when, in a little town, it was announced that a representation of certain parts of scripture history would be given, you can imagine how eagerly the people flocked to see it. These representations were known by different names—'mysteries,' 'miracle plays,' 'moralities,' etc.—and frequently clergymen themselves took part. Sometimes a herald or crier would go through the town giving notice when and where and how the performance was to take place; if it rained, they waited till the next fine day, for the play was usually given in the open air, a sort of platform being erected for the players, who were frequently obliged, on coming before the audience, to explain who they were; for of course, at that early day, there could be no theatrical scenery, or what are now known as 'stage accessories' to help them. Although it may seem, now, that an audience must have been rather dull if it could be amused by such performances, the spectators in those times were in reality very quick-witted, and the fact of so much being left to the imagination may have sharpened their minds. Fancy yourself sitting on one of those rough benches in a village street crowded with people of Henry VII's day. All eyes are eagerly strained towards the little platform; the figure of an old man appears; there is so little in dress or manner to indicate who he is, that he himself, or the person stationed just below for that purpose, has to announce that he is Moses or Pharaoh or Herod as the case may be. He goes through certain performances, the other characters joining in as they are needed to tell his story. Meanwhile the spectator has to use all his mind to rouse his imagination to fill up the picture. Certain wooden figures were always kept by the performers in these 'mysteries,' as well as in the pageants, and played an important part in the spectacle. It took very little to produce an effect upon those willing audiences; for example, a huge wooden monster with an enormous mouth signified hell; and a favorite character in these early performances, whether play or pageant, was 'the devil,' who was often represented piling up fire in the mouth of the monster; and I have just been looking at a curious old account book which records the expenses of a certain pageant; and among other items, 'twelve shillings paid to the devil for keeping up hell-fire.' The inn-yards, both in London and the country, were the usual places for these performances, being well adapted for the purpose; for the double rows of galleries of the inn formed on three sides a sort of balcony for the more exclusive spectators, while the humbler classes occupied rough benches in the paved court below, at one end of which a rude platform was erected, curtains were hung about it, and all was ready for the play with little trouble or expense. Young boys followed the players and joined their companies to perform the female parts in the drama, for no women appeared upon the stage in England until a century later. About the middle of Queen Elizabeth's reign the first theater was erected, at Blackfriars, in the neighborhood of an old monastery from which it took its name. The cheaper seats were not at first covered by a roof, so that the people who sat in them were sometimes drenched with rain while witnessing a performance. The fine gentlemen of the court and the rich tradespeople were given seats upon the stage, or rushes and mats to lounge upon."

When Hargraves, the London (Ont.) hairdresser, sentenced to three years' imprisonment for cruelty to his child-apprentice, was about to be removed to the penitentiary, he offered a man $400 to become his substitute, and the latter was willing if the law had allowed it.—Ex.

PARIS Charivari has a sketch of a prisoner appearing before the Correctional Court. "President," says the convicted man, "you first said you would give me three months, and now you make it six." Artists often enjoy as brief a popularity as other people. Pictures by Fuseli, some of them eight feet by ten, including such works as his "Lady Macbeth," "Midsummer Night's Dream," and "Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden," have just been sold at a London picture sale at from $21 to $63.

Among the Italian peasantry the women are mentally superior to the men. They are robust and finely formed, with a complexion of rose-tinted olive, and dazzling white teeth. The best artists' models come from the Italian peasant women.

In their love-making, Mexicans are innocent of any suspicion of the impropriety of public demonstrations. You see couples walking through the crowded plaza with their arms around each other's necks, totally oblivious of their surroundings. Except among foreigners, such exhibitions excite no comment.

THE late Countess Dachselt left an important legacy to the Louvre, in the shape of the five most important pictures of her collection, as follows: "La Source" and "L'Edipe," by Ingres; "A Virgin and Saints, with Donor," by Memling, and two finely painted exterior wings of an altar piece, by Antonio Moro.

GEORGE FRANCIS TRIN, it is announced, intends to visit Pennsylvania towns on a lecture tour. It may be remembered that only a week ago this paper said Trin was the most able and eloquent orator now living. He is a gentleman whom it is a pleasure to know, and his lectures elevate and instruct, and—and we would lie more about him if we were positive he intended to visit Norristown.—Norristown Herald.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from mint employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

A correct understanding of Book-keeping is an absolute necessity to any one in business. A visit to the PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE, on Post Street, opposite Union Square, convinced me that the method of tuition adopted and in daily practice by the teachers and students of that institution cannot be excelled, and that any one who passes a course of instruction there and fails to be thoroughly conversant with the principles and practice of the science of accounts had better give up all idea of ever becoming a successful merchant.

Mario

The report that Mario, the singer, was now an old man, very poor, is not correct. M. Perivier, of the Paris Figaro, was in Rome during the month of January last, and then saw Mario, whom he describes as a fine old man, with long white beard, whose seventy odd years have in no way lessened his gaiety and vivacity. His conversation still sparkles with wit, and is crowded with reminiscences of London, Paris, St. Petersburg and Naples, the scenes of his greatest triumphs. In Rome he is a general favorite, and everybody seeks to get him into chat and listen to his anecdotes of his celebrated contemporaries. To fill up his leisure time and amuse himself he has become an antiquary, and has all the curious information which old Rome suggests at the tips of his fingers. "If any asks about me," he said to M. Perivier, on parting, "you can tell them that you have left Mario on the ruins of Rome, as my old ancestor, Marius, was seen on the ruins of Carthage." He is, in fact, proprietor of a very good house in the Corso; and at the time of the funeral of the late King, when some one proposed to him to let the eleven windows of his facade at the price of 1,000*fr.* each, he refused, and said he preferred seeing them occupied by his friends.—Ex.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 100 PAPERS, generally known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 100 to send
the order direct to the publisher of each paper.
An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines
agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $10—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print
and distribute the same number through so many sections. For list of papers and further information call on or address

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.:

Gentlemen: The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

This house is at present in the hands of painters and upholsterers, getting ready for the opening next Monday.

Grand Opera House

Bush Street Theater

The programme given here last night was quite as good as any that has lately made the Haverly Minstrels so popular. Mr. Wilder Pease, the vocal debutant, was well received, and after a little better acquaintance with the stage he will be able to do himself more justice. "Epitaphs," that most funny afterpiece, is continued during this week.

Emerson's Opera House

The Swedish Lady Vocalists at this house are drawing better audiences than during last week. The majority of visitors are Scandinavians, who go to hear their National melodies. The singing of the quartet is excellent.

Baldwin's Theater

In the race for public favor and patronage this theater is at present a long way ahead. The reduction of the balcony prices will likewise tend to its being able to retain the start it has now got. The new management of the California will require to bring all their energy in the field to be able to regain the position so long held, as the leading theater of the Pacific. For the present the Grand Opera House seems to have retired from the contest. "The Danites" at Baldwin's continues to all the house. Preparations are being made for the production of the "Octoroon," which will be next in order.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

BIGOT HENON has gone to Paris.

MANAGER Haverly departs Eastward tomorrow, A. M.

DUMAS wants to inflict "Joseph Balsamo" upon American managers.

ALICE HARRISON appears in "Evangeline" July 1st, at $150 per week.

MANAGER J. B. Hill is making barrels of money out of "Josh Whitcomb."

A NEW baby named William Shakespeare lately made its appearance in Bridgeport.

JOHN BROUGHAM is in receipt of $4.00 per day from the investment of the proceeds of his benefit.

MISS ALICE KINGSBURY, with a select company, will perform at Dietz' Hall, Oakland, on Friday and Saturday.

MAUD GRANGER and Montague have been engaged for the California during the coming season of "Diplomacy."

EXTENSIVE preparations are being made at the Grand Opera House for the production of "Esther" on Sunday. Box office now open.

SONNET to Modjeska, in Polish: "Przez tru wyz tely widzing ze sztuka ma ani grauze ani mety ani uiezow" etc.—No more z's in our z box.

"Bass, the English brewer, is sparking a New York belle." We trust our readers will give us due credit for our forbearance from punning on this.

THE "Nick of the Woods" harness worn by Joe Proctor, has been in use for the past thirty years. "Kip van Winkle" is discounted by ten years.

AN Eastern paragrapher makes the following eugenerous second hand remark: "Just think of it. Every pretty girl has been some other fellow's sweetheart!"

EXCURSION tickets from New York to Paris and back, good for one year, costs £150 or $180, according to accommodation. These rates are via the Indian line to Liverpool.

HAS there ever been a season, within the memory of the oldest inhabitant, when the prettiest girl in Paris was not an American? It seems to us that there are a few annual items that would pay to have electrotyped.

TRADE sent to the coroners by the Parisian cabmen is not brisk at present. Eight subjects run over a day is the present average. When the Exposition gets fairly under way, and plenty of slow-gaited visitors on the track, it is expected that business then will be quite lively.

THE Brunswick Telegraph speaks thus of Mr. W. H. Fessenden, one of the soloists engaged for the May Festival: "Mr. Fessenden was, as he always is, modest, unassuming, and capable of rendering to its fullest extent every requisite of the numbers assigned to him, and that, too, with the purest and yet full voice of any tenor now available."

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

PHILADELPHIA, May 1, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—The one week engagement of the Strakosch Opera Troupe at the Academy, terminates to-night. "Mignon," with the three graces, Kellogg, Cary, and Marie Roze in the cast, was given on Monday, to the largest house of the week. "Aida," "Trovatore," "Mignon," "Martha" and "Faust," comprised the repertoire but the attendance was only fair, owing greatly to the miserable, disheartening weather—rain and fog one half the week, and simply red-hot the other. I don't wonder people didn't care about the opera. On Tuesday night "Aida" was sung before an audience that made up in enthusiasm what it lacked in numbers—and they certainly had good reason to be satisfied—Miss Kellogg as "Aida," and Miss Cary as "Amneris" were in excellent voice, the minor parts were rendered—chorus and orchestra, both good, and scenery appropriate, besides, Sig. Frapoli, the new tenor, made his first appearance here as "Radames." Frapoli, of whom so much was expected, has occasioned a keen feeling of disappointment, the press opinions are very unfavorable, the sum of which amounts to just this, that he is a good singer with a bad voice, but for all that his correct singing, well trained and judiciously used voice, dramatic ability, and fine stage presence have commanded respect, if nothing more, and Signor Frapoli, should he appear again, may make himself a favorite in spite of natural disadvantages. To-night Behrens takes a benefit, the entire company appearing, together with Miss Annie Montague and Mrs. Zella Seguin. The programme is immense, acts first of "Traviata," fourth of "Rigoletto," overture to "Paul et Virginia," acts second of "Un Ballo," and fourth of "Hugenots," closing with grand chorus the "Star Spangled Banner," Hurrah!

But at the theaters business has been first rate, there is no cessation of attendance at the Chestnut Street, where "Louis XI." is making the hit of the season, with Sheridan in the title role, eclipsing all his former efforts; at present there is no sign of its withdrawal.

At the Arch Street "A Celebrated Case" has drawn even better than it did at first. Monday it enters on the third and final week. The Williamsons appearing on the 13th in "Struck Oil" and "The Chinese Question."

The annual invasion of the Walnut by Tony Pastor and his variety troupe, occurred last Monday, and for one week the sacred boards of "the leading star theater of the world" were given up to the mercies of "King High Kickers," "Foreign Quartettes," "Musical Combs," "Lancashire Clogs," and the like. It don't seem right. I like a good variety show as well as the next man, but I like it in its proper place and cannot become reconciled to the idea, that the stage whereon the mightiest of the mighty, in the noble army of the profession have trod, and continue to tread, should be lowered from its high standard. But I digress. Pastor has brought a good troupe with him, none of the faces or acts are new to us, but they are the best in their line and favorites here, as the crowded condition of the house nightly—and the high prices, too—can testify. The company consists of Miss Jennie Morgan, Kitty O'Neil, Billy Barry, Harry Kennedy, Bryant and Hoey, Chas. S. Rogers and Mattie Vickers, the Kernells, Watson and Ellis, Emerson and Clark, the Daly Brothers, and the Pottinbleams. To-night they start for Brooklyn. Monday next, long-absent Maggie Mitchell, supported by her own troupe, will re-appear, playing "Fanchon" and "Pearl of Savoy." May 13th, the Steele-Mackaye Combination in "Won at Last."

At the Eleventh Street Opera House the French Comedy Company gave five delightful performances during the week, to select and appreciative audiences. "Mlle. de la Seigliere," "Aux Crochets d'un Gendre," "Le Medecin des Enfants," "La Poudre aux Yeux," and "L'Ami Fritz" were the attractions most effectively performed by M. M. Verat, Chamouin, Bouteloup, Hennot, Serville, and Karl, and M. Mes. Leblanc, Borsary, Chamouin, and Thal. From here they go to Boston, thence to Montreal.

The variety houses have been doing well, likewise Simmons and Slocum's Minstrels. For next week Fox's American will resound with war whoops and the explosion of blank cartridges, Buffalo Bill being announced. At the National, Alf. McDowell and E. A. Locke open in "Our Benedicts," and the Central presents Robert Fraser's Pan-tomime Troupe. The Adelphi, presided over by "Fattie" Stewart, and until lately, one of the worst dens in the city, came under the management, a short time ago, of J. B. Roberts, who has been trying to wash away its sins by presenting respectable attractions, but with little success, for old recollections are not easily erased from the mind of the average Philadelphian. To this house, next Monday, Harry Meredith, heavy man of the Walnut street company, assisted by Miss Lizzie Croese, juvenile lady of the same, will come in a new drama written for him entitled "The Shunrock," and although I wish him success in the attempt, I do not think he is likely to benefit himself any by appearing at such a tabooed establishment.

At Association Hall, Monday evening, Madame Madeline Schiller will give a farewell piano recital, assisted by Miss Anna Brasili, the contralto. Mme. Schiller leaves for Europe in July. Jarrett & Palmer's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" combination open at the Academy on the 6th, with Charles Howard as "Uncle Tom," and Marie Bates as "Topsy." The season is becoming far advanced with us, but so long as business continues good it will be difficult to tell how soon it will be brought to a close. The Chestnut is playing their stock company.—The Walnut's regular season closed with Joe Jefferson on April 13th.—A supplementary one being inaugurated for combinations.—The Arch plays combinations, and the Grand Central (variety) does likewise after to-night.—Fresh novelties are announced for some weeks ahead.

John McCullough

From the New York Dramatic News, May 14th:

Mr. John McCullough is in nothing he plays so picturesque and forcible as "Virginius." It is no doubt his best impersonation, taken from all points of view. Argue as we may about the general merits of this actor and that, or about their particular ability, on our own part, we must still pronounce the "Virginius" of Mr. McCullough as the most remarkable tragic performance on the American stage to-day. Mr. McCullough is not a subtle actor. He is a bad "luge." But in broad grand sweeps of eloquence and fiery impetuosity he best realizes the ideal of the tragedian. It has been a habit among the critics who revelled in the stilted declamation and mannerisms of Mr. Booth, or enjoyed the painful and artificial elaboration of Mr. Barrett, to sneer at Mr. McCullough. You still find some writers who deny the genius of Edwin Forrest, and to these the school of Forrest (of which Mr. McCullough is a faithful follower) is distasteful. They are the small souls who could drink inspiration from the beauty of a gold-fish pond, and be utterly unable of comprehending the rugged grandeur of Niagara. Not that McCullough will be another Forrest. Such men come but once in a century. Nor must we be blind to the abilities of Mr. McCullough, because his school did not originate with him. A careful study of his "Virginius" will reveal his perception of the beautiful and true in art. It is true that he is grand at intervals only, but when he does choose to do his best, as he did on Monday night at the Grand Opera House, he cannot but carry his auditors to a high pitch of enthusiasm. There is something inexpressibly touching in the greatness of the father's love for his daughter, in the first act, while in the third, when at the conclusion of that magnificent scene before the tribunal, he sacrifices that daughter, the magnanimity of his action, the broken tones of his voice, the whole demeanor of the man strike a responsive chord in every breast that is capable of holy emotions. McCullough is an actor who not only feels while he acts, but possesses that rare gift of communicating his emotion. We call this magnetism. But call it what you please, it is the highest attribute of the actor, and the rarest. It is the one quality without which an actor can never be great, and it is a quality of which Messrs. Booth and Barrett are totally devoid. McCullough's mad scene in the last act is fragrant in its fidelity and intensity. It is a fitting climax to a grand performance. The star did not again have any such support as that which aided him at Booth's last year. Miss Boniface made a rather unusual though pretty "Virginius." Mr. Wheelock was very good as "Iscariot," and Miss Prescott was hardly in her element.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from hotel employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

E. BUTTERICK & Co's Spring Patterns, the most reliable, stylish and popular. Agency 124 Post Street. Send stamp for Catalogue.

A correct understanding of book-keeping is an absolute necessity to any one in business. A visit to the PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE, on Post Street, opposite Union Square, convinced us that the method of tuition adopted and in daily practice by the teachers and students of that institution cannot be excelled, and that anyone who passes a course of instruction there and fails to be thoroughly conversant with the principles and practice of the science of accounts had better give up all idea of ever becoming a successful merchant.

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Riche's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. F. NOLWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. OHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.: Gentlemen:—The artists of the Ketter, Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Re-opened on Monday, with Lawrence Barrett as 'Hamlet.'

Grand Opera House

Closed during the present week.

Bush Street Theater

The lecture of Billy Rice given here is alone worth a dollar to hear it. It is without exception the best thing of the kind in burlesque oratory. The "4 Grangers" give Richmond, Welch and Rice plural, an opportunity to show a patchwork of songs, dances, and witty sayings and doings, and is a most original and funny sketch. This week's programme is without exception the very best yet given. Matinee this afternoon.

Correction

A notice to the Public having been circulated in the form of a cheap handbill, stating that the management of the Bush Street Theater insisted upon keeping the name of a certain burlesque artist before the public as one of its principal features, I beg to state that the management of the Bush Street Theater did nothing of the sort, and is justly indignant at The Footlight's mistake in printing the name of "that great burlesque lyric artist" in the cast of the Haverly Minstrels.

Respectfully,

J. D. ROBERTSON,

Publisher Footlight.

Emerson's Opera House

Vocal quartette of Swedish ladies this evening.

Baldwin's Theater

"The Danites" still to a crowded dress circle and well filled house. The "Octoroon" is in rehearsal and will succeed "The Danites." The Union Square Company is meeting with great success in the tour through California and Nevada.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

PRIVATE theatrics are becoming quite fashionable.

MAY Flower picnics to Sausalito are now in fashion.

THE "Octoroon" will follow the "Danites" at Baldwin's.

THE "Modjeska Waltzes" has been published by Ditson & Co.

HARRIGAN & HART succeed the Haverly Minstrels at the Bush St. Theater.

SALSBURY's Troubadours play "Patchwork" at the San Jose Opera House on Monday and Tuesday next.

It is reported that Salsbury, of the Troubadours, lost $3,000 by the failure of the Fidelity Bank in Boston.

ILLUMINATED views of the Pacific Coast, Panama and Central America, will be exhibited this evening at the rooms of the Art Association.

THE Virginia Chronicle mentions that the proprietors of the Stockton Independent have been sued by Maeder & Crossbie for libel and false imprisonment.

THE picnic and Spring games of the Olympic Club will be held at Badger's Park next Saturday. Music and dancing will accompany the athletic contests.

THE sale of seats for any day of the May Festival opens at Sherman & Hyde's to-morrow morning. As there is no extra charge for reserved seats, there will probably be a great demand for the choice locations.

ON the board fence around the "Old Corner," Swan's latest contribution to advertising art is now on public exhibition. In the foreground Captain Kentzel is between two dres, it is an even bet whether the elephants will run over him or the whale swallow him.

THE Music Festival in dedication of Springer Hall, Cincinnati, began yesterday. The Chorus and Orchestra were under the direction of Theodore Thomas, and the programme was enthusiastically received by the audience. M. W. Whitney was one of the soloists.

EVERYTHING connected with the May Festival is progressing as favorably as the Executive Committee could wish. The Boston Advertiser thus reviews one of the soloists who have been engaged by Manager Bugbee: "Mr. Fessenden sang with the characteristic delicacy of style which is now so highly appreciated in Boston; and being recalled, sang a little sentimental ballad by Reichardt, 'You Must Guess,' with a sweetness and tenderness which more than interpreted the composer's thought."

A correspondent from Virginia City, writing under date May 12th, sends us the following items:—

Forepaugh opened on Monday last, and gave four performances Monday and Tuesday, to overflowing houses. The "Evangeline" troupe, with Kennedy, of Grand Opera House fame, as manager, opened on Tuesday evening in the National Guard Hall, and have played during the week to good houses; they gave a matinee performance yesterday afternoon, and left for Carson City this morning, from there to Reno, thence to Salt Lake and the East. The Union Square Theater Company arrived on Wednesday, and opened the same evening at Piper's Opera House, in "A Celebrated Case," to a large and fashionable audience, and have played to good houses ever since. Last night "Santoga" was presented for the first time. Their intention is to stay two or three weeks if business holds out good, and the prospects are that it will. Wednesday night, after the play, some of the "Evangeline" troupe went down into the Savage mine, and on Friday night a portion of the Union Square Company went down the same mine. Of course they came up "wilted," as the Savage is considered the warmest mine on the Coast.

Yankee Doodle

One great want of the American people is a national anthem—a song which shall be indigenous both as regards words and music, which shall give expression to, love for, and devotion to country, which shall not be a mimic-pammy ballad, but shall be so noble and inspiring that it will inlame with the sentiments, to which it gives utterance, the hearts of all who hear it, and which shall in all respects be worthy of the great nation in whose honor it has been composed. That America has not such an anthem must be admitted by all. We were made to realize this most painfully during the second Boston Peace Jubilee in 1872. Then the great orchestra and chorus played and sang "La Marseillaise," the "Russian National Hymn" and the "Wacht Am Rhine," and as we listened to them we longed for some such composition for America, and hoped and prayed that none of our "national airs" would be rendered and a mortifying comparison be thus instituted between this and those of other nations. Patriotism is one of the most prominent characteristics of the North American. He enthusiastically declares that his is the greatest country in the world, and that all its institutions, from the freedom of the press and universal male suffrage to draw poker and bowie-knives, are to be loved and revered. Every fourth day of July he proclaims, in the voice of a stentor, that this great land is divinely protected by the "glorious American eagle, which sits upon the rock of Gibraltar, with one wing dipping into the waters of the Atlantic, while the other is melliflously moistened by the blue and briny liquid of the Pacific." When he is in a theater and the orchestra performs that grand national anthem, "Yankee Doodle," he cannot sufficiently express his delight, and acts as though his reputation for loyalty depends upon the amount of noise he makes. He thumps with his feet, claps with his hands, and whistles with his mouth. Not only does his soul seem to be inspired by the music, but his mind seems to be lost in contemplating the exquisite beauty and poetry of the words which have been set to it:

"Father and I went down to camp
Along with Captain Gooding,
And there we saw the boys and girls
As thick as hasty pudding.
Yankee Doodle, doodle do,
Yankee Doodle Dandy,
Yankee Doodle keep it up,
And let the girls be handy."

This is, par excellence, the national anthem of North America. It is just the sort of thing we can all understand and appreciate.

Now of Yankee Doodle, unfortunately, history gives us no account. The poet mentions him in the most cursory manner, merely saying that his father and himself went down to camp "Along with Captain Gooding." That this Captain Gooding was a good man and a brave officer there can be no doubt. The fact that we find him in the society of the author of so noble and so grand a work as the anthem of "Yankee Doodle" sufficiently proves this. Doubtless he had earned his promotion from the ranks by the most daring gallantry. Perhaps his soldierly breast was covered with scars received while facing the enemy. Perhaps he had performed military exploits which, though unrecorded, shall be blazoned forth at the end of time and shall dwarf the achievements of Hannibal and Napoleon into utter insignificance. All honor, then, to the good old North American name of Captain Gooding.

Our poet shows his capability for loving friendship by the affectionate manner in which he speaks of the boys and girls who were present at camp when he and his father went down there with Captain Gooding, and displays his love of home and his appreciation of domestic comforts by comparing their thickness to that of hasty pudding.

We hope most earnestly that these observations, though they fail to do justice to our subject, will inspire North Americans with a love and reverence for the character of the great and good Doodle of glorious memory, and a warm appreciation and an ardent admiration of the grand anthem which commemorates his virtues; and we also hope that what has here been said will induce his countrymen to assign to the author of this grand, noble work, the place in literature which of right is his, and to rank with Shakespeare and Milton the composer of the incomparable, sublime national anthem, "Yankee Doodle."—Dramatic and Musical Mirror.

Mr. Herman Linde

This gentleman came to this city a stranger, unheralded in any way, and quite without the advantage, or disadvantage, as the case may be, of newspaper puffery. He came quietly and modestly, yet being fully conscious of his rare powers, he knew that he could afford to wait a little while for public recognition of them. He was right. The handful of auditors that attended his recitations at first, more indeed from curiosity to hear a man with such a wonderful memory than from any better motive, has increased steadily in numbers and improved in character—intellectually speaking, of course.

It is difficult to convey any adequate impression of his recitations. They are not only marvellous as illustrations of an accurate and retentive memory, which is, indeed, their least merit, but in every line Mr. Linde shows that he is a close and most intelligent student of the great masters of dramatic composition. All the characters, even those which are comparatively insignificant, are carefully individualized, and so different is the voice assigned to each, that, with the eyes closed, one could readily believe that a number of persons were conversing on the stage before him.

Mr. Linde's voice is exceptionally rich and sympathetic by nature, and the wonderful effects he produces with it are the result of a superb cultivation. We advise every one who wishes to enjoy an intellectual treat of the highest order to hear this remarkable performance. We understand that Mr. Strakosch, a man of very quick perception of what is truly artistic and attractive, has engaged Mr. Linde for a series of dramatic performances of Shakespearean roles to be given next winter. No one who has attended his recitations can doubt that his fine presence, his graceful manner and expressive gestures, added to his capacity for the interpretation of these great works, will secure for him the admiration of numerous and enthusiastic audiences. Philadelphia Sunday Mercury.

An Eastern manager is in ecstasies over the phonograph, and wants Prof. Edison to make him forty or fifty large cylinders which he proposes to take to Paris. After securing the finest musical performers, each one will be invited to play into different diaphragms, and the notes are to be recorded by the cylinders. The greatest prima donnas, tenors, contraltos and basses are to sing, and their words and melody transcribed by the phonograph. After securing copper matrices, he proposes to bring the cylinders to this city, and put them on the stage of the Academy of Music. They can be run by a Baxter engine a whole evening with fifteen cents' worth of coal, and an opera given, as produced in Paris, without a musician or a cantatrice. — Ex.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Lady and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from mint employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by again moving Westward. The establishment has been given the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

A correct understanding of Book keeping is an absolute necessity to any one in business. A visit to the PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE, on Post Street, opposite Union Square, convinced us that the method of tuition adopted and in daily practice by the teachers and students of that institution cannot be excelled, and that any one who passes a course of instruction there and fails to be thoroughly conversant with the principles and practice of the science of accounts had better give up all idea of ever becoming a successful merchant.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHMAN'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. F. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co. Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We heartily commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Box office opens to-day for sale of seats for the re-opening night on Monday next. The house has been completely renovated, and it is surprising that so much has been accomplished in the short time the new management has had possession.

Bush Street Theater

The patronage that the public was pleased to bestow upon "Joshua Whitcomb" seems now to be transferred across the street to the Haverly Minstrels, who, now in their fourth week, are drawing full houses every evening. The matinee yesterday afternoon was well attended, and the season altogether has been so far the most successful ever given here.

Emerson's Opera House

The Scandinavian portion of our community will find the melodies of their fatherland rendered in an excellent manner by the Swedish lady vocalists, at this place of amusement. The English ballads given by the quartette are selected with good taste and well executed.

Baldwin's Theater

"The Danites" still continues a great attraction, the public not yet being tired of Jonquin Miller's California drama. It was fortunate for the author that it was brought out in the manner it has been at Baldwin's. There is no telling what would have been the result if produced by a less talented company. Dayton, the scenic artist, is busy on some novelties to illustrate "The Octoroon."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

WILLIE SEYMOUR, late of the California, is under engagement at Baldwin's.

The steamer excursion parties to Santa Cruz and Monterey, will be resumed on June 1st.

THE San Francisco Hussars, Captain C. C. Keene, picnic to-day at Shell Mound Park, Berkeley.

"BEAUTIFUL days that are dead," is the latest number from the press of the California Music Publishing Co.

MANAGER MAGUIRE of Baldwin's and Miss Katherine Rogers were among the passengers Eastward bound this morning.

THE celebrated California boy violinist, Master Leopold Lichtenberg, will give a farewell concert at Platt's Hall on Monday evening, May 27th.

THE Knights of Pythias are either a long way ahead or a long way behind fashion, for they had a spelling match last evening at Lincoln Hall.

W. H. VANDERBILT presented Gilmore, the band-master, with a check for $500, prior to his departure for Europe, towards keeping up the dignity of American music there.

A chorus rehearsal of selections for the May Festival will be held this evening at the Metropolitan Temple. At the next general rehearsal given, Mr. Zerrhau, the Eastern conductor, will be present.

A sale of choice plants takes place tomorrow at 328 Sansome street, corner Sacramento. Parties wishing to stock their conservatories will find a large assortment to select from now on exhibition.

LOUIS J. JENNINGS, London, has brought suit against the publishers of the New York Express for publishing the story that he was in the habit of drawing checks on banks where he had no funds, and for beating his better half.

GREAT preparations are being made by the executive members of the Olympic Club to insure the success of their annual picnic and excursion on Saturday next. The prospects are that it will be the best of the kind ever given.

PLUNDER

A NEVADA politician was elected on the merits of one single speech. All he said was: "Fellow countrymen, follow me to yonder saloon!"

A poor actor, with a book, was entering a pawnbroker's shop, when he encountered a friend, who enquired what he was going to do. "Only going to 'spout' Shakespeare," was the reply.

The following sentence is from a description of the King of Siam's new yacht: "The figure-head of the yacht is a flying angel worked in gold, with carved trail boards, and she has a semi-elliptic stern."

DURING the first 150 years from the foundation of the Order of the Garter, it was conferred on women as well as men. Now-a-days, Queen Victoria is the only woman who wears the ribbon and the star, which look remarkably well on feminine attire.

IN 1816, Joseph Nicéphore Niepce invented photography. He succeeded in securing a picture printed by light in the camera. A view of Kew Church, taken by him in 1827, was the first photograph from nature taken in England. It is in the British Museum.

A GAY MUSIC TEACHER.—Henry Goodrich is a music teacher. He has traveled from place to place until he has taught music in every State in the Union. It is said that he has married seven of his pupils, and most of the States are yet to be heard from. In Clarksburg, Virginia, he outdid his former matrimonial exploits by marrying two girls in the same village. He is now in jail.—Chicago Enterprise.

THE phonograph seems destined for a use nuthought of at the time of its invention. The President of the Philological Society wants to get one at once to bottle up the almost dead language of the Oonodaga and Tuscarora Indians. There is but one person now living who speaks these languages (an old Indian,) and it is proposed to get him to talk for a week or so in the phonograph before he dies, in order to preserve these curious tongues as relics of an extinct people.

A Padua publisher is to send to the Exhibition an edition of Dante scarcely larger than the thumbnail, and intended for a watch chain appendage. The letters are so small as to resemble grains of sand, and few, of course, can decipher them without a magnifying glass. It being impossible to distribute the type after the edition had been worked off, it was returned to the foundry. This Iliad in a nutshell will be bound in red velvet, with silver clasps.

Rough on Rowe

It is said that Sardon was reconciled to the omission of his name from the announcement of the "Exiles," at the Broadway Theater, when he heard that George Fawcett Rowe was the adaptor of the American version.—Ex.

CONCERNING Miss Marie Tuck, the young lady in whom Max Strakosch expects to develop great musical talent, the N. Y. Home Journal says: "The concert at the Academy, for the benefit of Miss Marie Tuck, to assist her in her musical education, was an enjoyable entertainment, and we trust, will contribute efficiently toward its object. Miss Kellogg, Miss Cary, and Madame Roze, all lent their generous assistance, sang in their best style, and responded gracefully to the repeated encores. The youthful beneficiary herself, Miss Marie Tuck, who ingratiated herself at once by the ingenuousness of her manner, gave proof of the compass and accuracy of her voice, but it was plain that the nervousness natural to the debutante affected its quality. It would be impossible, therefore, to judge from her vocalization of Saturday evening, what promise is afforded of future development. We have confidence, however, in Mr. Strakosch's judgment, and shall await in Miss Tuck some new revelation of musical expression."

THERE is so much stealing going on among legitimate as well as illegitimate dramatic authors and adaptors, that no man contemplating the construction of a new play is safe from the prying eyes of envious people, or the intrusion of those who are too ignorant or too lazy to write themselves. Steal! Why the moment it is known that J. Smith, Esq., has been engaged to get up an emotional work for some great star, his house is surrounded by interlopers, who seek, by means of bribery and corruption, to induce the servants to surreptitiously confiscate the manuscript as fast as it is composed, and convey it, during the temporary absence of the dramatist, to the rapacious maws of interlopers and others who deal in fanciful fiction. Why, it frequently happens that a dramatic author sees his new play announced for early production by another adaptor ere it has been completed by himself. One of the most successful of dramatists has been so dreadfully imposed upon by conniving freebooters and feed servants that he has found it necessary to seek an eyrie on the highest mountain peak, where, freed from the presence of the literary thief, he can do his work in security.—Ex.

THE N. Y. Dramatic News mentions that it "printed a statement that E. T. Barnum had given the widow of Ted Almonte, the clown, $200. Mrs. Almonte and her friends give a different version of this apparent generosity, extraordinary enough on Barnum's part to have been copied in all the papers of the country. It seems that a representative of Barnum called on her with a letter of condolence from the showman, expressing the greatest sympathy with her loss, and saying that he sent her by bearer $200. She being penniless, was profuse in her acknowledgments, and willingly wrote a letter in answer, dictated by his representative, and thanking Barnum for his kindness. When the envoy had got hold of the letter, he handed Mrs. Almonte $100 and a due bill for $100 which her husband had made out last Summer, to Nathana, one of the proprietors of Barnum's show. She protested that she knew nothing of this, but that was the end of it. It was stated in the city press, a few days after, that the widow of the brave driver Strickland, who died while endeavoring to save the property of his employer, had been cared for by Barnum, and that he had paid the funeral expenses. Mrs. Strickland writes that she has not received one penny from Barnum or any person connected with him, and that none of the company even attended the funeral. All of which goes to show how cheaply a bogus reputation for charity may be obtained.

A correct understanding of Book-keeping is an absolute necessity to any one in business. A visit to the PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE, on Post Street, opposite Union Square, convinced us that the method of tuition adopted and in daily practice by the teachers and students of that institution cannot be excelled; and that anyone who passes a course of instruction there and fails to be thoroughly conversant with the principles and practice of the science of accounts had better give up all idea of ever becoming a successful merchant.

The Sweetest Flower of All (Song and Dance)

I'll sing to you to-night, of a creature fair and bright,
Whom I met one eve while strolling through this park,
Whose smile is so serene, whose grace is like a queen,
And whose heart is just as blithe as a lark:
We met as if by chance—she threw a roguish glance—
I confess her actions did my heart enthral;
We spent such happy hours in culling pretty flowers,
But to me she seemed the sweetest flower of all.

CHORUS.
She's as graceful as a swan upon a Summer pond,
And her silvery voice is like the cuckoo's call;
My heart with love is laden since the day I met this maiden,
For to me she is the sweetest flower of all.

Her eyes like skies above, filled with the light of love,
When I asked this lovely maid if she'd be mine,
Her answer you can guess, was a softly-murmured "yes,"
And her features at that moment looked divine.
I never shall regret the day when first we met,
And I in love with this fair maid did wait,
What the rose is to the bee my Jessie is to me,
By far the best and sweetest flower of all.

CHORUS.
She's as graceful as a swan upon a Summer pond,
And her silvery voice is like the cuckoo's call;
My heart with love is laden since the day I met this maiden,
For to me she is the sweetest flower of all.

Versatile Talent

Joe Emmet in "Fritz," at the Standard, sings what is known as the Bologna, or more properly, the Bologna song. The Bologna, it is well known, is a species of sausage much affected by lovers of horseflesh. During the song Mr. Emmet dances from one end of the stage to the other, swinging a string of property Bolognas. One night last week Emmet inadvertently hit the orchestra leader on the head with his sausages. This gentleman evidently considered it a personal insult. At all events, he stopped the music, laid down his baton, got off his stand, and left the orchestra, followed by all his men, who left their instruments behind them. For a moment Emmet was kind of broke up, but not for long; for he simply said, after curiously watching the last man disappear into his hole, "Vell, dot's all ride." Then, to the astonishment of the audience, he climbed down from the stage into the orchestra, collected all the various instruments, and, with them in his arms, got back on the stage, the audience wondering all the time if he were sober. But they were soon reassured when Emmet picked up the leader's violin, and played "St. Patrick's Day." Then the clarinet, and played on it the "Sweet By-and-By;" then the cornet, with Levy's "Maid Waltz;" then successively, "Home, Sweet Home," with variations on the trombone; the "Last Rose of Summer" on the flute, and a polka of his own on the drum, with drumstick accompaniment. It is needless to say each feat was received with deafening applause, as probably none present had an idea Emmet was so versatile a musician. It wouldn't be a bad gag for him to do it every night, though on this occasion the little sensation was quite unpremeditated.—N. Y. Dramatic News.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place per excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of this house was derived from wait employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.
Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.

Gentlemen—The artists of the Kellogg-
Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and
pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

BORAX WATER

—FOR—

No Housekeeper Should be Without It!

The best thing known for washing Flannel;
superior to anything for cleaning Silk and Velvet, the most cleansing for the body; for treating eruptions of the skin; when used as a shampoo, will cleanse the scalp and prevent the hair
from falling out; when mixed with starch is used for glazing shirts and other linens. By washing shelves or cupboards with this solution, ants
and cockroaches and other insects will be driven away. Borax is the best thing known for curing Rheumatism.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Mr. Lawrence Barrett, who is underlined to appear as "Hamlet" on Monday evening, at the reopening of the California, is the actor who had the honor of assuming the star part when the theater was first opened. On the eighteenth of January, 1869, he appeared as 'Alfred Evelyn,' in "Money." He will arrive in this city on Sunday evening.

Bush Street Theater

It would be difficult to think of a performance into which more really witty and funny situations and sayings could be crowded than that now given by the Flaverly Minstrels. The company has shown more talent in its special line of business than any other combination of burnt-cork artists that has ever given a performance in San Francisco. Matinee to-morrow.

Emerson's Opera House

Swedish Lady Vocal Quartette this evening.

Baldwin's Theater

The success of "The Danites" has been greater than was anticipated; there is yet no sign of lack of public appreciation. "The Octoron" is in rehearsal and will follow "The Danites." Manager Maguire with his usual energy has started in pursuit of new attractions. "Danites" matinee to-morrow.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

LAWRENCE BARRETT arrives on Sunday evening.

MISS ALICE KINGSBURY gives her entertainment this evening at Dietz' Opera House, Oakland.

THE sale of exotic and rare plants takes place to-day at 11 a. m., at 328 Sansome street, corner Sacramento.

SOTHERN will appear as "The Crushed Tragedian" in London, in June. The market men ought to import the Count Johannes.

MEMBERS of the Olympic Club are in daily rehearsal at their gymnasium, for the performance to be given to-morrow at Badger's Park.

ESTHER WILLIAMS will be the 'Topsey' of Billings and Barrows' "Uncle Tom" Company, in their tour through California and Oregon.

THE collective noun has suddenly become the subject of National controversy among Eastern paragraphers. They wish to settle the question whether the United States is or are a nation. Boston Society thinks they is.

MR. G. W. DAYTON, the scenic artist at Baldwin's, has received from Mr. McKee Rankin, an order for models of the sets of the first, third and fifth acts of "The Danites," to be reproduced in London on the production of Joaquin Miller's California drama there.

MESSRS. BRADLEY & KILGUSON have photographed a gentleman connected with the dramatic profession of this city, especially for the portrait illustration on the first page of the enlarged FOOTLIGHT, to be published on Saturday the 25th. Rieman tells us that it is O. K.

THE Evening Chronicle, of Virginia City, tells us of an usher in Piper's Opera House who overshoots the mark as a "Cluquer," and applauds in and out of place—breaking in on a pathetic scene with both feet, and clapping hands just as a comedian is about to get off a joke, are his strong holds."

THE publishers of that excellent journal Boston Society, overlooked a sentence in their May 4th number, which, no doubt, they would have erased from their New York correspondent's letter if it had been noticed. We refer to the words "hideous cooky old woman!" applied to the Queen of England. Comment is unnecessary.

ANOTHER opportunity will be given on the 27th, to hear the young violinist, Master Leopold Lichtenberg. This will, more than likely, be his last concert in California for many years, as he proceeds to Europe to gather fresh laurels. The illustrated number of the FOOTLIGHT of the 25th, will contain further remarks concerning this accomplished young Californian.

THE Virginia City Evening Chronicle tells its readers that "while John Owens, the millionaire actor, was playing "Solon Shingle" in Sacramento, he was arrested because the license for the hall had not been paid, and was walked off to jail with E. W. Townsend, the agent of the company. Owens was in the green-room at the time of the arrest, and went along with the officer in the character of the old farmer and kept the police in a roar of laughter by his solicitude for "them that cat-tel," and that bar'el 'er apple sass." The two were three hours in jail."

THE London Dramatic News thus reviews an American review of Tennyson: "A New York paper declares that 'Mr. Tennyson has given us a noble addition to the ballad lore of our language.' Perhaps. There are sound critics who consider the three-hundred-guinea poem—well, not so noble. The critic in the New York paper proves his case thus: 'The abrupt, breathless style, lawless metre, and rough, irregular rhythm, like staggering footsteps in a seaway, full of conflict, shonts of victory, cries of the wounded, is as stirring a battle-song as the language possesses.' If this fails to establish the nobility of the 'lawless metre,' it may be taken as pretty strong testimony in favor of its sea-sickness. 'Irregular rhythm, like staggering footsteps in a sea-way,' is all very well as a figure of speech, but it seems to want a steward's basin to make it complete."

THE Boston Advertiser of May 12th, 1876, gives expression to what was probably the general opinion of those who heard Mr. Whitney at the Centennial. It says: "In the course of the exercises occurred the most surprising and most notable feature of the whole day—the bass solo by Myron W. Whitney. His voice penetrated the air an immense distance, and was marvelously clear, mellow and tuneful at the distance of Memorial Hall. The throng was held by the charm, and when it was concluded there was a grand demonstration of approbation that would not suffer the chorus to proceed until Mr. Whitney had repeated his splendid performance. It is but just to say that he bore off the chief honors of the day, and made in a few moments a more than national fame. At the conclusion of the cantata there was great applause, and Mr. Buck and Mr. Whitney were both called for, and stood up to receive congratulations."

Burlesque Opera

H. J. BYRON's new burlesque, now playing at the Gaiety, under the title of "Il Sonnambulo," and "Lively Little Alessio," is a compound travesty of the leading incidents of Wilkie Collins' drama of "The Moonstone," lately produced at the Olympic, as well as those of the opera "La Sonnambula." The familiar names of the leading cynical characters are retained, and in the first scene, the incidents of the opera are adhered to in fair burlesque fashion; but after that an important alteration is made. It is not 'Amina' who is the sleep-walker, but the 'Count,' who, in the second scene while in a dyspeptic dream, superinduced by a heavy supper, descends from his chamber like 'Franklin Blake,' the hero in "The Moonstone," and abstracts from a cupboard—not an Oriental gem, but a large turnip of a watch, which 'Elvino' had presented to 'Amina' as a wedding gift. In the third scene the 'Count' is subjected to the experiment of being again fed to repletion until he falls into a heavy sleep, when (again in a dream) he reveals his real character as an acrobat. Taking the barber's pole, projecting from 'Alessio's' shop, he uses it as a balance-pole and ascending to the plank, crossing the stream to the mill, goes through the performances of a tight-rope dancer, and would doubtless have proceeded to repeat the theft of the previous night, as 'Blake' did in "The Moonstone," had he not missed his footing on the plank, and fell into the stream. 'Alessio' takes a "Myles m-Coppaleen" header after the 'Count,' and both are rescued from the water by the floats of a revolving mill-wheel, and all is brought to a happy termination. Although there is an abundance of witty puns and quaint distorting of words throughout the dialogue, and the incidents grotesquely ludicrous and ingeniously dove-tailed, the piece cannot be said to be at all comparable to either of its immediate predecessors, or, indeed, worthy of Mr. Byron's undisputed fame as a burlesque writer. — Boston Society.

SIR WALTER SCOTT's son was captain in a dragoon regiment. A story has been told of him in print, to the following effect: "About the time when George IV. was visiting Dublin, Sir Walter Scott's son was present at a party given by a lady of fashion, named Magan, who told him she would rather be his honored father than the King. 'Why so, madam?' asked the Captain. 'Because,' said she, 'when all the kings of earth are gone and forgotten, your father's works will be remembered to the end of time.' Whereupon, to her astonishment, the great novelist's only son replied, 'Yes, my dear madam, I am told they are very clever, but I never read them.'"

Amusing and instructive—MULLER'S Celebrated FLORESCOPE. Power, 100 diameters, or 10,000 areas. Price, $1.09. The trade supplied 135 Montgomery Street.

Go to the "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVE STORE, No. 3 Kearny Street (entrance on Geary) and select your Gloves.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from mint employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

Young Masters and Misses are delighted with OPTICAL WONDER discovered through Muller's Florescope. Price, only $1.00. 135 Montgomery Street, near Bush.

A very extensive selection of all kinds of BROOMS, BRUSHES and FEATHER DUSTERS may be found at 314 Butter Street. The brothers LEVENSON have opened a place of business there, and offer their merchandise at the most reasonable rates.

Across the street from the California Theater you can find a first-class FRENCH RESTAURANT open after theater hours. M. Hubert has the reputation of being one of the best caterers in this city.

FINE CARPETING, in elegant designs, and rich furniture in every variety of style, will be found at the extensive warehouses of Messrs. C. M. PLUM & CO., on Market Street, next building to Palace Hotel.

Actors and Artists and Musicians visiting Oakland, will find the headquarters of the profession at the CRYSTAL PALACE SALOON, No. 463 Ninth street.

An Optical Wonder—"THE FLORESCOPE." Great rush for them at Muller's Optical Depot, General Agent of the Pacific Coast, 135 Montgomery Street.

The "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast.

A list of newly published and popular volumes which Messrs. A. ROMAN & CO. have just received will be found on first page.

The latest thing in gent's snappers is the SPIRAL SPRING NOVELTY, for sale at Messrs. Carmany & Crowell's, 25 Kearny Street.

If you want first rate bread, try LINSLEY & CO'S YEAST POWDER.

For the ladies of San Francisco, MME. CONSTANT has just imported a large assortment of FRENCH PATTERN BONNETS of the latest Parisian Summer fashions. No other Millinery establishment on the Pacific Coast have direct consignments of French Pattern Bonnets made them. Mme. Constant, 314 Butter Street, is the only importer.

An extensive assortment of SUMMER STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of C. HERRMANN, 402 Kearny Street and 910 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of last season, and superior articles for sale.

OLD TABLEWARE PLATE to look as good as new at the S. F. Gold and Silver Plating Works, 653 Mission Street.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

The leading piano manufacturing companies of the United States are advertising patrons of the FOOTLIGHT. Their business cards will be found in our columns.

A correct understanding of Book-keeping is an absolute necessity to any one in business. A visit to the PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE, on Post Street, opposite Union Square, convinced us that the method of tuition adopted and in daily practice by the teachers and students of that institution cannot be excelled; and that anyone who passes a course of instruction there and fails to be thoroughly conversant with the principles and practice of the science of accounts had better give up all idea of ever becoming a successful merchant.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 100 PAPERS, generally known as "Patent Outside," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 100 to send
the order direct to the publisher of each paper.
An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines
agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list
for $10—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print
and distribute the same number through so many sections. For list of papers and further information call on or address

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.

Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg
Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

In theatrical business in San Francisco there has been nothing new during the past week. "The Danites" continues to attract large audiences at Baldwin's, and the prospects are that it will run another week to good houses. Manager Maguire is reported to have gone East to secure all the available first-class dramatic talent left in the field, which, on account of the large emigration of footlight celebrities to Europe, is at present not very extensive. M. Koe Rankin is having models of the first, third and fifth acts of "The Danites" prepared by the scenic artist, George Dayton, for re-production in London. As we have on a former occasion remarked, much of the success of Joaquin Miller's drama may be attributed to the most handsome manner in which the management of Baldwin's placed it on the stage. In all the mechanical details nothing was wanting; the stage setting could not have been better, and the estimate placed on the scenery can be judged, where the artist was called out not less than twice, and, on some occasions, thrice of an evening, for a whole week.

At the Bush Street Theater the Haverly Minstrels have had another first rate week's business, and they are drawing now on their merit alone. The novelty has passed and they have only to trust now to the excellence of their performance. The two principal sketches, "Custodians of the Peace," and "Epitaph," which were covered over in last week's programme, are the very best things of the kind ever given at a San Francisco audience, and many a dollar has been invested in admission to a lecture not one-half as entertaining or instructive as Mr. Billy Rice's burlesque orations.

The Swedish Lady vocalists, at Emerson's, although really deserving and talented artistes, have not met with much success during the week. The bulk of their audiences has been Scandinavians, who go to listen to and enjoy the melodies of their fatherland.

The California has been thoroughly overhauled since the change in management. The opening night, on Monday, will be inaugurated by Lawrence Barrett in "Hamlet," supported by Miss Eleanor Carey as "Ophelia" and a company selected from the disengaged members of the profession in the city, many being members of the old company. We trust that the present season under the new managers will be as successful as the first season which followed the opening in January, 1869, after Lawrence Barrett's first night in "Money," as "Alfred Evelyn."

At the Grand Opera House, to-morrow evening, the cantata of "Esther" will be rendered by the leading Jewish amateur vocalists of this city, embracing an orchestra of 20 selected musicians, and a chorus of nearly two hundred voices. The rehearsals during the week speak well for the affair being a success.

In connection with the Art Exhibition on Pine street, to which Toby Rosenthal's "Alarmed Academy" has lately been added, there will be shown this evening a number of illuminated views in Central America, from photographs by Muybridge.

At Dietz' Opera House, Oakland, Miss Alice Kingsbury will appear this evening in "Fanchon" and "Capitola."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

MR. JACK SHATTUCK has received the appointment of Assistant Treasurer at the California.

THE Music Festival at Cincinnati is a grand success. Yesterday the sale of tickets was stopped. Cary, Pappenheim, Osgood and Whitney are dividing the honors.

THE present prospects are that Master Leopold Lichtenberg will receive better public appreciation on Monday week, at Platt's Hall, than was awarded him at his last concert.

THE portrait of celebrity for first page illustration of next Saturday's FOOTLIGHT, has been made by Messrs. Bradley & Rulofson expressly for us, and is now in the hands of our engraver.

TO-morrow evening, at the Palace Hotel, the Oregon delegates for the May Festival will be serenaded. During next week, the chorus rehearsals will be conducted by Carl Zernhan. Our illustrated number, published next Saturday, will contain full programme of the Festival, with a collection of interesting items regarding it.

PLUNDER

A MAN must have his pants all one color, but a woman can sew a yard of red flannel around the bottom of an old calico dress, and have an elegant underskirt.

Commissioners to right of them,
Commissioners to left of them,
Belowed and thundered.
But loud roared the (aul)—"donnez—
To get in, you must your money pay!"
Some one had blundered.

EUROPEAN nations must acknowledge that our contribution to the Paris Exposition, in the way of ornamental commissions, cannot be surpassed; but the French Fair officials will rake in the entrance money of the superfluous 147 with particular pleasure.

In an article on the straw hat trade, an English paper says that "art has gained immense value from the presence of a straw hat adding so much additional beauty and grace to Dolly Varden, when painted by a MacIse, that 1,000 guineas are not considered too much to give. The almost fabulous sum realized for the celebrated picture of Gainsborough derived an inexpressible charm from the graceful form of hat worn by the Duchess of Devonshire."

THE other day, in one of the streets of Paris, an old cavalry soldier, slightly overcome with too much absinthe, was vainly trying to mount his horse. With every fresh effort, he would invoke the aid of some new saint in the calendar. "St. Paul help me! St. Peter aid me! St. Michael give me a push!" At length, by a prodigious effort, he raised himself so high that he went over his horse, falling on the other side. Raising himself carefully, he was heard to remark, "Gently, please, don't all you saints push at once."

THE fashionable women of Washington—those who really set, or, at least, sanction fashions—can generally be told by their chousser. If a girl or woman is seen winding along, on the narrow, high French heel, setting forward toward the middle of the foot, you may be reasonably sure that she does not belong to the ton. The real elite wear the sensible English style of shoe, fitting the foot, but with sufficient sole, and a wide, low heel. This is really the best surface indication of real swiftness among the women of the Capitol that we know. With a woman as with a horse, the first look should be at the feet.

THE London Echo thinks that the mastery obtained by Herr Neville Moritz over the English language is marvellous, upon which the Dramatic and Musical Mirror comments as follows: "If our esteemed contemporary had known that this actor was for some time a member of a stock company in Philadelphia, and was well known as an amateur in Boston some ten or eleven years ago, its surprise might be somewhat modified. The artists who occupied rooms in the Studio Building, at the time referred to, have a vivid remembrance of Mr. Grossman, who played "Ruy Blas" at the Continental Theater in this city under the stage name of Maurice Neville, and who did not then meet with remarkable success. He now calls himself Herr Neville Moritz, the Hungarian tragedian, and is endeavoring to make the Londoners believe that he has acquired the English language recently in order to astonish them with his delineations."

The largest organ in the world is "the one in Albert Hall, London. It was built in 1870, by Henry Willis, the English organ builder. It contains 111 sounding stops and 7879 pipes. The organ in the Church of St. Sulpice, Paris, was built by Aristide Cuvaille-Coll, the greatest French builder, and inaugurated April 29th, 1862. It contains 100 stops, 118 registers, 20 composite pedals, and 6,706 pipes. The organ in the cathedral at Ulm is one of the largest and finest in the world. It is the joint work of Walcker of Ludwigsburg (the builder of the Boston Music Hall organ) and Schanze of Paulinezell, near Erfurt, who shares the reputation with Walcker of being the best German organ builders. It occupied the time from May, 1854, to October, 1856, in building. It contains 6,544 pipes and 100 stops. The cost of the instrument was about 28,000 thalers—$11,200. The Marien Kirche, in Lubeck, contains a famous old organ, originally built in 1518. A new inside was put to it a few years ago by J. F. Schulze, a German builder. It now has 82 sounding stops.—Ex.

"Twenty minutes for dinner," shouted the brakeman, as we approached Lathrop. Arrived there, I entered the dining-room and inquired of the waiter: "What do you have for dinner?"

"Twenty minutes," was the hurried reply.

I told him I would try half-a-dozen minutes raw, on the half shell, just to see how they went. Told him to make a minute of it on his hook. He scratched his head, trying to comprehend the order, but gave it up and waited upon some one else.

I approached a man who stood near the door with a lot of silver in his hand: "What do you have for dinner?"

"Half a dollar," says he.

I told him I would take half a dollar well done. I asked him if he couldn't give me, in addition, a boiled pocket-book stuffed with greenbacks, and some seven-thirties garnished with postage-stamps and ten-cent scrip; also a Confederate bond, done brown, with lettuce alone. And I would like to wash my dinner down with national bank notes on "draft."

He said they were out of everything but the bank notes, and that as soon as the train left, he would order the waiter to "draw" some.—Ex.

Amusing and Instructive—MULLER'S Celebrated FLORESCOPE. Power, 100 diameters, or 10,000 areas. Price, $1.00. The trade supplied 145 Montgomery Street.

Go to the "P. CENTEMER" KID GLOVE STORE, No. 3 Kearny Street (entrance on Geary) and select your Gloves.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from waiters, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danichest Manufacturing at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

The leading piano manufacturing companies of the United States are advertising patrons of the FOOTLIGHT. Their business cards will be found in our columns.

A correct understanding of book-keeping is an absolute necessity to any one in business. A visit to the PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE, on Post Street, opposite Union Square, convinced us that the method of tuition adopted and the daily practice by the teachers and students of that institution cannot be excelled, and that anyone who pursues a course of instruction there and fails to be thoroughly conversant with the principles and practice of the science of accounts had better give up all idea of ever becoming a successful merchant.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 131 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Ricker's Faxon Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co. Gentlemen.—The artists of the Kellogg Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We heartily commend them to the highest terms.
